Nonpathogenic Avian Virus Found, Industry Quick To Control

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

MANHEIM-MT. JOY (Lancaster Co.) — The continuing efforts of the allied poultry industry in Pennsylvania and the scientific research into how the avian influenza virus operates will keep the latest outbreak of the dreaded disease at the nonpathogenic level.

That's the hope of industry leaders as they moved swiftly on Tuesday to depopulate 154,000 hens in three houses on a farm in the Manheim-Mt. Joy area. A non pathogen strain of the virus was discovered in the birds exhibiting symptoms of the disease. The virus was confirmed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and all flocks within a five mile radius are being tested.

While a flock in Lebanon County was depopulated in February after a nonpathogen strain of the virus was discovered, this is the first time a commercial flock has been found to have the virus in Lancaster County since the disease devastated the state's poultry industry 14 years ago. This time both the Lebanon flock and now the Lancaster flock were depopulated as a precautionary measure because the earlier episode also started as a nonpathogen strain. Later as the nonpathogenic strain passed through a number of flocks it mutated into a highly pathogenic strain that affected nearly every flock in the state.

John Hoffman of the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation said that because of Pennsylvania's experience with avian influenza years ago, the state's poultry industry doesn't hesitate to take immediate action once a flock is diagnosed.

"Like now, at that time the birds were not highly affected," Hoffman said. "We thought with summer coming the virus would disappear on its own, so we didn't get alarmed. But it continued and by October it turned pathogenic. Once that happened, it spread quickly through the county, and the state mandated the slaughter of 17 million birds over a year's time to eradicate the disease at a cost of more than $100 million.

"Because of our experience, we don't make the mistakes of the past. We are doing everything possible to not allow an epidemic to occur again," Hoffman said.

Of course, the loss to individual poultry farmers is dramatic. The family this week lost $100,000 from the destroyed birds, and

Richard and Sandra Wizar stand next to their farm business sign. Richard said that using the principles of business learned at Bell Atlantic — know where you spend your money — helped him develop a successful retirement farming business. He said that now he has the best of both worlds.

Retired Couple Establishes Agricultural Business

WEST CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — Catering to an agricultural niche market, Richard and Sandra Wizar, owners of Wizar's Country Nursery, said they have found their post-early retirement Shangri-la in an old farmstead they turned into a country nursery.

The nursery is located in West Cornwall Township, near Richard's boyhood home in Cornwall.

Starting with a more than 165-year-old farmstead in need of repair, over the past 12 years, especially the past five, they built a family home-business that now employs six people full time, including Richard and Sandra, and three part-time people.

They started out with a Christmas tree operation on the farm's 40 acres, after renting out some of the land for crops to others for a couple of years while they were fixing up the house for themselves.

At the time they were both employed by Bell Atlantic.

Since they retired (Richard five years ago, Sandra last year), their side business has quickly blossomed into a three-part, full-time business — landscaping and

Dairy Cooperatives Agree To Discuss Consolidation

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Four of the nation's largest dairy marketing cooperatives have signed a memorandum of understanding to continue discussions that could lead to the formation of a new dairy marketing cooperative that would market about 25 percent of the nation's milk. The decision follows a joint meeting of the four organizations' boards of directors, in which the main topic of discussion was the consolidation of assets and operations to form an, as yet unnamed, consolidated organization. The two-day meeting follows nearly five months of analysis and discussion among the four organizations' leadership to reach agreement on key issues involved in such a consolidation.

Cooperatives involved in the consolidation discussions are: Associated Milk Producers Inc. (AMPI) of Arlington, Texas; Mid-America Dairymen Inc. (Mid-Am) of Springfield, Missouri;

Farm Show Director Notes Economic Impact Of Fairs

BLUE BALL (Lancaster Co.) — A recent study on the economic importance of fairs conducted by Penn State for the Pennsylvania Farm Show Commission came up with some interesting figures.

For one thing, the Farm Show in Harrisburg generates $70 million in economic activity in the capitol region, said Dennis Grumbine, Pennsylvania Farm Show director.

Grumbine spoke Wednesday night at the Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs (PSACF) Zone 4 meeting to 156 people at the Shady Maple Smorgasbord in Blue Ball.

Grumbine, who farms 300 acres in Lebanon County and owns several ag businesses, challenged the members of local fair boards to "take a look at what the economic vitality is of the fair when it comes to the local area," he said, as compared with how the Farm Show affects the ag industry throughout the commonwealth.

He urged the many fair committee volunteers and those who help organize fairs to use some "crystal ball gazing" tactics and come up with some numbers. These numbers relate to the people needed by exhibitors at the fairs, including veterinarian services, trucking, food suppliers, as well as local

Delmarva Broiler

MAY 7, 1997

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was light to fair and generally unaggressive. Seller offerings varied from in balance to ample and slow to clear on the larger sizes. Live supplies were [illegible]st moderate; weights were desirable to [illegible]y. Processing schedules were moderate to heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 56 to 70 cents. Trade sentiment was steady. In the parts complex, leg items were tightening at several plants. Inquiry for boneless skinless breasts was disappointing and supplies were building in some instances.

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
MAY 6, 1997

Wheat bids continue to fall as winter wheat condition improves and ideal weather for spring wheat planting. Some profit taking in the wheat pits also pressured bids. Corn bids declined as planting progress continues. Soybean bids made additional gains as meal demand continued higher and fund buying on the board gave bids a boost. However, active planting limited gains. Wheat 3 to 13 cents lower. Corn 3 to 6 cents lower. Sorghum 10 to 11 cents lower. Soybeans 1 to 3 cents higher. The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC — THIS WEEK WITH

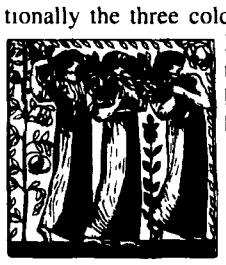
MAY 12-18, 1997

ARMED FORCES DAY, MAY 17.

THREE CHILLY SAINTS

Mammertus, Pancras, and Gervais (or Gervatius) are the "Three Chilly Saints" who celebrate their feasts each year on May 11, 12, and 13. The three became known in weatherlore for predicting what were traditionally the three coldest days of the month. Germans knew these days as Icemänner, or the Iceman Days, and farmers knew better than to plant vulnerable seedlings before the Icemen had come and gone. The English and French saw the Three Chilly Saints as harbingers of a late spring frost.



Cold weather & knaves come out of the north.

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Wash winter coats, hats, and mittens and store them away with a scented sachet.

RHUBARB COBBLER

1/2 cup sugar
1/4 cup cornstarch
2 tablespoons water
4 cups cooked, sweetened rhubarb
1 tablespoon butter

TOPPING:
1-1/2 cups biscuit mix
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1 tablespoon sugar
3 tablespoons melted butter
1/3 cup milk

Mix the ½ cup sugar with the cornstarch and water until it is smooth. Add to cooked rhubarb, and heat just to boiling. Pour into a baking dish and dot with butter. Combine topping ingredients to make a biscuit dough. Drop by large spoonfuls over the top of the rhubarb. Sprinkle with additional sugar, if desired, and bake for 30 minutes at 400° F.

Makes 6 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Be it weal or be it woe, beans blow before May does go.

Ne'er cast a clout till May be out.

Who shears his sheep before St. Gervatius' Day (May 13) loves more his wool than his sheep.

Dry May, wet June.

A wet May, a dry September.

Introducing NEW

Prota - Ion Salt

47% Protein Source for High Producing, Early Lactation Dairy Cows.

Prota - Ion Salt is a new, unique blend of highly available protein, amino acids and peptides.

Microbes in the rumen or lower gut can utilize these simple nitrogenous compounds in the same way they utilize complete protein by reducing it to absorbable amino acids.

When Prota - Ion Salt is added to the ration:

- nitrogen conversion to microbial protein is more efficient
- a reduction in ammonia loss
- increased efficiency of carbohydrate usage
- increased microbial growth
- increased microbial "spillover" into the lower gut.

Microbial Protein can be described as high quality, by-Pass protein.

OPINION

Freedom To Farm

America's farming communities are coming alive with preparations for spring planting, and they reflect a spirit of optimism not seen in decades. Farmers have had a taste of freedom under the "Freedom to Farm" law, and they like it. This landmark measure — one year old this month — swept 60 years of government-mandated land idling programs such as annual acreage set-aside programs, and micro-management of America's farms.

Growers may now plant for dynamic U.S. and global markets — rather than a government program — and are reaping the benefits. Farm income and export sales both set record highs in 1996, and another strong year is forecast for 1997. Farmland values continue to rise, and the value of farm assets relative to farm debt is the best in years.

Communities and businesses that depend on a robust farm economy — from farm suppliers, crop handlers and transporters, and food processors, to rural Main Street businesses — are operating at higher levels of capacity and profitability. Food manufacturers and exporters, in particular, are now getting the crop varieties in the volumes they need to serve customers, and they are paying premium prices to growers.

The environment also benefits under the new law. Elimination of nearly all planting restrictions permits farmers to adopt more crop rotations, which cuts soil erosion and reduces the need for chemicals, while presenting opportunities for longer term gains in productivity.

And the general public benefits. Consumers can expect to pay a declining percentage of their disposable income on food now that the government is out of the business of manipulating farm commodity prices. The Agriculture Department plans to cut up to 20 percent of its vast work force that is no longer needed to administer programs, and taxpayers will no longer bear the uncontrollable expense of farm entitlements which have been replaced with capped, declining payments over seven years.

Paying farmers not to farm never did make much sense. The achievements of the new law make you wonder why it took so long to dump the old law.

To Tighten Up Biosecurity

The Avian Influenza (AI) virus is still circulating in the area.

This past week we had another confirmed case on a commercial poultry farm.

We need to raise our level of biosecurity. This includes limiting access to poultry houses to only care takers and necessary service people. All other people, including children, neighbors and relatives, should not being entering poultry houses.

Keep out dogs, cats, and wild animals. Make sure all equipment is washed and disinfected before being used on the farm. Try not to share equipment, tractors, manure spreaders, etc. between farms.

Keep all poultry houses locked at all times. Develop and keep a daily log of people entering your farm recording date, time, purpose of visit and their most recent visit or stop before your farm.

This virus should be easy to control if we limit the people traffic. By practicing excellent biosecurity practices now, you could be preventing a large economic loss tomorrow.

To Call Before You Dig

According to Columbia Gas, you should call Pennsylvania's One Call service before you build, landscape (planting a tree, shrub, etc.) or dig.

Your call will alert utilities to look for and notify you of underground utility lines or facilities. The Utility and Coordination Council has a uniform color code. This code alerts contractors and excavators to utilities in the work area.

The color code is:

- Red — electric lines, cables, conduit and lighting cables.
- Yellow — gas, oil, steam, petroleum or gaseous materials.
- Orange — communication, alarm or signal lines, cable or conduit.
- Blue — water, irrigation and slurry lines.
- Green — sewers and drain lines.
- White — proposed excavation.

If you or your contractor hits any of these lines, the results can be very costly to you. In Pennsylvania, call 1-800-242-1776.

Remember, costly problems can be avoided with One Call.

To Control Flies

Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County extension dairy agent, states for best fly control results, implement prevention and control measures early before flies become a serious problem.

Once fly populations build up, they can be very difficult to control.

The best prevention is to eliminate their breeding sites. Keep areas clean, dry and sanitary. Clean up feed spills. Prevent buildups of manure in pens and in the corners of alleys and cow lanes.

Flies cannot breed in dry or wet manure. They do breed in damp manure packs and in the damp interface layers where manure crusts meet the liquid phase. Periodic agitation of manure pits may help prevent the formation damp interface layers.

Good ventilation helps to keep manure packs drier. Once flies arrive, use a variety of control measures. These include livestock sprays and dusts, oral larvacides, residual sprays, quick knock down barn misters, baits, sticky tapes, traps, parasitic wasps, etc. When using insecticides, comply with label instructions.

Because flies may build up resistance, use insecticides judiciously. Be sure to alternate between different types of materials.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "Attack every problem with enthusiasm . . . as if your survival depended upon it."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

AT THE END OF THE ROAD

May 11, 1997

Background Scripture:
Revelation 7
Devotional Reading:
Hebrews 9:7-14

What is at the end of life's road?

That's a question we all ask in one way or another. Essentially there are only two possible answers. From our own personal perspective, either death is the end of our existence or just the beginning of life. To put it in a broader frame of reference, either God's will prevails or chaos and destruction await the universe.

That is also the perspective of the Book of Revelation.

Just as John or Revelation sees a scroll of seven seals, so, as each seal is broken, he views a succession of fearful visions and tribulations. By the end of chapter six, six seals have been broken and six tribulations have been forseen.

But, before the seventh and final seal is broken, there is a kind of intermission during which the four winds of destruction are halted momentarily before the seventh and final drama of the world's destiny. During this intermission 144,000 people are sealed or marked for protection against the demonic powers to be unleashed with the seventh seal.

A SYMBOLIC NUMBER

Once again, I advise you to take John's testimony as a vision and not an eye-witness report of the end of time. Revelation is filled with symbols, not statistics. Even the number of the redeemed, 144,000, is a symbolic number. Like 7, the number 12 stands for completeness. That is why there were twelve tribes of Israel and twelve apostles.

In the vision there are sealed 12,000 from each of the twelve tribes of Israel. Thus, the number 144,000 signifies not that there will be only that number redeemed by the Lord, but that none of the redeemed will be excluded or forgotten.

That the number 144,000 is to be taken symbolically rather than literally is indicated in the fact that John's listing of the twelve tribes is different from other listings of them in the Old Testament — substituting Manasseh, Joseph's son, for Judah, his brother. (One scholar says that there are twenty different listings of the twelve tribes in the Bible.)

WHITE ROBES

So, before the redeemed get to the end of their road, they are assured of God's salvation, even though they must yet endure the tribulation that comes with the breaking of the seventh and last seal. "Who are these, clothed in white robes, and whence have they come?" asks one of the elders. And the answer: "These are they who have come out of the great tribulation; they have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb" (7:13,14).

What possible relevance do John's vision have for us? Although I believe John had in mind a particular historical tribulation, nevertheless we can identify with those in his vision who are attired in white robes and hold palm branches. Like them, we have not reached the end of the road. Like them we face our own tribulations, our own temptations to dispair and surrender. Like them, we cannot see to the end of the scroll that promises us, along with them, that we will stand "before the throne of God" serving him, that we "shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more," that we "shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more," that the Lamb will be our shepherd and guide us "to springs of living water" (7:15-17).

Yet, we, too, can share in the promise that, at the end of the road, stands the God who will "wipe away every tear from their eyes." And, although the seventh seal remains to be broken, we can go on down the road knowing that what lies at the end of it is good.

(The Althouses will walk in the footsteps of Paul and John of Revelation, leading a tour to Turkey next Oct. 17-Nov. 2. For information: "Turkish Delight," 4412 Shenandoah Ave., Dallas, TX 75205/(214) 521-2522.)

OK City Feeder Cattle

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK
MAY 7, 1997

Compared to last week: Feeder cattle firm to 2.00 higher. Demand very good for feeders. Calves and stockers 1.00-3.00 higher with new crop calves 9.00 higher. Demand excellent for grazing cattle. Buyers forced to purchase new crop unweaned calves to fill their needs as not enough thin dry wintered calves available for the demand. Quality of supply average to many attractive. Weigh-ups varied gaunt to full. Feeder flesh lighter than normally expected for May cattle off wheat. Flesh condition mainly medium to slightly fleshy and less than the February-March off wheat run. Slaughter cows 50-1.00 lower with moderate packer demand. Slaughter bulls 1.50-2.00 lower with fair demand for increase supply of bulls. 550 cows and bulls sold with 60 percent to packers. Receipts this week 12,850; last week 5,581; last year 10,120. Supply consisted of 78 percent yearlings over 600 lbs; 18 percent calves and light yearlings under 600 lbs; 4 percent cows and bulls. Think about it. Every time you get to the end of the row, you say to yourself, "If my tractor had a better turning radius, then I'd spend less time turning around. And more time turning a profit."

Spend More Time Turning A Profit And Less Time Turning Your Tractor.

Don't dream anymore. Because the new turning radius on the 9655 AGCO® Allis tractor has arrived. How did we do it? For starters, the frame has been contoured inward four inches on each side of the engine. And we've recessed the space between the grille and radiator, giving you even more clearance between the front tires and frame We've also sculpted and sized the side quarter panels without disturbing the tractor's overall appearance.

- The 9655 has a 155 PTO hp and an 18-speed powershift transmission with 18 forward and 9 reverse speeds, giving you even more working options.
- The Series 40 liquid-cooled engine has a combustion chamber design which provides excellent fuel economy while reducing exhaust emissions.
- The AWD models feature a true centerline drive shaft for more efficient power transfer and less maintenance.
- As always, behind every AGCO Allis tractor, there's a 4-year/4,000-hour warranty backing it.

To see the new turning radius on the 9655, stop by and see us. We'll be glad to show you how much time and money you can save.

New Dairy Contracts Attract Volume, Open Interest

NEW YORK — Recently-added dairy contracts have proved successful to those in the dairy industry through strong open interest, consistent volume, and interested marketplayers, traders said. As open interest climbs, traders believe the market remains focused on the current spring flush and currently flowing milk supplies.

In the second cash cheese trading session, the Chicago Mercantile Exchange's contracts closed steady to higher in rising volume. Barrels opened and closed unchanged at $1.15 per pound on 9 lots of volume, while 40-pound blocks closed at $1.1525, up from the opening price of $1.15, on 6 lots of volume.

Some traders are content that the anonymity of buyers and sellers at the CME have helped increase volume. One broker, in particular, said he felt cooperatives and companies would be less hesitant to trade the cash cheese contract, using the floor trader as a mask, as compared with the pre-

YOUR HESSTON® TEAM KEEPS YOU RUNNING.

With the right equipment and the right service.

The right equipment: the new 545 Round Baler. Its beefed-up drive system and automatic features let you bale the tough stuff, like silage and high-moisture hay, with ease. And for normal dry hay, just let it roll. One baler, three jobs. It's the new heavy-duty 545 Silage Baler — at your Hesston dealer now.

The right service: this season ask your Hesston Team to help with all your haying needs From twine to computerized parts support to fast field service, we keep you running when it counts. Nobody Knows Hay Like Hesston.

AJCA-NAJ Set Annual Meetings

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — The 1997 annual meetings of the American Jersey Cattle Association and National All-Jersey Inc. are to be held June 27 through July 1 at the Hyatt Regency Indianapolis at State Capital, in Indianapolis.

The theme of the four-day convention is "Race to Indy," and the host group is the Indiana Jersey Cattle Club.

Guests are invited to enjoy tours of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, the Children's Museum and nearby Windridge Jersey Farm, along with an optional golf outing.

The Jersey Breeders Awards Banquet is to be held Saturday, June 28 with presentations of the 1997 master breeder and 1997 distinguished service awards.

On Sunday, June 29, the national heifer sale, is to be held with top Jersey genetics being offered.

On Monday, June 30, the NAJ annual meeting starts off the morning half of the day with the AJCA meeting starting later in the morning.

The AJCA awards banquet is slated for Monday evening. At that time, the AJCA young Jersey breeder award winners are to be recognized, along with the recognitions of the winner of the President's Trophy and the leading lifetime production award winners.

A separate agenda has been planned for Junior members (youth). A pizza party is scheduled for Saturday night, while before the heifer sale on Sunday, a stock sale and fitting demonstration are scheduled.

Distinguished Service

Among the awards recipients, Harold Owens, of Frederic, Wis., is to receive the 1997 Distinguished Service Award. The award is annually presented to a member of the AJCA who has rendered unselfish service for many years and, in doing so, made a notable contribution to the advancement of the Jersey breed in the United States.

When his father died in 1936, Owens was 17 and in high school and was left to operate the farm alone. He milked a herd of 30 cows of various breeds. After a few years, he decided to make the herd all Jerseys.

Today, at 78, he is still active in breeding Jerseys and Owens Farms Inc. has for many years been the largtest herd of registered Jerseys in the Upper Midwest. The rolling herd average on the 328 cows was 14,435 pounds milk, 757 pounds fat, and 588 pounds of protein.

He and his wife Agnes raised eight children, all of whom had Jersey project animals and six of whom are in dairy farming today. Of those six children dairying, five have Jersey herds and one introduced some Jerseys into her husband's Holstein herd.

Four of their children were named AJCC outstanding young Jersey breeders, four have served as directors of the Wisconsin Jersey Breeders Association, and ones serves as director on the board of the AJCA.

Owens herd was a charter member of the Polk County Dairy Herd Improvement Association, and Harold was director. The herd (now a REAP herd) has been on official test since the beginning of the county DHIA.

In other position, he was a director of the Twin Ports Cooperative Creamery for many years and was the largest shipper. He was a member of the board of the Duluth-Superior Milk Producers for four years and also served as a director for the Wisconsin Jersey Breeders Association, as well as helping to organize the Polk County Farm Bureau Federation, serving as a director for 12 years.

He was also involved with contacting Wisconsin milk plants in 1981 to convince them to use multiple component pricing. In the years since, he has worked with several Wisconsin cheese plants and creamerys to convenince them to adopt a cheese yield pricing plan.

He continues in the effort by currently advocating including multiple component pricing in all federal milk marketing orders.

In addition he has supported Jersey research, personally and through his farm with contributions to the Jersey Research Foundation. Recently the farm donated a heifer and a bull to an AJCA project to reintroduce Jerseys to China.

Master Breeder

Albert Bradford, of Turner, Maine is to receive the 1997 Master Breeder award. The award is made annually to a living AJCA member who, in the opinion of the board, has bred outstanding animals for many years and thereby has made a notable contribution to the advancement of the Jersey breed in the United States.

Bradford began his Jersey career during a summer break from school when he went to work for Clint Goodnow in Turner, Maine. For the next 12 years, Bradford worked for Goodnow, eventually becoming a partner.

After Goodnow's death in 1962, Bradford and his wife Lynette purchased the cows and in 1963 purchased the farm.

He set a herd goal of 14,000 pounds of milk, and selected his three highest production cows, kept all their daughters and eventually sold the rest of the herd.

For its size, he had one of the highest production herds from 1975 to 1990, winning the Eastern Jersey Herd Production award for 14 years.

During the mid-1980s, his herd was in the top 10 for milk and fat, regardless of herd size. He only purchased two animals.

His top cow was Observer Althea Anna, rated an Excellent-90 percent, one of the first Jerseys to complete an all-1 DHIR lactation record of 1,000 pounds protein with a 361-day record started at age 7 years, 4 months, of 27,230 pounds of milk, 1,232 pounds fat and 1,000 pounds protein. She has a lifetime production of 5,110 days, 248,025 pounds milk, 11,477 pounds fat, and 5,967 pounds protein.

A daughter Goodnow Midnight Blue-ET is now scored Excellent-93 percent and made more than 24,000 pounds of milk. Three of Blue's daugthers have scored Excellent and made over 21,000 pounds milk. She also has a son on the active A.I. list.

Bradford has been active with the Maine Jersey Cattle Club, the New England Jersey Breeders. He was awarded the senior breeder award by the New England Breeders in 1985, and received the Governor's Trophy in 1977 as the Maine dairyman of the year.

He also has served on the Turner town council for 27 years and is active with his church.

BIG PERFORMANCE...SMALL PRICE
SIMPLE PROCEDURE: the aerator works directly into the bed of material, forming its own windrow. Windrows can be formed from piles of nearly any size. Alleyways are not required when using the Brown aerator, so there is a great reduction in space requirements. The aerator's reverse rotation works the material from the bottom up and to the side, assuring complete mixing and agitation. LOW MAINTENANCE: the aerator is a simple design, the principle as a material mover has been proven with over 30 years experience in practical application. The aerator is hydraulically driven and equipped with patented wearplates or paddles, both of which are easily replaced.

International Speakers Address Penn State's Rule Program

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Community leaders from across Pennsylvania learned about national and international aspects of leadership during the March Study Institute of the Pennsylvania Rural Leadership (RULE) Program, held in March at the Penn State Scanticon on the University Park Campus.

"RULE is designed to develop community leaders who have the skills and resources to meet the challenges of the changing rural communities of Pennsylvania," said J.D. Dunbar, RULE program manager. "Participants come from all walks of life and include farmers, homemakers, business and chamber of commerce executives, as well as elected officials. They share a commitment to solving the problems of rural Pennsylvania."

Over a two-year period, the RULE program provides training and information to help participants enhance analytical, leadership and group dynamic skills, and to increase their understanding of public, business, and government issues.

Speakers at this year's program include international and national authorities on rural issues and leadership. Hans-Christoph von Heydebrand, first secretary of agriculture from the Embassy of the Federal Republic of Germany, discussed agriculture in Germany and Europe. Mary O'Connor of the Advanced Agricultural Leadership Program of Ontario, Canada, also addressed the group.

Dr. Dennis Evans, director of the Ag and Forestry Leaders Program in Alabama, presented a session on "How to Work A Room" with Luanne Stauffer, a member of the Upper Perkiomen Chamber of Commerce and a RULE alumna.

Randy Frazier, an alumnus of Leadership Arkansas, delivered an address entitled "You Can Keep the Change." Frazier; Teresa Griffin and Perry Debter, alumni of the Alabaam Leaders Program; Paul Clark, an alumnus of Nebraska Lead; and others also participated in a panel discussion about buidling connections among leadership development programs in many states.

Steve Tweed of Tweed Jeffries, LCC, Louisville, Ky., delivered an address entitled "Get Ready for the Future." Michael Short, vice-president of Explosive Ordinance Disposal Technology Inc., Knoxville, Tenn., discussed the politics of terrorism.

Dr. Theodore Alter, interim dean of Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, discussed food systems and rural development efforts. Phil Dymond, president of Eastern Westmoreland Development Corporation, spoke about personal power. Cheri Kroboth, direct of rural health for the Pennsylvania Hospital Association and a RULE alumna, delivered an address called "TEAM ... It's Not a Dirty Four Letter Word!"

Economic Impact Of Fairs

hardware stores that sell supplies to exhibitors and others who attend fairs. When a fair comes to town, even retail outlets are affected, Grumbine indicated.

Pennsylvania Gov. Tom Ridge, who attends many state fairs, always uses the statement that fairs are the "showplace of agriculture" in the state, according to Grumbine.

Grumbine has served as a Farm Show commissioner for 16 years and now directs a farm show staff made up of three unions and a payroll close to $2 million per year. There are a total of 157 different events held in the Farm Show Complex in a year's time.

He spoke about learning what it is like to work with people at the best of Farm Shows and at some of the worst. He noted some of the challenges faced at the 1996 Farm Show, with blizzard conditions, the statewide shutdown, the collapsed roofs, and flooding.

Grumbine noted he was able to not only learn, but to work to make some changes to improve the show. He noted that he was able to bring PCN TV to the show, which provided 44 hours of TV coverage during the infamous winter of 1996, when many people all across the state were shut in from the storm. PCN reached 1.5 million households.

Grumbine believes those telecasts could prove to be "the most educational experience in agriculture that has ever taken place in the commonwealth." As a result, children who were at home watched and learned and decided they wanted to see the Farm Show the next year for themselves.

So this year, more than 180 buses visited the Farm Show, from what Grumbine calls "nontraditional rural schools," he said.

Children can attend the Farm Show as an excused, allowable absence from school under state rules.

Grumbine challenged fair board members across the state to "develop ideas to move the industry forward," he said. Grumbine pointed to newspaper coverage of the recent presidential call to service summit held in downtown Philadelphia. President Clinton called on inner city people to volunteer.

"He was telling inner city people to do exactly what you people are doing in rural Pennsylvania," Grumbine noted.

Of the 113 fairs in the state, all are made up of "hundreds and hundreds of volunteers," said Grumbine. The volunteers arrive ahead of schedule with "weed eaters and shovels" and other equipment to prepare for fairs.

"You people are actually the unsung heros who hold the social fabric together in rural Pennsylvania," Grumbine said.

Sally Nolt, chairman of PSACF Zone 4, said Wednesday night's attendance was a record for the number of people at a Zone 4 meeting. Ron Miller, fair fund administrator, said the state budget, recently passed, provided a $300,000 increase to the fair budget, raising the annual budget from $3.7 to $4 million. The $300,000 is being used for capital improvements.

Bruce Koppenhaver said that the PSACF is on the Internet. People can access the association's web site at www.pafairs.org.

Lancaster DHIA Expands Service To Franklin County

Lancaster DHIA recently expanded its service area to include Franklin County. After receiving several inquiry calls from Franklin County dairymen, Jere High, Manager of Lab and Technical Support, visited to research the feasibility of providing service to the area. Jere attributes the good response of 25 herds presently enrolled to the wide variety of low cost programs Lancaster DHIA has to offer.

Several dairymen are already using the herd management PCDART program in their personal computers. Dairymen who are interested in taking their own samples are finding the Basic program an economical alternative at $.55 per cow.

Lancaster DHIA serves Lancaster, Berks, Dauphin, Chester, Franklin, Lebanon, and York counties. For more information call us at (717) 665-5960; FAX (717) 664-2911; Email - landhia @redrose.net

Pumpkins Sprout Big Business In Pa.

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) —Pumpkin production is big business in the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic. Pumpkins are second only to sweet corn in number of vegetable farms growing the crop, according to a recent survey, indicated one Penn State expert.

In 1996, 54 percent of vegetable growers grew pumpkins, according to Dr. Alan MacNab, plant pathologist from Penn State.

MacNab spoke about some of the methods growers can use to manage diseases in pumpkins early this year at the first Penn State-sponsored Mid-Atlantic Pumpkin School held in March at the Eden Resort Inn and Conference Center in Lancaster.

The school focused on pumpkin production and provided growers and industry representatives with the latest information on culture and management techniques for the crop, according to Tim Elkner, Lancaster horticulture agent, who also helped coordinate the school.

Dr. Charles McClurg, department of horticulture at the University of Maryland, provided information on how to select for good quality pumpkins, how to properly handle them, and proper storage methods.

"Start with good quality pumpkins," noted McClurg. "To produce good quality, select a variety that has characteristics you desire. Use cultural practices that contribute to good quality fruit."

Handle strength and integrity are important, indicated McClurg. It's important to select varieties accordingly. In general, smaller-fruited types have better handles than large, "face-type" varieties.

When handling or moving pumpkins, use as much care as possible to avoid physical damage. Throwing and dropping fruit can break off handles and cause puncture injury to fruit walls from other handles.

For direct sales, McClurg told growers to try to have parking near the pumpkin areas so buyers don't have to carry their purchases very far. Provide carts or wagons for customers.

Also, sort through your pumpkin displays periodically to remove damaged and diseased fruit. Outdoor displays should be set up in an area with good drainage so the fruit are not sitting in mud or water following rain.

Bob Rouse, University of Maryland, provided data on materials and methods used in growing pumpkins on plastic mulch.

Rouse also provided his "ABC's" of pumpkin growing:

- A is for Advertise.
- B is for Bees — at last one strong hive per acre.
- C is for Cover crops — use hairy vetch, rye, small grains, etc.
- D is for Disease management. Growers should learn to control black rot, powdery mildew, downy mildew, plectosporium, phytophthora, soft rot, virus, etc., using a total program.
- E is for the EB236 Vegetable Recommendation Book from Maryland.
- F is for Fertility — do not overdo it.
- G is for Great Wye Pumpkin Patch or green, healthy leaves.
- H is for learning about Harvest and storage.
- I is for using Irrigation when needed.
- J is for the Jack of all trades — the Jack-Be-Little varieties.
- K is for who pumpkins impress the most — Kids.
- L is for Lime to correct soil pH.
- M is for Marketing. Learn to do your homework.

• N is for using No-till in pumpkin and other vegetable production, when it will work.

• O is for Overproduction, which can be fatal.

• P is for Pest management of various pumpkin insects and rodents, including aphids, cucumber beetles, mites, vine bore, squash bug, mice, etc.

• Q is for growers to learn Quality control.

• R is for the importance of Rotation in a pumpkin production schedule.

• S is for Sales. Do your homework.

• T is for Time of planting, early to mid-June.

• U is for Uniform spacing — think square feet per plant.

• V is for Varieties — there are many to choose from, and many were discussed at the pumpkin school. Learn which ones will work best in your operation.

• W is for Weed management of annuals and perennials.

• Y is for Your good management of all these factors to lead to a profitable crop.

• Z is for the ZZZs — you need to catch up on them, because the 1997 season is here.

In the disease management segment of the school, Alan MacNab, Penn State plant pathologist, reviewed the following diseases which growers should learn to manage:

• Bacterial wilt. The wilt is caused by a bacterium, Erwinia tracheiphila. First symptoms appear as wilting and dying of individual leaves; affected leaves also may exhibit injury caused by cucumber beetles, which carry the bacteria to plants. Later, leaves wilt on one or more laterals or on entire plants. Initially, wilted parts may appear to recover at night, but they wilt on successive sunny days and finally die. To check a plant for bacterial wilt, cut the stem near the base of a wilted lateral, pinch the base of the cut stem, and watch for the appearance of a white exudate from the cut surface of the vascular woody tissue within the stem. The exudate, made up of the causal bacteria, is sticky and can string out somewhat like honey after it is touched. Cucumber beetles can carry the bacteria to plants; when beetles feed on plants, the feeding wounds are openings through which bacteria can enter the plants. Bacterial wilt can be controlled by preventing beetles from feeding on plants.

• Phytophthora blight can be important when soil remains wet for extended periods. It is caused by the Phytophthora water mold fungus (P. capsici and other species). On pumpkins, seedlings can be killed early, resulting in poor stands. In addition, the base of large plants can rot severely, resulting in plant collapse and death. Soil moisture is the most important factor in development of disease. During wet conditions, disease development is promoted by summer heat. The most effective control is based on water management. Avoid fields with heavy, poorly drained soil. Promote the best drainage possible. Avoid long irrigation periods. Rotate crops to allow at least three years between pumpkins and other cucurbits, peppers, tomatoes, and eggplant. Chemical controls that sometimes are helpful include soil fumigation, Ridomil treatment of soil, and foliar sprays with Ridomil-combination products and with fixed coppers.

• Downy mildew. This disease can affect all cucurbits. It is caused by the fungus Pseudoperonospora cubensis. Irregularly shaped yellowish to brown spots appear on upper sides of leaves, usually at the center of plants. Under moist conditions, a purplish mildew develops on the underside of leaf spots. Leaves die as spots increase in size. Spread is rapid from crown leaves toward new growth. The fungus does not overwinter in northern areas of the U.S. except in greenhouse-grown cucurbits. Downy mildew doesn't appear in the mid-Atlantic area until mid-August. Where downy mildew occurs, fungicides are useful.

• Powdery mildew. This can affect all cucurbits. It can be caused by Sphaerotheca fuleginia and Erysiphe cichatoriacearum, but the former predominates. The disease appears initially on crown leaves as white powdery mold. With time the mildew appears on younger leaves until all but the very youngest are affected. Severely mildewed leaves wither and die. The disease could overwinter as specialized spores. Most pumpkins are susceptible, but some varieties show resistance.

• Black rot. Symptoms on fruit start as circular to irregular spots, initially grayish in color, but later dark brown to black. Although the spots can be small, usually they expand quite rapidly, first cause a dry rot, but frequently changes to a soft rot once the seed cavity is invaded. It is sometimes confused with phytophthora fruit rot. Black rot fruit spots usually are black, whereas phytophthora rot usually stars as a watersoaked area and becomes grayish and yeast-like. Most confusion with diagnosis occurs at final stages of rot development, when fruit affected by either disease can collapse. The black rot fungus can survive for at least two years in residue from diseased plants and also can be seedborne. Controls include starting with clean seed from reputable seed producers, rotation, using varieties with as hard a rind as possible, minimizing weed and insect problems, and correct applications of fungicide.

• Microdochium blight (speckle) affects cucurbits, especially pumpkin and summer squash. Symptoms on fruit stems, leaf petioles, and sometimes leaves are light tan to bleached, sunken, spindle-shaped lesions. The disease sometimes is associated with specific varieties, but this could be related to fruit maturity, when conditions favor infection.

• Mosaic. Symptoms caused by viruses sometimes develop on new foliage but usually are recognized when mottle symptoms appear on fruit. Most of the viruses that affect pumpkins are aphid-borne; they include cucumber mosaic virus (CMV), watermelon mosaic virus (WMV=WMV-2), papaya ring spot virus (PRSV=WMV-1), and zucchini yellow mosaic virus (ZYMV). Controls include attempted eradication of reservoir hosts, including perennial weeds near fields, aphid vector control, use of reflective mulches to repel aphids, spraying with mineral oils to minimize spread by aphids, and use of netting or floating row covers to keep aphids from feeding on plants. Once developed in plants, resistance to the viruses likely will provide the most effective control.

MacNab emphasized that most successful pumpkin producers follow an integrated disease management program that considers rotation, soil drainage, air drainage, varietal resistance, proper planting time, appropriate seeding rate, cucumber beetle and aphid control, weed control, use of fungicides, careful handling at harvest and, when possible, heat curing immediately after harvest.

Other topics included pumpkin fertility and nutrition by Dr. Mike Orzolek, horticulture department, Penn State; pollination and reproductive growth in pumpkins by Dr. Chris Wien, vegetable crops department, Cornell; pumpkin varieties by Dale Riggs, district vegetable specialist, Cornell; evaluation of cultivar performance and fungicides on quality parameters of pumpkin by Dr. Charles McClurg, department of horticulture, University of Maryland; rye mulch for pumpkin weed control, by Riggs; managing weeds in pumpkin fields by Dr. Ed Beste, weed specialist, University of Maryland; disease management in pumpkin production, Dr. Jim Kantzes, plant pathologist emeritus, University of Maryland; and phytophthora blight management in pumpkin production by Dr. Steve Johnston, plant pathologist, Rutgers University.

Gardeners Show A Hot And Cool Side To This Year's Idea Garden

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Master Gardener "trainee" Pauline Okhuysen grabbed hold of the hoe and nodded in her direction. "This is the hot side, over here," she said.

While she was busy preparing the ground to plant a vibrant yellow Feverfew, on Wednesday morning other Master Gardeners were looking intently at plans carefully drawn up by fellow gardener Althea Harting.

"The other side is the cool side," said Marge Krepp, as she lowered a trowel to the dark, moist soil.

To visitors of the Lancaster County Farm and Home Center, site of the Penn State extension office, the left side of the main entrance will feel "hot," featuring bright, vibrant flowers, as detailed in Harting's plans for "A Garden With Hot Colors, 1997."

Part of the annual Idea Garden, Master Gardeners are experimenting with new ways to educate and entertain visitors with displays of flowers not so common to many gardens.

The right side of the main entrance is home to the cool flowers, in contrast — lots of white, light blue, and silver-hued flowers, many of which the Master Gardeners grew from seed.

"Althea decided on the colors we would use in the garden," said Hans Lienhard, chairperson of the Idea Garden Committee.

Lienhard was helping to coordinate the planting of the garden with about a dozen other gardeners early in the morning on Wednesday.

The flowers represent 26 different varieties. Some new plants include three different vines, said Lienhard, with a trellis system. A tepee will also be used to add more color and entertainment to the garden.

Marge Krepp uses talcum powder to outline the different parts of the Idea Garden prior to planting.

While it may take a while for some of the smaller plants to come into bloom, visitors to the Idea Garden will have their best view from about mid-June and later. The Master Gardeners have scheduled an open house on Saturday, July 26, from 9 a.m.-3 p.m.

at the Farm and Home Center. The open house will also feature a diseased plant clinic — people can bring in their sick plants and have their problems diagnosed by a Penn State horticulturalist.

The open house will also feature a special children's garden in back of the Farm and Home Center, noted Tim Elkner, Penn State horticulture agent. The garden measures 20 feet by 20 feet and includes four attractions: root crops, a pizza garden, sunflowers and other fun plants for kids, and a tepee. The pizza garden will show children the vegetables involved in making a pizza, including tomatoes, oregano, basil, and other items. The "three sisters" plant structure will be a feature — planting corn, followed by beans which can snake up the sides of the corn, followed by squash that can snake in between the corn plants. The garden will give children something to do while their parents inspect the Idea Garden for home gardening ideas, according to Elkner.

The open house occurs every other year, after the Master Gardeners open their own homes for tours. About 400 people attended the open house the last time it was held two years ago, and about 75 came to the plant disease clinic, Elkner said.

The sunflowers aren't new to the Idea Garden, according to Elkner. He said that they were tried last year, "but the rabbits ate up the young plants." This year, vines will be used to add more variety to the garden.

Plants which make up the "hot" side of the Idea Garden include Coleus, Nasturtium "Alaska," Marigold Vanilla Cream, Cosmos "Lady Bird Scarlet," Sunflower Velvet Queen, Coral Nymph, and various vines, including Morning Glory, Mina Lobata, and Rho Dochitin (Purple Bell Vine). The hot side also includes Capsicum Annum (Ornamental Pepper), Rudbeckia "Nutmeg," Golden Feverfew, Pink Ageratum, Dusty Miller, and S. Coccinea "Lady In Red," along with Gazania and

County Holstein Clubs Join

The Harford and Baltimore County Holstein Clubs recently held a joint banquet meeting. After the invocation by Emily Birch, Harford County Farm Queen and a milk toast by Maryland Dairy Princess Sarah Bedger, Baltimore County, a delicious dinner was enjoyed by all.

A business meeting was held and the membership of both clubs voted to join together and become the Upper Chesapeake Holstein Association. New directors were elected: 3-year term - Steve Wilson, Steve Webb, Paul Shahan; 2-year term - Mike Birch, Peter Morris, John Schenning; 1-year term - Robert Smith, Kelly Mays and Lenny Pieper.

Following the business meeting, each club presented their Dairy Youth Awards. Amanda Shahan was this year's Harford County recipient and Baltimore County presented Robert Miller with the Jr. Award and Becky Miller the Sr. Award.

Anita Hill, secretary/treasurer of the Maryland Holstein Association presented 1996 All-Maryland and Reserve Jr. All-Maryland awards to Kenny Ehrhardt, Kevin Ehrhardt and Barbara Schenning.

The evening program concluded with a speech written and presented by Erin Magness entitled "Fourth Generation and Proud of It." Her speech told of how farming has changed from a very respected occupation four generations ago to farmers being such a nuisance on the road today and receiving very little respect for their hard work of producing "nature's near perfect product — MILK."

The Upper Chesapeake Holstein Association will be hosting the 1998 Maryland State Holstein Convention.

DAIRY MARKET PRICE COMMENTARY

vious auction-like setting at the National Cheese Exchange.

"If a coop were to ever sell on the Exchange, whether or not it was a smart move technically, the coop's members would likely not be so forgiving of its association helping drive down prices," he said. "But, that's not the case with the Exchange, because the farmer doesn't know what his coop is doing in the market at all times."

Another trader said the contract could create more volatility in the cheese market for this same reason.

Several industry sources said they didn't believe it would be long before the CME will trade the cash cheese market throughout the week and not exclusively on Thursdays as it is currently.

"Cheese trades hands every day, and since the industry uses Thursday's cheese price to decide what they'll do through the following Wednesday, there is some need of changes through the week," one midwest dairy broker said.

FUTURES OPEN INTEREST RISING

While nearly all dairy product futures are increasing in open interest and volume in the previous month, some traders cite heavy trading in inter-commodity spreads as the reason for this strong rise.

Excluding heavy flooding in northern midwest regions of the US earlier this spring, dairy specialists said weather conditions this spring have been optimal for the milk flush and that it will likely bring good milk supply out through this summer.

Despite a strong spring flush, milk demand this week has indicated increased buying interest, lending more support to milk futures' prices.

On Thursday, Coffee, Sugar, and Cocoa Exchange's BFP milk futures were up 7c at $11.17/cwt, while Jly rose 3c to $11.48. The BFP milk contract was steady in 20 lots of volume, all traded in the Jun contract. On Wednesday, the CSCE's BFP contract has soared to 470 lots of open interest, up 8 lots from Tuesday.

On Thursday, CSCE Jun raw milk futures were up 113 cents at $12.48 per hundred weight, while May and forward contracts gained 13c. Raw milk open interest on Wednesday had increased another 3 lots to 72.

Cheddar cheese fell sharply on Thursday amid continued reports of building cheese inventory in the US. CSCE Jun cheese futures fell 50 points to 116.50c, while Aug dropped 130 points to 131.00c, in a volume of 10 lots. Cheese open interest increased 1 lots to 24.

The bulk of the trades in the last few sessions have been industry representatives, brokers said.

At the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, Grade AA Jun was at 97¼ c, up ¾ from Wednesday. Jly rose 1c to 100.50c. Butter open interest rose 10.

Impatiens.

Plants on the cool side include Impatiens, Purple Wave, Nigrembergia Mont Blanc, Salvia Farinacea, Purple Ruffles, Snow In Summer, Cerinthe Major Purfurascens, Farinacea Victoria, Zinnia Augstofolia, Cosmos Santa White, White Geraniums, and Digitalis.

Alex Henderson designed and constructed a special new sign for the Idea Garden and made up 75 labels out of pressurized wood and wood stakes. There are a total of 1,200 plants, said Hans Lienhard. Of those plants, one-third were grown from seed by the Master Gardeners and two-thirds were purchased from local garden centers.

Mother's Day Tribute

Readers who wanted to pay special tribute to their mothers, grandmothers, wives, and mother-in-laws were asked to send in one of their favorite recipes with a few paragraphs and a picture of the one being honored.

Here are two of the submissions. Turn to page B6 and subsequent pages to read more about the women who deserve special recognition not only on Mother's Day but every day.

1-2-3 Layer Dessert

½ cup butter
1 cup chopped walnuts
1¼ cups flour

Mix together butter, walnuts, and flour and pat into 9x12-inch pan. Bake 20 minutes at 350 degrees. Cool.

8-ounce package cream cheese
5-ounces Dairy Whip Topping
1 cup powdered sugar

Mix together cream cheese, topping, and powdered sugar and spread on baked crust. Combine the following:

1 package instant butterscotch pudding
1½ cups milk

Beat three minutes. Put on top of cream cheese layer. Combine:

1 package instant chocolate pudding
1½ cups milk

Beat three minutes and layer on top of butterscotch layer. Top with another layer of Dairy Whip Topping. Sprinkle with nuts and refrigerate.

Glayds Wright won prizes for this outfit at several Halloween competitions.

MOLASSES TAFFY

2 cups molasses
1 cup sugar
¾ cup water
½ teaspoon baking soda
4 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon vanilla

Cook molasses, sugar, and water slowly to the hard-ball stage. Stir during the latter part of cooking to prevent burning. Remove from heat. Add the butter, baking soda, and vanilla; stir to mix. Pour mixture into a greased pan. When it is cool enough to handle, find a partner to help pull. Butter your hands and pull until the taffy is light in color. Shape it into a long rope. Cut into bite-sized pieces.

Mom, Grandma, and I would make taffy like this recipe. It was hard on our teeth. It passed away snowing and long winter evenings.

My mother Gladys Wright from Glen Rock is 67 years old. She has been married to Kenneth Wright for 45 years.

She loves the Lord, cooks, bakes, and plays piano in church and Sunday School. There are 10 grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

"We all love to read the sales, recipes, and Sunday school lesson in Lancaster Farming each week."

My mother won a prize for her outfit (shown in the picture) as the prettiest farm woman several years ago at a Halloween party. This year her outfit won at work at Green Valley Amp. as an outstanding entry; she won two theater tickets on Halloween night.

These gestures can keep our mothers, grandmothers, and great grandmothers through thick and thin.

Our family always lived on a farm. Four girls—one in Florida, one in Arabia, one in Pennsylvania, and a 32-year-old in heaven since 1996 from a brain cancer. She left five children (one doesn't understand). She was the picture of health, a good worker, and a lovely person.

We as a family baked, cooked, and always had guests on which we tried new recipes.

ANTIBIOTICS DAMAGE THE IMMUNE SYSTEM
Vitamix FEEDS THE IMMUNE SYSTEM
You Can Sell The Milk
When You Use Vitamix Instead Of Antibiotics

Vitamix is for every contagious disease & every kind of infection. Support the immune system their lives depend on it.

You can sell the milk when feeding Vitamix. Vitamix is a mixture of vitamins, minerals, enzymes, electrolytes, and proteins, especially calculated to feed the immune system. Vitamix is the result of over 20 years research and over 20,000 feeding experiments. Vitamix ingredients are so micro pulverized and easily digestible that some of them melt in the mouth and are absorbed into the bloodstream while the cow is still chewing her feed. Her organs increase the output of antibodies (white cells) within minutes, and can often double the output of antibodies within one hour after consuming Vitamix, and you can get Vitamix without a prescription. Vitamix is all natural. You just put Vitamix in the feed whenever there are symptoms of a contagious disease or infection.

The cow's immune system can cure any and every kind of contagious disease and infection quicker, safer, more consistently than any medical drug in the world when you support the immune system. The immune system is the only real defense. I keep cows and horses for feeding experiments.The last tlme I used an antibiotic was in 1984 and haven't lost a cow, calf or horse since I quit using antibiotics.

Any time any human or animal gets a contagious disease or any kind of infection, it is for one reason, and one reason only; The immune system failed to do an adequate job of defending against it. In other words, the immune system let you down.

Every time you use antibiotics, sulfa drug or an immune stimulator; you weaken the immune system. See the Physicians Desk Reference (PDR) for more information on the side effects of antibiotics. The information in the PDR was provided by the drug companies that make the drugs as required by law.

Shouldn't we be feeding the immune system instead? Support the immune system. Their lives and health depend on it. Feed Vitamix every time for every contagious disease or infection.

Vitamix is the best procedure in the world for Mastitis. It is quick and easy and you can sell the milk when feeding Vitamix.

How long does it take when you take the "Support the immune system approach?" I have seen calves that were down, had high fever, bloody scours and were dehydrated. One needed help to hold its head up. The only thing I gave them was Vitamix and water. In three hours, I had to run them down and get them cornered to give the Vitamix. Dairymen tell me that Vitamix is faster than anything else they ever used.

When there is a serious case of anything contagious or infectious; I give Vitamix once an hour for three hours, or until they are back on their feed and doing noticeably better. I continue Vitamix six times daily for a few days. Vitamix typically costs only $2 to $3 a day for a cow (less for a calf). The total cost for one cow for one illness is typically $8 to $10 from start to finish.

Vitamix costs less than antibiotics, and you can get it without a prescription. Vitamix is completely drug free!!! You can sell the milk when you use Vitamix!!! (When you use antibiotics, you pour the milk out for 5 days, sometimes more. You risk making a mistake and pouring all your milk out for 5 days or more.)

You save money Every Time you use Vitamix. Get some Vitamix now to keep on hand. Use Vitamix as soon as you see symptoms of anything contagious or infectious. You will know you did the right thing within hours.

Preventing and curing all contagious disease and infections boils down to this. Increasing the capacity to produce white cells (Antibodies). All white cells are made by the bone marrow. Antibiotics cause "bone marrow depression" thereby reducing its ability to make white cells to fight diseases and infection (See Physician's Desk Reference Book [PDR]).

I have done over 20,000 feeding experiments on healing the body, and have yet to find an incurable contagious disease or infection.

Why sit around waiting for a miracle? You can order Vitamix right now. Miracles are great and they do happen now and then; if you wait around one might happen for you. But the immune system is a miracle. You can order Vitamix today and keep it on hand, then you will have it when you need it.

Vitamix ...when you need a miracle. The best source of information about Vitamix is people who have used it. Ask a friend about Vitamix.

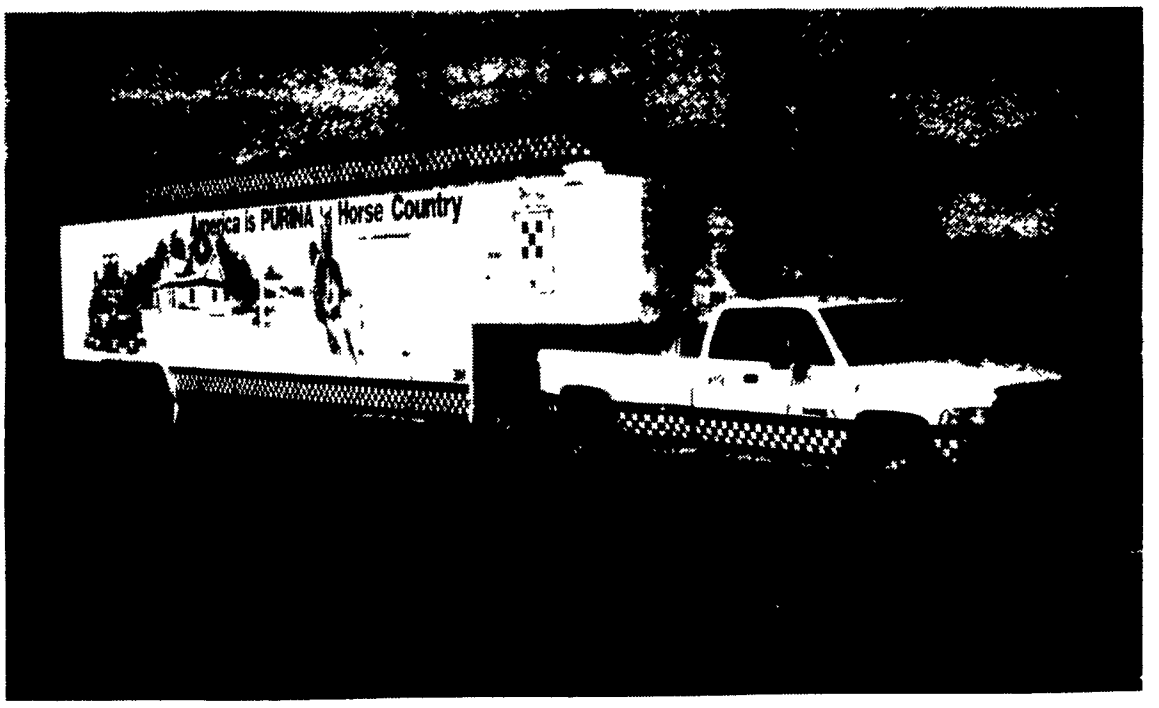
Purina Horse Country Exhibit



CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — A one of a kind equine education exhibit will be at the Purina Mills, Inc. plant on St Johns Church Road, Camp Hill on May 21 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The exhibit housed in a trailer has interactive communication pieces for the novice or the person who is interested in getting more information on horses. Touch-screen computers, videos and visual displays present consumer information and answer questions on a wide variety of horse ownership, management and related topics.

Sponsored nationally by Purina Mills and 15 other organizations, the exhibit's goal is to inform and encourage public interest in the rapidly growing horse industry. During the 1997 nationwide tour, the exhibit will travel to dozens of major equine events, state fairs, and community training events across the United States, covering more than 75,000 miles and reaching an estimated 500,000 horse enthusiasts in its first year.

The public is invited to come and tour the exhibit. There is no charge and a food concession will be available. For more information call (717) 737-0500.

Corn planting was a popular activity this week as the days suitable for field work increased. The Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service reported corn planting continued ahead of the five year average. Cool weather and the lack of soil moisture has hindered the growth of hay and small grains. Some farmers cut ryelage last week and fruit and vegetable growers continue to assess fruit trees for frost damage. Most of the fruit crop is now in full bloom. In the photo, the Amish farmer provides the subject for a scenic view across Lancaster County from Georgetown road looking north across Paradise Lane east of Strasburg. Photo by Everett Newswanger, managing editor.

THE GROWING SEASON BEGINS

The 1997 growing season has started and as usual the weather is not "average."

The cool weather has delayed the growth of some crops but it has also slowed the development of insects and diseases that attack these crops.

The dry weather has been good news for fruit growers who are concerned with apple scab and fireblight infections. But even with the weather's cooperation both vegetable and fruit growers need to be concerned with early season pest pressures on their crops.

This month I'll discuss some insects and diseases that growers need to be watching for now.

Vegetables

There are several types of insects that growers need to be concerned with at this time of year. Generally, less insect damage can be tolerated early in the season because vegetable plants are small and even a little damage can stunt the plant's growth and may reduce yields. Let's start by reviewing some insects that may be found in your early sweet corn.

Black cutworm larvae can be damaging from the spike through 5-leaf stages of corn. Look for small, irregular holes in the leaves and missing or cut plants. If cutworms are present, examine 10 sets of 20 plants in various places. Rescue treatments are advised if 5-10 percent of the plants show leaf feeding or cut plants. The need for treatments can also be determined by your plant density — if black cutworms begin to reduce stand density below the desired level, treatment is advised.

Dry weather tends to drive the larvae into the soil so ineffective control may result in these conditions — rotary hoeing or cultivation may increase control effectiveness in these situations as will increasing the gallonage of water used in treatments.

Another important pest of sweet corn and other vegetable crops is the flea beetle. Flea beetles are very small black beetles which feed on the leaf surface and tend to jump away when disturbed. Flea beetles overwinter as adults. Historically, the number of adults that emerge in the spring is directly related to winter temperatures. This winter has been unusually warm — therefore it is reasonable to expect high numbers of flea beetles this spring.

For flea beetles, begin checking your planting at the 5-leaf stage. Examine 10 plants at 10 sites and determine the percent of plants with at least one beetle. Because these beetles transmit the bacterium which causes bacterial wilt (Stewart's wilt), use resistant varieties whenever possible. If susceptible varieties are used, a treatment for flea beetles is advised when 5 percent or more of the plants have at least one flea beetle.

Another commonly seen insect at this time of year is the asparagus beetle. Hibernating adults emerge and feed about the time the spears are cut for market. They chew portions of the green shoots, causing the tips to scar and turn brown. The presence of the black eggs on the shoots also makes them unfit for market. The eggs hatch in about one week and the larvae may then cause additional damage while feeding. At this point, adults, eggs, and larvae may be seen at once. If enough damage occurs, the next year's crop may be affected because of lowered root reserves.

Various spray materials are available for asparagus beetle control in commercial plantings. In the home garden, rapid picking of spears is also effective because it removes eggs from the planting.

The last pest I'll discuss is the seedcorn maggot. Seedcorn maggot populations have been building for several years in Pennsylvania, probably because of the wet weather. The adult of this insect is a fly similar to a housefly but it can be hard to spot. The damaging larvae or "maggots" are the immature larval stage. These insects overwinter as a pupa in the soil in northern climates. Adults emerge in early spring and lay eggs in moist soil containing abundant decaying vegetation. Larvae hatch and crawl to the roots of plants or seeds, and complete their development within 2-3 weeks. Several generations per year may occur.

The maggots burrow into the seed causing seed death or poor germination. Damage tends to be spread throughout the field. Peas and beans are most likely to be attacked but corn, cabbage, turnip, radish, onion, beet, spinach and sprouting potato are also attacked. Damage is often related to the size of the seed. Beans can tolerate several maggots and still germinate well, whereas smaller seed will be devoured.

Damage can sometimes be avoided by delaying planting until the first generation larvae have pupated. These insects are generally attracted by humus or organic matter and moisture. Consequently, organic fertilizer in the row tends to increase damage from the larvae. Cultural controls include thorough incorporation of organic matter into the soil, preparation of seed beds for rapid germination, and shallow planting.

A number of materials are available for seedcorn maggot control at the time of planting, as well as seed treatments. See your copy of the Commercial Vegetable Production Guide for specific recommendations. Materials that are mixed in the hopper box allow the minimum use of insecticide and are probably the most effective.

Fruit

Our cool, dry weather has been helpful in reducing the pressure from apple scab this year. Scab spores are maturing slowly on the leaves on the ground. Scab spore maturity and peak release normally occurs during bloom. However, this year we expect the peak release to be delayed until later in bloom and perhaps even petal fall. Wetting periods such as light rains will initiate the release of additional scab spores and result in new scab infections if fruit and leaves are not protected with a fungicide. Be aware of the delay in the appearance of scab in the orchard this year and maintain a good fungicide program.

The cool, dry weather has also slowed the development of fireblight. The ideal conditions for fire blight infection are open flowers, moisture (rain or heavy dew) and temperatures of 62 degrees or more. When these conditions all exist at the same time, fire blight infection is a possibility.

The history of fire blight in an orchard or a nearby orchard is also an important factor in whether fire blight infections occur even when all the "right" weather conditions exist. Fire blight in an orchard last year is very important to the potential for fire blight developing this season. Fire blight infections of flowers or shoots result in cankers in the wood where the bacteria survives over the winter. If you had fire blight in an orchard last year you should not assume you have eliminated all the cankers even if you where very diligent in cutting it out. In the spring, during bloom, bacteria ooze out of the cankers and are carried to flowers by splashing rain, wind and insects. Water (rain or dew) washes the bacteria down into the base of the flower where infection occurs if the temperature is over 62 degrees. If there was fire blight last year, the bacteria available for infection is high. If fire blight has not occurred in an orchard or nearby orchards for several years then the risk of fire blight occurring this year is greatly reduced.

Petal fall is a crucial time for controlling for a wide range of insect pests of apples and peaches. In apple there are direct pests such as plum curculio, European apple sawfly, redbanded leafroller, and San Jose scale and indirect pests such as European red mite, spotted tentiform leafminer, and white apple leafhopper.

Another indirect pest at petal fall in apple orchards next to peaches is Oriental fruit moth. Control of the first generation of Oriental fruit moth is important to reduce the later generations that feed in fruit.

Peach insects and mites of concern at petal fall through shuck fall are green peach aphid, Oriental fruit moth, and tarnished plant bug. Orchards with a past history of pear thrips should consider a Carzol application at petal fall to prevent scarring on the fruit. The recommended sprays for the other orchard pests can be found in the "Commercial Fruit Production Guide."

Do Dairy Farmers Get Biggest Bang For Buck?

GEORGE F.W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — Are we dairy farmers getting the biggest bang for our buck?

By "bang" I mean, are we satisfied with what we get for the hard-earned dollars we spend on dairy advertising?

Many dairy producers were hard to convince a few years ago when the milk income check-off system was initiated. They wondered if the money spent on promotion was worth it.

Some still wonder, especially since there is so little data given to dairy farmers to indicate whether the check-off is actually paying off.

Like all Americans, we are bombarded daily with advertisements from TV and radio, from billboards, and in newspapers, farm magazines and direct mail extolling the virtues of beer, soda, coffee, fruit juice and even water.

But milk?

Whoever said advertising would make a difference?

The tobacco industry is accused of too successful cigarette advertising with campaigns like Joe Camel and the Marlboro Man.

But milk?

Which brings up another question: Why put the burden of dairy product advertising costs on the dairy farmer when for tobacco the processing industry is responsible for paying, not the tobacco farmer?

In Wisconsin, the number-one dairy, cheese and cow state in the United States, their Milk Marketing Board has always been very active in advertising and promotion.

Even here at the University of Delaware, Wisconsin cheese promotional posters hang on the walls of our main administration office in the College of Agricultural Sciences, although Delaware agriculture is known primarily for its tremendous broiler industry!

In our area, too, the Mid-Atlantic Milk Marketing Agency (MAMMA) has been a leader in promotional activities in addition to our regional Dairy Councils and the annual Dairy Princess programs in each of our states.

In Delaware, we just held the 1997 coronation with more than 240 dairy people in attendance. For the small state of Delaware with only 10,000 dairy cows that is a phenomenal number!

We have had effective slogans about milk on radio and billboards — "Milk — it does a body good," "Milk — it's fitness you can drink," "Milk — the natural drink," and the latest — " Got milk?"

When you see a dairy commercial on TV or a milk mustache on the face of a prominent person in a full-page magazine ad, do you feel that your check-off money is paying dividends?

The price per hundred-weight milk going daily from the farm to processors seems not to reflect any sizable difference.

But could it be worse?

Maybe.

Consider the choices of United States youngsters at home or in school lunch rooms — it is hard to see where logic triumphs over fads, trends and preferences for colas or diet sodas.

Peer pressure for "what's cool," may eliminate milk drinking altogether if it was not for equal time in advertising milk, yogurt or other dairy products.

So, is advertising dairy products cost effective?

Recently, the American sheep producers were asked to vote on a check-off system for advertising and promotion of wool and lamb products. They voted it down — twice.

American dairy farmers have the legal option to request refund of their 15-cent-per-hundred-pound-milk check-off, but very few actually do.

Is this the result of hope?

Conviction?

Laziness?

Like many other state dairy farmer organizations, we in Delaware have reported study results on dairy advertising effectiveness to our members. In addition to promotion, the milk check-off money is used to fund milk-related research at universities.

Research results from this funding have yielded positive indications of the great health value of milk and dairy products against cancer, tooth decay, insomnia, unthriftiness, osteoporosis and for athletic fitness, which lend credence to advertising and promotion. Much more is needed, however, on further nutrition and health-related questions.

So where is the bang for the buck?

The 15-cent check-off for every 100-pound milk produced on the farm adds up. Consider that 154 billion pounds milk per year are produced from our 10 million United States dairy cows.

We are investing in advertising, promotion and research more than $200 million from our milk productin income.

Several unbiased university studies are available on the cost-effectiveness of milk advertising. Studies have researched the impact in New York City, Buffalo, Rochester, and nationwide, California.

Findings in a recent study from Cornell University, Department of Agricultural Economics, were that consumption of fluid milk increased as the result of advertising (Journal of Dairy Science 79(1996):2284-2291). This study specifically focused on the possibly different effect on whole milk vs. lowfat vs. skim milk.

With New York City as the study site for the years from January 1986 through December 1992, the research showed that higher income played a positive role in higher consumption of milk. Also, health conocerns were reflected in the different consumption trends of whole milk vs. lowfat and skim milk.

Prices of other beverages like orange juice also impacted milk consumption levels.

Most importantly, significant relationships were found for the effects of advertising.

For each percentage change in advertising milk, there was a signficant increase in consumption of whole, lowfat and skim milk.

The conclusion of the study was, "The long-term sales response to generic advertising was significant for all three fluid milk products . . . and that generic fluid milk advertising as currently structured, has a positive and equal impact on demand for whole, lowfat, and skim milk."

Given these conclusions, maybe it's time dairy farmers feel good about their check-off that is paying off for effective milk ads and promotion, ensuring that better informed consumers are more interested in milk and dairy products in this product-competitive world.

Meeting May 13

WESTMINSTER, Md. — If you are growing any tree fruit in this area and have an interest in improving your disease control strategy, or you need to find out how to modify your spray program because of the erratic spring weather we have had this year, don't miss the Tree Fruit Twilight Meeting at Baugher's Orchards on May 13 at 6:30 p.m.

As you all know, the last couple of years have offered up some unique challenges in fruit production. Many stone fruit orchards suffered large losses to brown rot because of the almost constant rainfalls last season. Temperatures as low as 15 degrees the 2nd week of April have had varying effects on the blooms of all tree fruits this season.

Bob Rouse, regional fruit and vegetable specialist from the WYE Research and Education Center also plans to attend.

The meeting will be held in the orchard, but if the weather is bad, the meeting will be held in the packing shed.

If you would like to attend or want more information, contact Bryan Butler at the Carroll County Extension Office at (410) 848-4611.

Environmental Need For

Milk Marketing Inc. (MMI) of Strongsville, Ohio; and Western Dairymen Cooperative Inc. (WDCI) of Thornton, Colorado, and Salt Lake City, Utah. Together, the organizations marketed more than 42.5 billion pounds of milk for their 27,300 dairy farmer-owners in 1996. Total sales of the four cooperatives were $8 billion in 1996 and the organizations have combined assets of more than $1.5 billion.

According to Mid-Am president Carl Baumann of Highland, Illinois, the organizations began discussing the possibility of consolidating operations shortly after members experienced a steep drop in milk prices as a result of the sharp drop in cheese prices last November. "This is a response to major changes taking place in the dairy industry," said Baumann. "Government deregulation has increased farm price volatility, international dairy product competition is forcing extremely competitive pricing and there is a growing need for capital to increase manufacturing efficiency and expand production of value-added products. Consolidation can help us achieve economies of scale and will give us the financial strength to invest in value-added product development and manufacturing that can increase returns to dairy producers," he concluded.

AMPI president Charles Beckendorf of Tomball, Texas, concurs with Baumann on the need to change with the industry. He sees a number of benefits for dairy producers in the consolidation proposal. "After considerable study of the benefits of such a consolidation, we are convinced it would be good for dairy farmers, mainly because it would give producers more unity in the marketplace. Furthermore, this consolidation would generate the financial capacity to allow us to invest in profitable value-added dairy marketing enterprises. Our preliminary economic analysis shows that, when completed the consolidation would reduce costs and increase returns.

According to MMI president Herman Brubaker of West Alexandria, Ohio, the two-day meeting in Indianapolis was designed to outline and discuss broad operational guidelines for the proposed consolidation. "These guidelines were developed with the help of a consulting firm that met with leaders of all four cooperatives during the past four months," explained Brubaker. "Critical decisions related to governance, management and capital plans will require much additional work and study."

WDCI president Tom Camerlo of Florence, Colorado, said the two-day meeting was very productive, giving all four organizations' leaders an opportunity to more fully explore the potential for such an organization. "We all have a difficult time dealing with change and we tend to resist it," he said. "But we must look beyond the situation today and prepare for the future. This proposed consolidation gives the dairy farmers who are members of these four cooperatives a head start into the future."

High-Yield Agriculture

"The world is now beginning the biggest surge in food demand the planet has ever seen. We must triple the output of the world's food system — again — over the next 45 years. America has some of the world's best underused farmland, and some of its best higher yielding technologies and farming systems. To help the world meet its 21st-century food challenge, American agriculture should radically increase farm its farm output over the next several decades."

Avery pointed out that the need for increases in food production is not to counteract famine or poverty but to preserve the environment. "Humanity's greatest environmental triumph is the 10-12 million square miles of wildlife habitat which have not had to be plowed down to produce the additional food the world has been eating since 1965." Avery pointed out that the second greatest environmental triumph is the soil erosion which has not occurred as a result high yield and low-erosion farming systems like conservation tillage. Another of humanity's greatest victories is over disease as a result of farmers ability to produce a low-cost abundance of fruit and vegetables which are humanity's strongest weapon against cancer and heart disease.

Another benefit of high yield farming is the preservation of wildlife. Before countries around the world will suffer from famine, citizens of those countries will destroy the habitat and consume the wildlife. "For the future it will take the highest possible yields from every one of the world's good acres of cropland to triple world farm output without massive losses in wildlife habitat."

Mr. Avery's point is that the health and environmental benefits of high-yield farming are real, measurable and not a gimmick.

Agricultural Extension

The need to triple food production in the next 45 years also means there will be a need for agricultural extension, at least for another working generation, to be the link between high-yield farmers and their research institutions which will extend the scope of knowledge and technology in agriculture and speeding the adoption of the best farming systems, so that people and wildlife can compatibly share a small planet.

There are no more U.S. farm surpluses and there is a growing world demand. America's food demands are only rising).5% annually, but production is rising 4 percent per year. Without increased exports, Avery points out that American agriculture will shrivel.

The real prize is Asia, with its 3 billion consumers — most of them already enjoyiong rapidly-rising incomes. Asians currently average only 17 grams of animal protein per capita per day. Americans average 70 grams of animal protein per day. Japan used to average 15 grams of animal protein per day, but now averages more than 55 grams per day and still rising. The implication is that Asians will follow suit and by the year 2030 they will be requiring Japan's current 55 grams of animal protein per day for a population of 4 billion.

Soaring Food Demand

As mentioned last month, Asia is a marketing prize with its 3 billion consumers. It is true that the third world has reduced births from 6.5 births per woman in 1965 to 3.2 births today. It is estimated by the Winrock Foundation that the world population will peak at 8.5 billion in the year 2035.

As these countries become more affluent with rapid development, the demand for better diets will increase proportionately. International trade will foster this demand. GATT will be credited with the major sponsorship of this increased trade activity.

In addition to Asia and eastern Europe, Latin America is forsaking 400 years of polarized politics and moving toward open ecnomies. Avery conocludes "This surge in world economic growth is no OPEC boomlet, doomed to fizzle out after a few years or phony

Proposed Hog Finishing Facility Causes Conflict In Tioga County

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Tioga Co. Correspondent

STONY FORK (Tioga Co.) — proposed 2,000-hog finishing facility in Delmar Township near Wellsboro has stirred up controversy among area residents and prompted a meeting to inform area residents about farming techniques, nutrient management plans, and the need for concentrated animal operations.

More than 200 farmers, neighbors, and township and county officials packed the meeting room to voice their concerns and show support for the facility.

Farmer Daniel Martin first approached the township officials early this year to find out about rules and regulations that he would need to abide by when building this facility. A building permit for the structure was issued to the Martins recently, but that has not prevented area residents from trying to stop the construction of the facility. The area is a designated agricultural security area.

The barn, which is to be located on what Penn State ag specialist Ken Kephart calls an almost perfect site, is also along one of the main corridors to Pennsylvania's Grand Canyon, a major tourist stop.

Besides having a possible negative impact on tourism, mainly from the potential odor from the barn, area residents voiced concerns that manure from the barn would contaminate groundwater and that the amount of water used in the day-to-day operation of the facility would deplete groundwater sources.

In a mini-seminar on farming practices, Kephart, along with Norm Conrad of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), Dan Alters, water program manager for the DEP, and Francis Strause of Hostetter Management informed the crowd of the rules and regulations by which farmers must abide.

"I know that many of you have concerns about what is proposed, but all of you are here because you want to get the facts," said Kephart. "Agriculture is changing. The swine production business is no exception to that. I recall — more than 20 years ago after I graduated from college — we were selling hogs for a little over $.60 per pound, which is more than we are getting for hogs right now. The point is this, in agriculture and swine production in particular, the margins are getting less and less each year. Hence, changes in technology. One of those changes is that now we're getting bigger."

Kephart said there are about 75 facilities like the one proposed already in the state which coexist peacefully with neighbors.

On the manure management issue, Conrad informed the group of the soon-to-be-implemented nutrient management act.

He outlined the process of developing a plan and the need to review the plan yearly.

"The purpose of the the act really is to do two things: to regulate nutrients on certain animal operations and to protect Pennsylvania's surface and groundwaters," said Conrad.

Conrad further explained, with the help of Strause, the type of manure storage facility that would be located under the building, adding that there would only be a need to spread the manure two times each year. In addition, Strauss highlighted the various safeguards that are in place to detect possible leaks and overrun them before it becomes a problem.

Odor from the manure, assured the panelists, could be minimized if the farmer is careful to incorporate the manure into the soil soon after spreading it on the fields.

In addition, all in attendance were reminded that agriculture is one of the primary industries in Pennsylvania. What is considered a nuisance ordinance, to make somebody change their practices because of issues such as noise, dust or odor (part of regular agricultural activities), are not allowed, according to Conrad.

Water use was one of the final issues addressed by the panel.

The estimated water consumption for a 2,000-hog facility equals about 5,000 gallons per day. In comparison, 100 people would use about 7,500 gallons per day, according to Penn State research compiled by Kephart.

An example given by Alders was to think of the streams that are flowing in late August after there has been no rain for a month and a half.

"Those streams are running day in and out. There are millions of gallons of water coming out of the ground every day to feed those streams. Pumping 5,000 gallons per day sounds like a lot, but it's really just a drop in the bucket," said Alder.

The meeting concluded with a summary of a poll taken as people entered the meeting room. Overwhelmingly, the top reasons for living in Tioga County included agriculture, a clean environment, beauty of the rural area, and good neighbors.

"This is what we have in common," said Tioga County Agricultural Agent Craig Williams, as he asked all people to work together and cooperate to maintain the delicate balance between agriculture, tourism, and industry in Tioga County.

design, retail nursery, and ponds and waterscaping.

The Wizars (pronounced Wizer) live in a stone farmhouse they remodeled that was part of the 40-acre farm parcel they bought at public auction in 1985.

Sandra said that after the the auction, her mother cried all the way back home to Middletown. She explained that was because the Wizars had lived in a very nice, single family modern home and her mother was concerned that her daughter and son-in-law wouldn't be living as well.

That has changed. The Wizars have worked to create a home that is now a showplace.

From the Wizar's porch that faces away from traffic, the couple has a broad view of their picturesque, several-acre wetlands and pond, and a stream that courses between the wetlands and the house.

They can also see a long greenhouse that sits between the stream and the wetlands, and, closer to the house, a screened pavillion and swimming pool. On the far side of the pavillion is lawn and a tall, old sycamore.

Beyond the wetlands is an overgrown fenceline, and then beyond that are other people's crop fields. Traditional farmland adjoins the property almost on all sides.

A narrow road divides the property between the house and where the main business activity takes place.

The business area consists of a red-painted, rennovated bankbarn with a closed system aquaculture facility and offices; barn-red painted outbuildings for the nursey and landscaping business; a nursey area with demonstration and work areas; and a Christmas tree-raising area that remains from their gradual phase-out from that highly competitive, low margin business.

The road that bisects the property is a section of Spangler Road — a wending, walnut tree-lined secondary road with little through-traffic, though their operation is visible from the very busy Rt. 322.

In the spring, large flocks of snow geese, whistling swans, ducks and other types of geese and waterfowl stop at the wetlands and in adjacent fields.

The upper of end of a manmade wetland is in the foreground of this landscape photograph of Wizar's Country Nursery in Lebanon County. Retired from Bell Atlantic, Richard and Sandra Wizar live in the rennovated stone farm house and have created a multi-faceted nursey and landscaping supplies and design business on 40 acres. The Wizars constructed the wetland through a federal cost-sharing program, and with the help of Ducks Unlimited. Christmas trees grow on acres to the left and behind the house. The first floor of the barn has been converted into an indoor aquaculture facility where they raise Koi — fancy relatives of goldfish and carp sought by those who stock landscaping ponds — while rhododendron, azaleas, and some rare plants are sold through the nursey center, to the right of the barn. A greenhouse runs lengthwise in front of the house, between a stream and the wetland pond.

Other waterfowl nest there.

The sight of their swirling flocks coming in and landing on the shallow pond and wetlands attracts attention from motorists on Rt. 322. Some bring video cameras to the Wizars to document the flights of birds and the scenery.

A business sign along Rt. 322 informs those in automobiles that Wizar's Country Nursery is down that road that leads closer to where all the birds are going.

The local public's knowledge of the business has grown quickly, not only because of the obvious change of a low-lying farm field into an open-water wetlands, but from other landscapers, customers, and from word-of-mouth among backyard pond enthusiasts.

In the aquaculture facility that he built inside the stall area of the bankbarn, Richard raises several hundred Koi (a strain of fancy goldfish that come in a variety of colors and tailshapes that have long been bred in Asia and more recently in the United States for outdoor pond aesthetics).

He buys them young and raises them to size, and while most take months to raise — like feeding out a hog for market — some customers desire larger, older fish and that can take years to raise.

Richard said he imports some fish from Japan and Israel and the others he buys from domestic breeders.

Later this year, he intends to expand from only retailing the fish to wholesaling some.

The fact that the couple has developed an apparently successful business is testiment that background and experience in production agriculture are not the telling factors in whether a person can be successful or not.

In the Wizars' case, Richard grew up in the nearby mining village of Burd Coleman.

The historic Cornwall Iron Mine was a major employer in the area until Hurricane Agnes struck the region in 1972 and the operations was shut down after it was determined to be not worthwhile to pumpout and repair to working order.

Lots of equipment remains at depths unreachable by scuba divers.

Likewise, the jobs and lifestyles of the miners were also deep-sixed.

Some mine workers retired early, others were offered jobs elsewhere, while still others had to search for new careers. A few lingered in maintenance and security operations.

Richard's father was a miner, though Richard was out and on his own before the flood shut down the mine.

Sandra grew up living with her parents on her grandparents' farm in the rural Middletown area.

She said growing up on the farm she did have regular chores, depending on what kinds of livestock her grandparents were raising at the time.

They did subsistence farming and gardening. Her grandfather was a carpenter by trade. Sandra said she pulled a lot of weeds.

While growing up, Richard said he worked a couple of summers going around the county as a laborer baling and stacking hay, but that was the extent of his agricultural background.

He has two year's worth of college studying economics, and he attended Penn State University, and Franklin and Marshall College in Lancaster.

Other than that, he has on-the-job training at Bell Atlantic.

He worked as a manager of the long-range planning department in technology planning with a research group that was part of Bell Laboratories.

Over the years he became educated on technology and how to implement it.

"But I'm not mechanically inclined," he said.

Without that mechanical inclination, he nevertheless manages to be somewhat expert on pond systems, water filters, low head pumps, and irrigation equipment.

With the help of Penn State Cooperative Extension, he also learned about market conditions, plant cultivation, care, diseases, treatments, soil conditions, soil fertility, and some other matters important to raising Christmas tree, landscaping and nursery stock.

While aquaculture still remains the unclaimed child of Pennsylvania agriculture (proposed legislation that would change its legal status and thus allow aquaculture operators the same considerations as livestock and crop agriculture failed to be approved last session and a new, similar version is currently sitting in the Senate Appropriations Committee awaiting further consideration), Richard said it is becoming more and more important to the business.

His interest in raising ornamental fishes came from landscaping, which lead to waterscaping, which led to stocking ponds with fish. Koi are the fish most often stocked in waterscape, backyard ponds.

However, the care and raising of ornamental fishes was not an expertise he was able to find and mine for information through Penn State Cooperative Extension.

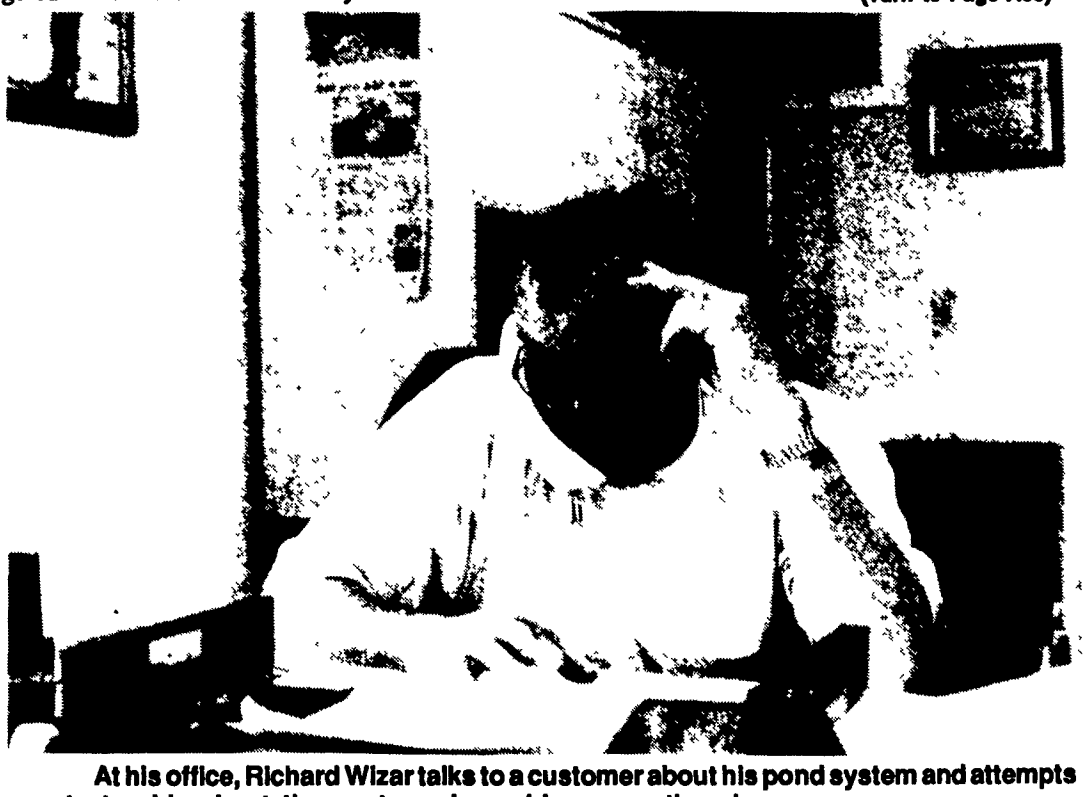
Richard Wizar drives a golf cart to get from one area to the next quickly, especially with supplies or plants. A number of farmers, especially those with some of the larger operations use golf carts or four-wheel drive all terrain vehicles to commute around the farm.



At his office, Richard Wizar talks to a customer about his pond system and attempts to trouble shoot the customer's problem over the phone.

Instead, he said found expertise in British and Japanese literature.

Both were formerly both management-level employees with Bell Atlantic who took early retirement packages — Richard had been in charge of a research group and was well travelled when he was offered the option of early retirement, while Sandra, a manager after 30 years with the company, took an early retirement when the company closed her department April 12, 1996.

They have two adult children in their mid-20s, both currently employed by Bell Atlantic (one in Philadelphia, the other in Lancaster).

As many blue and white collar workers across the United States have found themselves, the couple was faced with the prospect of being forced (or enticed) to retire from a job they started with the intent of a lifetime career ending with full retirement pension benefits.

Though the Wizars have not expressed any sense of being injured by the early retirements, many who faced the same thing have become resentfull.

There are many reasons for the disintegration of American business' loyalty to workers, though most deal with financial bottom lines, greater emphasis on investor loyalty, and perhaps greater reward for managers who prove more loyal to investors than to the businesses and the employees.

From a business financier's perspective, the American market is pretty much a global market and that means, in order to maximize opportunities, attaining production costs that are close to those of competing businesses with products made with cheap labor, no job security, less safety considerations, fewer regulations and little concern for environmental damage.

Coupled with those job uncertainties, the fairly wide-spread pronouncement from businesses, business pundits and academia is that workers now and in the future will have to change careers at least three times in a life.

While many workers forced into retirement are bitter at being forced to make changes, for the Wizars the early retirements turned out to be a blessing.

They could serve as an example of how to turn retirement and accrued funds into working capital for security outside of investment in other businesses.

Richard said his business acumen and main operating concept is derived from Bell Atlantic's theme of "best cost."

"The way I've been disciplined," Richard said, "it means know how you spend your money."

His age and stage of life are also important influences in his approach to the business, he said.

"Being that I'm a retiree, it brings a different focus than when you're a kid," Richard said. "We're interested in a good environment. We try to keep the rat race out of the business. Whether or not it's successful, I don't know. But we want to stay well, have fun and enjoy life."

The bent of the business started with Christmas trees because the land was suitable and because they offered a return on investment with not much attention required, as compared to the current use of the land.

While he bypassed the recommended route through Penn State Cooperative Extension for finding out with whom to confer for specialty information, he ended up working with the same people.

(All interested in starting new niche ventures should contact their local extension office first. For expertise or information not available there, extension staff can streamline the effort to link up with the appropriate specialists.)

Wizar said he depended heavily on the research-based information he was able to get from Penn State. He said he called Penn State Extension specialists about eight times per week for the first year or so.

This year he became a member of the Pennsylvania Nursery and Landscape Association to "stay tuned to the issues and techniques, the newsletter, and for fellowship with other growers."

Otherwise, "It's really a problem. How do you know what's out there."

The Wizars like to match up landscaping advice to the land and area to which it is to be applied — it's not a formula, by the numbers, draw-within-the lines kind of landscape consulting business.

They said they strive for a quality, return market, and aren't seeking to compete directly with the chain-store packages of landscaping plants and materials.

The aquatic landscaping grew out of an extension of that. Richard wanted to install a pond at the nursey for the aesthetics, with no real intention of adding that to their line of products and services.

But as customer inquiries grew, as well as Richard's interest and knowledge, he began stocking supplies and arranging to get the equipment and materials that customers sought.

They said they were pleased with the way things have been going.

"Once we bought the farm, we were looking for something to do," Richard said. "Raising animals didn't seem to be for us since we didn't have any experience."

In 1986, they planted all their acreage to Christmas trees, looking out to a return in six to nine years.

Penn State helped the Wizars in their decision of species and varieties by providing information on what types would be suitable to their soils and climate, and also providing information on considerations in raising them to harvest.

Every year after that they planted trees. However, the last three years, they didn't plant any new Christmas stock.

"Slowly, but surely, we diversified into nursery stock," Richard said, adding that they are phasing out the tree plantation to go fully into nursery stock.

They now have more deciduous trees and rhododendron and azaleas.

He said he decided to get out of Christmas trees because he considered it like "a gas war. There was a glut on the market coming with national surpluses."

Richard Wizar unpacks some plants on a table in the nursery area, while wife Sandy carries away waste packing.

Richard Wizar feeds some of his Koi in an indoor, closed-system aquaculture facility he built inside an almost 200-year-old bank barn. Air dehumidifiers are used to help prevent moisture from getting at beams and wood work above the ceiling.

He said shipments into Pennsylvania come from the New England states, the West Coast (Oregon, Washington) and the Mid West, such as Michigan and Wisconsin.

With the nursery stock, he said he thinks ahead three to four years on a return. With the Koi and waterscaping, he looks out two to three years ahead.

Larry Kuhns, a Penn State Cooperative Extension horticulture and weed control specialist who worked with Wizar, said that what he did to help Wizar get started is something he does for about 20 to 30 similar operations each year.

At the same time, Kuhns gets about 20 requests for information per week from existing landscaping operaters who have questions about plants and diseases and weed control methods, etc.

What he said he does is help the people, such as the Wizars with picking species that can sell good right through a glut.

He also helps in determining whether the site is suitable.

"That's the number one thing. If the soil isn't suitable, you aren't going to grow a number one crop," he said.

"The other thing we work on then, is species selection — deciding what to grow and that is a big part of the marketing. And, again, if you grow a crop in low demand, no matter how good it is, you can't make money out of it."

He also provides some of the finer points of growing, such as spacing requirement, cover crops to raise between the rows of stock.

Other specialists within the Extension system are employed also, including those in entomology, etc.

"There's a broad spectrum of information that's needed, when starting from scratch, the way the Wizars did," Kuhns said.

Wizar said that he has used help from about 18 different people within the Extension system to get information.

Kuhns said he doesn't pretend to provide advice on helping these people decide if they can raise the crop and make a profit. He helps them with what they may need to get the crop going and with demand and all the other agricultural considerations, but he doesn't work out their business plan. That's up to the individual.

He did say that once the businesses get started and into the system, they begin to depend less and less on the direct help from Extension.

Growers can attend local and regional extension meetings for updates, pesticide credit and nursery specific issues.

Further, every year during the second week of February, Extension holds a two to three day nursery conference. It had been held at Hershey at the Hotel and Conference Center, including this year.

The next conference is scheduled to be held Feb. 10 and 11 1998 at the Grantville Holiday.

Wizar said he has started to attend such events, such as the Pennsylvania allied Nursery Trade Show (PANTS), which is held the second week of July. But he also attends some others for publicity, such as the Lebanon Builders Show, where he set up a display to let people learn about the business.

Richard said, "Anybody with a backyard is a potential customer."

And he is sitting in the middle of a lot of them. The Lebanon County region was recently featured in a Harrisburg newspaper for its tremendous growth in residential development and the pressures from builders to have more land dedicated for their use.

With the help of some county leaders, the area has achieved a "bedroom" community status. (However that means taxes have had to increase to pay for all the community services demanded, which stresses traditional low-margin agriculture.)

Everyone of those bedroom community structures represents a potential place for nursery stock or a pond. The higher income developments also want landscaping that is markedly superior or exotic compared to what the lower income population buys at the large home-supply and nursery distributors.

Another part of the appeal of the Wizars operation is its appearance as a neat and well-organized operation.

He buys pond chemicals in bulk and repackages them in sizes customers want and stocks them on shelves in the bottom of the barn, where customers can walk around the two 28-foot long cemented-cinder block raceways and select from the smaller domestic Koi at about $15 each to some of the more expensive fish.

He offers 20 different varieties of aquatic plants, from lotus to lillies, as well as seed bacteria for filters.

Richard said he works with ponds ranging from 2,000 to 10,000 gallons of water.

How he got his open water wetlands constructed was also through working with government and non-profit organizations.

oil prices. Moreever, unlike oil money, the income gains are being spread among average citizens."

Surging Demands For Better Diets

The first thing that poor people do when they get more income is to bid for better diets. It first begins with more rice and wheat, then expands to eggs, milk, and finally meat, fruits and vegetables.

Examples include:

China - 10% more demand for meat - 4 million tons per ykear.

India - Trying to buy an additional 1-2 million tons of milk and dairy products per year.

Indonesia - Increased their broiler consumption by 25% in 1995.

America's Compatative Advantage In Farming

Avery states, "The world has a shortage of cropland with soil structure, temperate climate and rainfall to support high yields (and thus low costs per bushel). North American has the biggest chunk of such land anywhere in the world." The other three "green jewels" are smaller: the Ukraine, North China Plain, and Argentina.

> The U.S. has the best infrastructure to support its farms. We have four costs for low cost transport and internal waterways such as the Mississippi, Missouri, Ohio, Arkansas, Columbia and Snake.

> America's agricultural research is second to none.

> Nobody else has been diverting 40-50 million acres of good cropland.

> No other country in the world is better mechanized for the production of agricultural commodities. The Chinese farmer invests 2-3 hours of labor per bushel of corn as compared to the American farmer investing 7 minutes.

Currently much international trade is being hampered by domestic politics of importing countries. Developing countries still have half of their domestic population on farms and so attempt to protect them. Even so says Avery, the U.S. has benefited with 48% of the export growth around the world and "expect to get at least one-fourth of the growth in world food demand in the next two decades."

What About Global Competitors?

Western Europe's commercial farmers are reducing their output, because their subsidies are being slashed. Canada lacks the degree-days and rainfall to expand its crop output sharply. Australia is the world's low cost wheat producer, but Australia has a severe moisture constraint. New Zealand is the world's low cost dairy producer, essentially because of good year-round pasture, but they are already using all their grass. Brazil has about 200 million unplanted acres of arable land on the western frontier. The problem is the lack of a good transportation system included with the rough terrain and lack of funds to build a suitable rail system. Eastern Europe has the land and the climate to produce dairy products for export, but lacks the infrastructure, institutions, capital, farm inuts, and political stability. Argentina would be the second-biggest beneficiary of free farm trade. They could double their output, but would have to give up their current low-cost pasture/crop rotation and adopt intensive U.S. style farming. Argentina still has only one-third as much arable land as the U.S.

Considering all of the above, one might conclude that American should have a global competitive advantage.

Saving Wildlife Habitat With Public Opinion

"If the American farmer has the incentives to produce, and even gets Federal payments to buffer the shift toward export markets, what else could farmers possibly ned to prosper? They will need public approval."

Avery points out that if agriculture is going to regain its rightful place in our public policies, it must be seen as a public benefit. The answer is "If agriculturists understand and emphasize the environmental benefits of high-yield farming, they can convert the momentum built up for protecting the environment and saving wildlife into support for high yield farming also."

Think about this, the public is concerned with saving the environment which includes wildlife. Many influential people believe that to save wildlife would require a famine. Do you agree?

Avery warned a senate hearing that the real question was not famine but wildlife. "Famines don't occur until after the hungry people have hunted down virtually every every wild creature and plowed the remaining forest for low-yielding crops." It is not a choice between feeding the people or wildlife, we have to do both. The only way that the world can have wildlife in the 21st century is by tripliing the yields again on the planets safest cropland. That will prevent the famines, prevent the plow-down of tropical forests to grow broiler feed and dairy forage.

With the pursuit of higher yields, through research, technology and especially the new frontier of biotechnology, we should be able to meet the food challenge of the 21st century on less land than farming takes today.

Research On Hog Behavior May Give Clues To Pig Crushing

DES MOINES, Iowa — An Iowa State University study that evaluated sow and piglet behavior provides some clues to the causes of pig crushing,

Researchers Jennifer Minick and Don Lay took a different approach to the problem, focusing on the interaction of the gilts and pigs that leads to crushing. "Typically you're looking at changes to the pen to try and figure out how to keep them from laying on the pigs," Lay said.

Minick and Lay presented results of the research at the Midwest meetings of the American Society of Animal Science and American Dairy Science Association.

The goal of the study was to measure the behavioral differences that may be responsible for fewer crushed pigs. If activities that prevent pig crushing could be discovered, the researchers figure that breeding stock could be selected based on those behaviors. They looked at time the gilts spent lying down, sitting and kneeling and the number of body turns and position changes.

Lay and Minick compared the behavior of two breeds of gilts — Chinese Meishan and Yorkshire. Meishan sows have a lower incidence of piglet crushing compared to American sows. Yorkshire gilts were used as the representative breed in U.S. herds.

Sows of breeds typically raised in the United States crush an average of 1.2 to 1.5 pigs per litter. In Iowa, crushed pigs cost pork producers $8 million a year. A European study found a 5 percent survival advantage for the Meishan breed.

The gilts were placed in 5-by-7-foot pens to study their behavior in a more natural setting than a farrowing crate, said Minick, an ISU animal science senior. Lay said that Meishan gilts are not used to crates and sometimes "sulk" and refuse to eat when placed in them.

In the ISU study, the four Yorkshire sows each crushed one pig. Just one pig was crushed by all six Meishan sows and that was done during farrowing.

Less-active gilts that spent more time lying down had fewer opportunities to crush their pigs. The Yorkshire gilts were more active than the Meishan gilts and also spent more time sitting and kneeling, behavior that indicated discomfort. Minick said when the Yorkshire sows were sitting, pigs would typically run around under them, making them more vulnerable to crushing when the sows did lie down.

The Meishan gilts also performed a maneuver that seemed to protect their pigs from being crushed, Minick said. "The Meishan sows just flopped down, but they turned at least once before lying down to look for the pigs," she said.

Association Releases Fair Schedule

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs released the 1997 fair schedule recently.

Following is a list of fair schedules, places, and dates.

May 15-26	PA Fair at Philadelphia Park	Bensalem
May 29-June 8	Philadelphia County Fair	Fairmount Park, Phila.
June 23-28	Schnecksville Community Fair	Schnecksville
June 27-July 5	Butler Fair	Butler
July 1-5	Wolf's Corner Fair	Tionesta
July 6-12	Clarion County Fair	New Bethlehem
July 7-12	Derry Twp. Agricultural Fair	Derry Township
July 10-19	Lycoming County Fair	Hughesville
July 13-19	Jefferson County Fair	Brookville
July 15-19	Jacktown Fair	Wind Ridge
July 21-26	Jefferson Township Fair	Mercer
July 21-26	Kimberton Community Fair	Kimberton
July 21-26	Shippensburg Community Fair	Shippensburg
July 21-27	Troy Fair	Troy
July 22-26	Plainfield Farmers Fair	Nazareth
July 24-Aug. 2	Fayette County Fair	Dunbar
July 26-Aug. 1	Lebanon Area Fair	Lebanon
July 27-Aug. 2	Mercer County Grange Fair	Mercer
July 27-Aug. 2	Potter County Fair	Millport
July 28-Aug. 2	Morrison Cove Dairy Show	Martinsburg
July 28-Aug. 2	Clearfield County Fair	Clearfield
July 28-Aug. 2	Goshen County Fair	West Chester
July 29-Aug. 2	New Stanton Farm & Home Fair	New Stanton
August 1-9	Wayne County Fair	Honesdale
August 2-9	Clinton County Fair	Mackeyville
August 2-9	Greene County Fair	Waynesburg
August 3-9	Bedford County Fair	Bedford
August 3-9	Schuylkill County Fair	Summit Station
August 3-10	Union County West End Fair	Laurelton
August 4-9	Butler Farm Show	Butler
August 4-9	Cochranton Community Fair	Cochranton
August 4-9	Dawson Grange Community Fair	Dawson
August 4-9	Sykesville Ag & Youth Fair	Sykesville

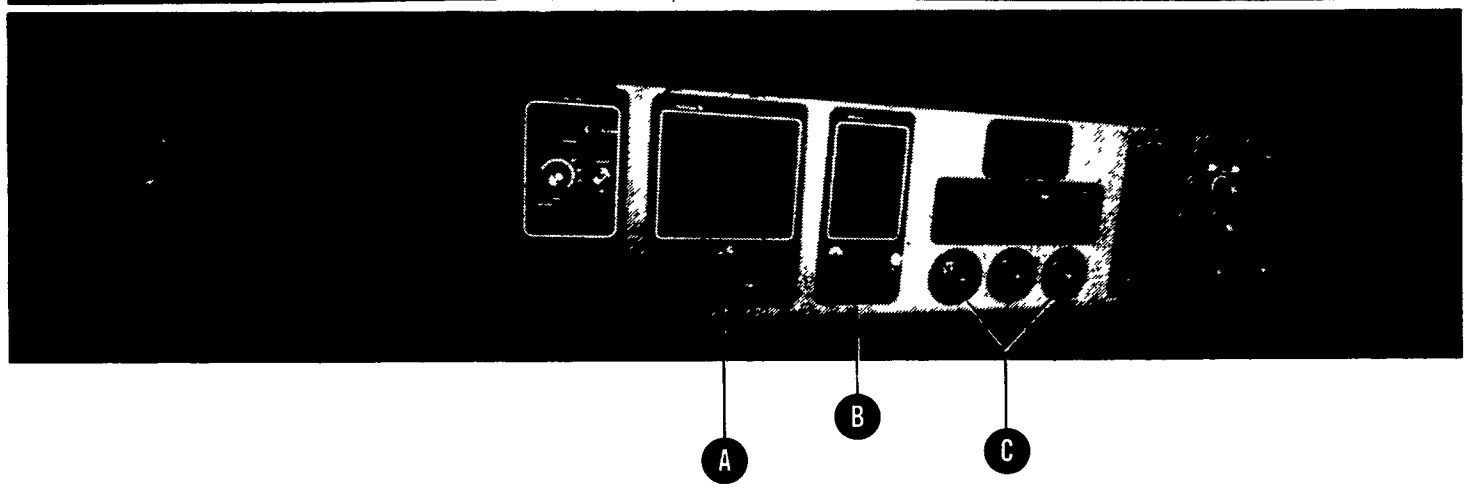
The Heart And Soul Of GLEANER



Our Monitoring System Lets You Concentrate On The Job At Hand.

You won't need to second-guess how well your combine's performing. Because in every GLEANER rotary combine, there's a state-of-the-art monitoring system that constantly watches key functions like the rear-feed conveyor and discharge impeller/chopper. When attention is needed, you'll be alerted either visually or audibly. Just another way GLEANER combines are engineered for better returns.

A Tattletale III

Monitors the speeds and signals when a function has slowed down or stopped.

B Tattletale V

This warning system monitors the engine and other important features and warns both by an audible alarm and warning light. It even tells you when the grain tank is full.

- Engine Overload Alarm
  Alerts you with an audible alarm when the engine rpm has dropped 100 rpm below rated speed. And tells you when the combine efficiency has cropped.
- Bin Level Monitor
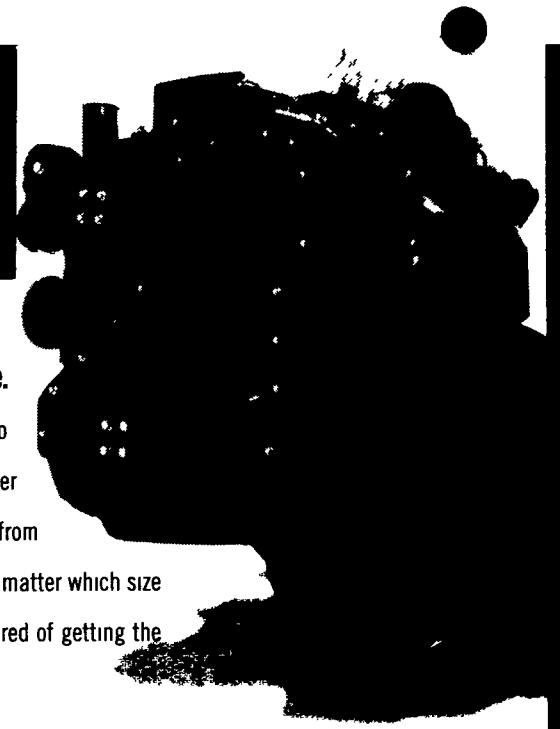
  Lets you know when the bin is full or near full. Sensors in the grain tank can be set to your specifications.

C Oil pressure, Oil/Collant Temperature and Voltage Meter

These gauges are in addition to the same functions monitored on Tattletale V but with separate sending units to give you added reliability and performance.



Cummins® Diesel Engine. With this engine, you get to choose the kind of horsepower you want Just take your pick from the 185 to 330 hp engine No matter which size you go with, you can be assured of getting the most power for your money

Drive/Propulsion System. A large, high-torque, split hydrostatic drive unit, coupled with a four-speed transmission and a choice of tire and ply sizes provide a powerful Drive/Propulsion System

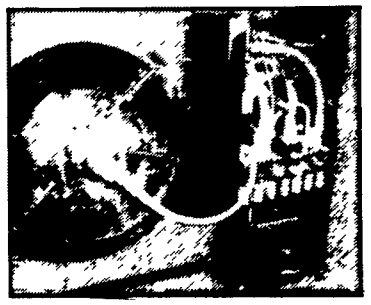
Hydraulic System. Electro-hydraulic controls were first introduced by GLEANER in 1972 and provide ease of operation with exceptional reliability



Touch control switches provide current to the hydraulic valve stack which activates (magnetizes) the solenoid(s) for immediate operation

Tough Enough To Take The Heat.

Our long-proved engines can take on even the toughest farming conditions. The turbocharged engines operate at lower rpm's to reduce fuel consumption and engine wear and tear. The engines are rear mounted for better weight distribution.

Direct fuel injection coupled with the proper intake port in the head provide top-notch performance with turbocharging and after-cooling to produce maximum power and torque.

Easy Access. A large tilt door hinged at the front opens for compartment that has enough room for all routine maintenance. There are also doors on the sides for convenience.

Hydrostatic Transmission.

All models come standard with the Sauer Sundstrand Series 90 Pump and Motor hydrostatic drive system. It sets the standard for transmissions and the only transmission that provides smooth power over the full range of three propulsion speeds on either forward or reverse travel. It utilizes the power of the engine to the fullest extent possible. Forward or reverse travel is controlled by a single lever that varies the engine speed or engine speed and the tractive effort output from the split hydrostatic transmission provides efficient and reliable performance.

servation Service, along with Ducks Unlimited Inc. and the federal Fish and Wildlife Service, the wetlands was constructed in a cost-share agreement.

While the bottom land was not officially wetlands previously, for four of the five years that it was rented out for cropping, the farmer couldn't get his tractor into the field. Once the tractor had to be pulled from the mud.

Everything that the Wizars have done has been for family, security and personal enjoyment.

The way he manages the work reflects on skills he's learned working at Bell Atlantic, and also from a desire to work with a good team.

He said he has one.

They hold staff meetings every Friday, he said, to review what went wrong and where they are going and what should be done for the coming week.

"We find that having the sessions keeps us going and moral up. We have, like a family situation," Richard said.

From the start, the business's operating data has been entered and followed by computer. In fact, that was one of Richard's earlier jobs — a computer programmer.

Richard said they used a lot of their own financing for the business, but also borrowed. "The need for capital is major. The requirement for funds is so great you can see why people fail," he said.

"We have good credit, we have some of our own resources, and with borrowing, we were able to step up the business to a pace we wanted," he said.

As of Jan. 1 this year, the business was incorporated, with Richard as the president and Sandra as vice president. It helps with liability.

But it also symbolizes how the two have grown to work together as a team, in hiring employees, and doing day-to-day activities.

Sandra said she really enjoys working at home. She said that in a sense, she has become "mom" around the business. She'll bring out cookies or refreshments to the crew, a cake if it's an employee's birthday, she'll run errands, and help out as needed.

"All the guys working here are young enough to be my kids," she said.

The Wizars open their place to Girl Scout and Boy Scout troops who like to visit to see the wetlands and look at the ponds and tour the aquaculture facilities.

Richard said he figures he puts in 10 to 12 hours per day, six days per week at the "retirement" business.

He never developed any "hobbies," he said. "My work was my hobby. There's no golf," he said. "Our kids are our hobby. We take vacations with them."

But even his work in technical development was not as rewarding as this he said.

With no pun intended, he said compared to working with the nursery and aquaculture, "Working in high tech is pretty 'dry.'"

Sandra said she always new that Richard loved to work outside.

"When I was working in an office and it was a nice day, I wanted to be outside, but when it was bad weather I was glad I could work inside," Richard said.

"This is the best of both worlds — 40 acres in the middle of a beautiful area. I work inside and outside, and we have a good team here.

"We're both in the early years of life and, as we go into the late years, hopefully it will be a business that employees will have for a long time."

Eastern Shore Showcase Sale

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — The Eastern Shore Showcase Sale was held recently at Solanco Fairgrounds in Quarryville, Pa.

Topping the Sale was a 2-year-old VG88 Leader out of Happy Herd Beautician consigned by Paul Welk, Quarryville, who bought her at a previous Showcase Sale as a calf. Buyer was Jill Harnish for $2,550.

Second high for the day was a September Sir Christopher calf out of an Astro Jet, bought by Missy Hostler for $1,650 and consigned by Mark and Kristina Welk of Quarryville.

Spring-Belle Choice Amanda, a bred 2-year-old out of a Southwind, was the 3rd high seller consigned by Tracy Webb, Street, Md. She sold for $1,600 to John and Ann Schenning, Bel Air, Md.

The 31 animals averaged $980 and there were 10 units of semen auctioned for an average of $20.25. A silent auctin of frozen embryos was also held.

Denny Remsburg, auctioneer, Bob Knutsen read pedigrees and Bud Debnam and Don Welk, ringmen kept the sale moving right along. Steve Wilson and Herman Cook were also on the sales staff.

PA DHIA Offers Same-Day Reports

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The advent of the laptop computer has revolutionized dairy record analysis to even greater heights. Not only does the PA DHIA technician have the ability to enter basic herd information into the laptop computer, but the technician now has the ability to create reports on test day.

At PA DHIA, we feel that having this information available in such a timely fashion, will create yet another way the dairymen can use our service to better manage their herds.

Currently the PA DHIA technicians enter herd data into the Quick Barn Sheet Program. After data collection is complete, the data collected will then be transferred or updated to the Westfalia Dairy Plan program.

The Westfalia Dairy Plan program processes milk, breed, herd health and vetterinary information for daily management and decision making. Dairy Plan gives you the information you need just the way you want it by creating your own reports or by using the several reports that come with the system.

Not only can Dairy Plan present herd data in a reprt format, but Dairy Plan can present data in a graph format. The sophistication of this program will allow the dairymen to select which program best suits their needs. Reports are lists of cows in useful ways. Graphs are visual charts of your data. Dairy Plan has many different options for customizing reports and graphs.

Vet checklists are also available through Dairy Plan at PA DHIA. A "vet checklist" can include activities such as pregnancy checks and dry off dates. Really anything that you want to do on a particular date can be added to the checklist.

"Triggered vet actions" can be added to "vet actions" that already exist. Specifically, you will tell Dairy Plan to schedule a pregnancy check for cows that are bred. At the same time, you have the ability to choose what time frame you want each cow to be checked for pregnancy.

Whatever your needs are with your dairy herd, PA DHIA is committed and prepared to offer you the latest technology in the computerized dairy industry.

Ask your PA DHIA technician to present to you some examples of the Westfalia Dairy Plan reports today.

Remember you have the ability to decide on what limits, how to sort and what columns to report.

Virtually you have the ability to have enough information left at your farm on test day to make strong financial decisions.

Rugged Lark, Gem Twist To Appear At Devon

DEVON (Chester Co.) — A pair of equine stars, each legendary in his discipline and both on farewell tours, will make an appearance at the Devon Horse Show and Country Fair, May 23-31.

Rugged Lark, the American Quarter Horse who as a 4-year-old earned the American Quarter Horse Association World Championship Show Superhorse title, will perform in exhibition during sessions on Saturday, May 24 through Tuesday, May 27.

Gem Twist, the American thoroughbred who won the title of Best Horse at the 1990 Stockholm World Championships and who has two Olympic silver medals to his credit, will appear Sunday evening and before the $50,000 Devon Grand Prix on Thursday evening, May 29.

The Devon Horse Show and Country Fair benefits Bryn Mawr Hospital and has, during the 10 decades of that association, donated more than $8.6 million to the Hospital.

Rugged Lark began his rise to stardom in the show arena, where he was recognized as a superior all-around horse, amassing awards in both english and western classes.

Rugged Lark won a second title as Superhorse as a 6-year-old, becoming the first two-time winner.

Last November, the AQHA presented to Rugged Lark its Silver Spur Award "in recognition of his contributions as an ambassador and entertainer." He is only the fourth horse in history to receive this prestigious award.

The Silver Spur Award recognizes the fame Rugged Lark has won for his performance of a bridleless freestyle dressage routine choreographed to music.

In 1996 Rugged Lark was the official American Quarter Horse ambassador for the United States Equestrian Team, and he was a special guest performer at last summer's Atlanta Olympics.

Rugged Lark has a wonderful disposition, especially considering that he is a breeding stallion. He is the sire of 370 registered quarter horses, including 113 which have won more than 6,000 points in AQHA-approved shows. He has seven offspring that have earned 11 AQHA World Championships and one AQHA Youth World Championship.

Rugged Lark will perform his world-famous ride, without benefit of bridle, on Saturday evening, on Sunday during both the afternoon and evening performances, on Monday evening and Tuesday afternoon at Devon. Rugged Lark's home is at Bo-Bett Farm in Reddick, Fla., where the 16-year-old bay stallion has a remarkable bond with his owner Carol Harris. He is trained and ridden in exhibition by Lynn Pittion-Rossillon.

Devon is Rugged Lark's first stop on his farewell tour, which includes appearances at Equitana USA in Louisville, Ky., the Hampton Classic in Bridgehampton, N.Y., the All American Quarter Horse Congress in Columbus, Ohio and the AQHA World Championship Show in Oklahoma City, Okla.

Quarterhorse, Superhorse Rugged Lark, shown here with his owner, Carol Harris, and his trainer, Lynn Pittion-Rossillon, will perform in exhibition at the Devon Horse Show and Country Fair.

Gem Twist has won the American Grandprix Association Championship four times, in 1987 and 1988 under Greg Best, in 1993 under Leslie Howard and in 1996 with Laura Chapot.

Gem Twist was bred and trained by six-time Olympian Frank D. Chapot of Neshanic Station, N.J.

The big, grey, 18-year-old thoroughbred won the AGA Horse of the Year title three times, in 1987, 1989 and 1992, setting a record.

In AGA competitions alone, Gem won almost a half-million dollars, and, overall, amasses almost three-quarters of a million

Gem, whose distinctive, bouncy gallop, tremendous jumping ability and incredible speed in jump-offs won him countless enthusiastic fans, will be ridden in exhibition on Sunday afternoon before the Grand Prix Thursday evening by Laura Chapot.

The Country Fair, an integral part of the Devon experience, boasts boutique shopping plus carnival rides and games.

Boutiques offer fine clothing, beautiful gold and silver jewelry, paintings and prints, handsome sculptures, garden furniture and ornaments, leather goods, collectibles and souvenirs.

All kinds of food is available, from hot dogs and hamburgers to gourmet dinners and the famous Devon fudge.

The Devon show grounds are located on Route 30 in Devon, Pa.

General admission for adults $5 if purchased in advance or $6 at the gate. Children under 12 are $2.50 in advance or $3 at the gate. Senior citizens are $4. Reserved seats are available at an additional cost.

Tickets may be purchased in advance at the show grounds. The ticket office is open from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Call (610) 688-2554.

This Is One Pig That Litters A Lot

Howard Miller of the Millbach Springs area in Lebanon County stands with one of his best sows and about 16 of her 24 7-week-old piglets, from an extraordinarily high litter of 28. Miller says that three were born dead, but he kept all but one of the rest alive by pouring diluted cow milk over the sow's belly for seven days, until those without constant access to the sow's nipples could start on other feed. He said he pretty much stayed with the litter during the entire seven days, sleeping in the barn, to make sure they lived. There were only three boars. Though the facilities are old and the cynical could suggest that pigletts from another sow could have wandered over, Miller says not. He was there and counted them as they were born. In addition, he called a neighbor to come witness the large litter that took seven hours to deliver. The longtime farmer, a former roadmaster (there's not many left) for Newmanstown, Miller is a widower who keeps up to 15 farrowing sows at his 80-tillable acre farm. He showed hogs as a 4-H youth at the longgone Sunset farmers market in northern Lebanon County and has been attempting to breed, raise and sell high-litter pigs. He said for the last dozen years he has been selling to one of the state's smaller slaughter houses — the Hazelton Packing Company. While not following a detailed breeding program, he said he keeps several females each year from from high-producing litters and has used every breed in his program. A hobbyist now, he said this was his sow's fourth litter and the previous litters were never under 18. Last year, using six sows, he raised 135 young. He says he plans to breed this high-litter throwing sow soon in hopes of a fifth litter.

Franklin Holstein Breeders Meet

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — All-Pennsylvania Award winners were recognized at the recent Franklin County Holstein Club annual Meeting and banquet.

Amy Hartman, St. Thomas, received the reserve all-Pa. summer yearling award for Parnell-View Stardust Derry. Kevin Horst, Chambersburg, received the reserve All-Pa. 5-year-old award for Mi-Rose Blackstar Shari.

Robert and Rhodena Eckstine, Mercersburg, received the honorable mention All-Pa. 100,000-lb. cow award for Meadow-Vu Starbuck Amy. Justin Burdette, Mercersburg, was recognized for the All-Pa. fall calf, Windy-Knoll-View JJB Pizow and the All-Pa. spring yearling, Windy-Knoll-View JJB Cha Cha and the reserve All-Pa. junior best three.

Burdette's fall calf has been designated the Jr. All-American fall calf and was also nominated All-American. His spring yearling was nominated Jr. All-American.

Harold F. Crider, Greencastle, was honored for 30 years of service to the Franklin County Holstein Board and Robert Mong, Waynesboro, received a plaque for his two years of service as club president. R.V. and S.V. Hollenshead, Mercersburg, had the high Franklin County registered Holstein for milk, butterfat, and protein combined.

Donald Harwood, Shippensburg, a national holstein distinguished junior member semi-finalist, spoke about his experiences in the DJM program and encouraged other Holstein youth to become involved in the program.

Antique Engine Show In Kempton

KEMPTON (Berks Co.) — The Antique Engine, Tractor and Toy Club, Inc. will hold its 12th Annual Show on May 30, 31 and June 1.

On Friday, set-up will begin at 8 a.m., with exhibitors running engines, tractors, and machinery all three days.

Poultry Seminar Canceled

Because of the A.I. outbreak, the poultry management and health seminar that was scheduled at Manheim for Monday, May 12, has been canceled. Poultrymen on the mailing list will also receive this notice by mail.

Nonpathogenic Virus Found

because of the length of time it will take to clean up and be sure the virus has been completely eradicated, the loss of income in the next months will be substantial. In addition, new birds will need to be purchased.

The loss from the flock in Lebanon County was set at $250,000.

While every precaution has been taken, the fear that other flocks in the area will test positive is very real. The memory of past devastation keeps the poultry industry alert.

"If the flocks now under surveillance all test negative, the industry will be relieved," said John Schwartz, Lancaster County agent. "If we can get through the next several weeks without another flock testing positive, it will show the biosecurity we have put in place as an industry is working. But we are always on alert."

Charles Brosius, Pennsylvania agriculture secretary, called for increased biosecurity in the state's $564 million poultry industry. "The state Agriculture Department is working closely with the poultry industry to test all flocks in a five mile radius from the affected flock," Borsius said. "It is vital that access to all poultry farms be restricted and that increased attention to sanitation be paramount."

He added that producers need to be aware that all visitors to the property must be monitored, and anyone not directly related to the care of the birds should be barred from the poultry houses. Proper biosecurity measures include wearing protective clothing, headgear, and footwear.

Officials expect to have some of the results of tests on other flocks back by as early as next week. But they expect it will be up to four weeks until all results are in because of the large number of flocks in the area.

A brochure on how to maintain effective biosecurity procedures is available from the Lancaster County extension office at (717) 394-6851.

Gerald and Carolyn Martin and family of Ephrata, Lancaster Co., purchased a pre-owned 1750 Harvestore® System for corn from Penn Jersey last fall. Most of the high moisture corn is fed in a total mixed ration and the Holstein herd maintains a 22,800-lb. average. According to Gerald, "We appreciate having fresh feed every day at the push of a button."

One could hardly bear the bawling.

It woke me from a deep sleep, in fact, this racket arising from the direction of the calf-raising area.

"What got out now?" was the question that passed through my not-awake brain. Blessedly, I fell back to sleep before I could further ponder how much mess it was going to make.

Next morning told the tale of the source of the bellowing. During my absence of the day before, calves had been moved from inside the calf nursery to larger, outside pens. And, though they were plenty old enough, one or two of them were vehemently protesting their graduation from bottle babies to weaned, adolescent heifers.

Their racket so continued to fracture the peace during morning calf feeding that I finally could stand the earsplitting noise assault any longer. And gave them all about a quarter-bottle of milk. That was enough. Peace, welcome peace, reigned within moments. Over the next few feedings, I decreased the milk in the bottles to the three-month old calves to where they barley got a taste. They were pacified, adapted to weaning — and left relative quiet reign during calf feeding chores.

Mothers have to do stuff like that. Compromise. Distraction. Trickery. Whatever it takes to get the job done.

Though there are no two-legged kids to oversee on-site any longer, my mothering responsibilities continue, albeit in a slightly different bent. Our abundance of four-legged "kids" around here has never allowed the empty-nest syndrome to become an issue. Like who has time to think about it?

It is rare to have less than 10 calves at a time in the bottle-feeding nursery, and not uncommon at certain times during the year to have up to 30 bawling babies, all wanting to be fed at the same time. Which was two minutes ago from whenever they hear "mother's" voice. Earplugs should be standard-issue equipment for the job.

Still, after 30-plus year, and more babies than I care to think about, the delivery of a new, healthy baby calf remains a thrill. And, never more so than when it has been a problem or a difficult delivery. To watch that sticky, slippery wet black-and-white infant raise its head and make a gutteral whimper still catches at my heart — a fairly regular reminder of just how precious life is.

And, while motherhood is our business year-round — since a cow will not continue to milk unless she calves at regular intervals — the farm seems to almost burst with motherhood during this Mother's Day season of the year.

Mother's Day came exactly two weeks early on the pond, when The Farmer noticed Mama Goose squirming and keeping her wings spread over her nest. Only on the following day did she deem the hatch ready to be shown to the world and launched the seven — every egg hatched — fat, fluffy day-old goslings on their first cruise.

Now they paddle about the ponds, root in the shallows for tasty goodies and run about the pasture nibbling grass, all while being herded safely between their parents. Eating machines these goslings are, whose sole purpose in life at this point is to gobble food and grow fast enough to be airborne by early August.

Leaving us — again — with an empty nest.

At least one other empty nest sits emptied somewhere around the farm. The "fruits" of it turn up at various places around the farm, borne on inch-long, matchstick legs and peeping with all the force their one-ounce size can muster. These two cream-colored and one beige, fluffy, bantam chicks hustled mightily to keep up with their mother hen as she leads them off in eating expeditions. 'Tis no easy job for the tiny tots, either, as they maneuver through [illegible] puddle swamps and manure-pack mountains.

While small in stature (she may weigh a pound, soaking wet), this hen is a fiesty giant of motherhood. When one of her mini-chicks managed to fall down into a cement block, one of our employees went to its rescue. For his trouble, John was attacked by this mighty mite of a mom, pecking at him for all she was worth.

So, at this annual celebration of Mother's Day, we offer our love and appreciation to moms who sheltered us under their loving wings and valiantly flogged those who might threaten us in any way.

Thanks, Mom!

Success With Reduced-Fat Cheeses

If you are a cheese lover like I am, reduced-fat cheeses are a great optioin; however, using these cheeses in hot dishes may not meet your expectations. With the reduction in fat content and changes in the recipe, the performance of reduced-fat cheese when heated is sometimes different from that of regular cheeses.

What are realistic expectations? Reduced-fat cheeses do not "age" as well as their full-fat counterparts. As a result, they are usually milder in flavor. Also, as fat content decreases, texture becomes firmer. Why? To reduce fat, some manufacturers add milk solids, while others use natural gums or fat substitutes.

Cooking With Reduced-Fat Cheese

The National Dairy Board suggests these tips when cooking with reduced-fat cheese.

* When making a sauce with reduced-fat cheese, keep heat exposure to a minimum and use grated, diced, or slivered cheese, adding it at the very end of the cooking. Remove the pan from the heat, and stir the food until the cheese melted. The addition of such condiments as mustard, or salsa, or various spices will complement the cheese's milk flavor. (If shredded, most reduced-fat cheeses will melt smoothly when layered in a casserole.)

* Top casseroles and baked pasta dishes with reduced-fat cheese near the end of the baking time, and heat until just melted. Serve immediately. Cheeses with very low fat contents take longer to melt and may produce a "skin" when baked.

* When broiling reduced-fat cheese slices on an open-faced sandwich, place the sandwich as far from the heat as possible, or use a lower broiling temperature.

* To "lighten" a favorite recipe without altering the flavor or texture of the dish, replace up to half of the full-fat cheese with a reduced-fat variety.

Storing Reduced-Fat Cheese

Because these cheeses have a shorter shelf life than traditional cheeses, it is important to keep them well wrapped and refrigerated. Also, they should be used as soon as possible.

Other Notes

Non-fat cheeses — the cheddar and American types — are best served "as is" in sandwiches, as a snack, on cheese boards, and in salads. They tend to have a very mild flavor. If desired, they can be enhanced with mustard, salsa, chutney, hot sauce, or spices or herbs. Serve them at room temperature for the best texture.

The new non-fat cream cheese, as the label recommends, should not be used in baked goods; however, it can be used very successfully in no-bake cheesebake and refrigerated desserts. It can also be turned into a creamy sauce when tossed with hot pasta.

Soft-Ripened Cheeses

Soft-ripened cheeses such as Brie and Camembert are naturally lower in fat than hard cheeses such as Parmesan and cheddar. Many of us are accustomed to seeing these cheeses served on trays. The natural, downy-white rind is edible, although many people will eat around it. Try topping your favorite bagel with a soft-ripened cheese. It makes a tasty and unusual accompaniment to Sunday brunch or a lunch time bowl of soup. Try tossing chunks of room-temperature Brie or Camembert with hot pasta. The cheese melts quickly and deliciously coats the pasta.

Cooking Up A Whole New You

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — A psychiatrist, an internationally known chef, a massage therapist, and a master gardener taught about 600 women "how to cook up a whole new you," at the annual Spring Awareness Day held at the Berks County Extension on May 1.

With humor, style, and expertise, Chef Tell Erhardt eased the fears of those who believe they have inferior cooking skills by showing how simple cooking can be.

Chef Tell demonstrated making a complete meal with recipes, none of which he measured the exact ingredients.

While this method might be uncomfortable for beginning cooks, Chef Tell assured them that recipes are only guidelines. From how to sharpen knives to making non-weeping egg whites, Tell made everything sound simple and easy.

"If you don't like an ingredient, don't add it. If you give the same recipe to 10 chefs, none will be the same," he said.

Raised in Germany, Chef Tell said that he grew up hungry the first seven years of his life. His family basically survived on care boxes from the U.S. until he took on his first cooking apprenticeship when he was 13 years old.

"I haven't been hungry since," Chef Tell said.

He's been widely known as an international chef, had his own cooking program on television, owned several restaurants, and is a cookbook author.

White Chocolate Mousse With Raspberry Sauce

½ cup sugar
4 egg whites, beaten stiff
8 ounces white chocolate, chopped course
½ cup water
2 cups heavy cream, whipped

Bring sugar and water to a boil and cook until reduced by half. When egg whites are beaten stiff, pour while beating the hot sugar syrup into it. This will cook the egg whites slightly and they will not weep. Let sit to cool. Whip the cream and then add the chocolate into the whipped cream. Fold in the egg whites.

To serve, combine and fill in glasses; serve with raspberry sauce.

Note: The mousse will hold in the refrigerator for two days as long as the raspberry sauce is not put on top. However, refrigerate in the container in which it will be served; otherwise, it will separate.

Raspberry Sauce

1 package frozen raspberries
¼ cup confectioners' sugar
1 tablespoon Kirsch

Defrost the berries and puree in a food mill. If you use a food processor or blender, strain to remove the seeds. Mix in the sugar and the Kirsch. More sugar may be added to taste, if desired. Chill.

Bad Mood?

Dr. Larry A. Rotenberg, director of psychiatry at the Reading Hospital and Medical Center, talked about clinical depression.

"Depression is an illness as much as physical illness," Rotenberg said in regards to the stigma that depression is often perceived as a weakness of character.

Depression affects millions of people with most episodes lasting one to two years if left untreated. The major complication of depression is suicide, which is one of the top 10 causes of death, with 30,000 annually in the U.S.

While some people might classify depression as being in a bad mood, Rotenberg said that if a person feels depressed for two weeks, it is not a fluctuation in mood but is depression.

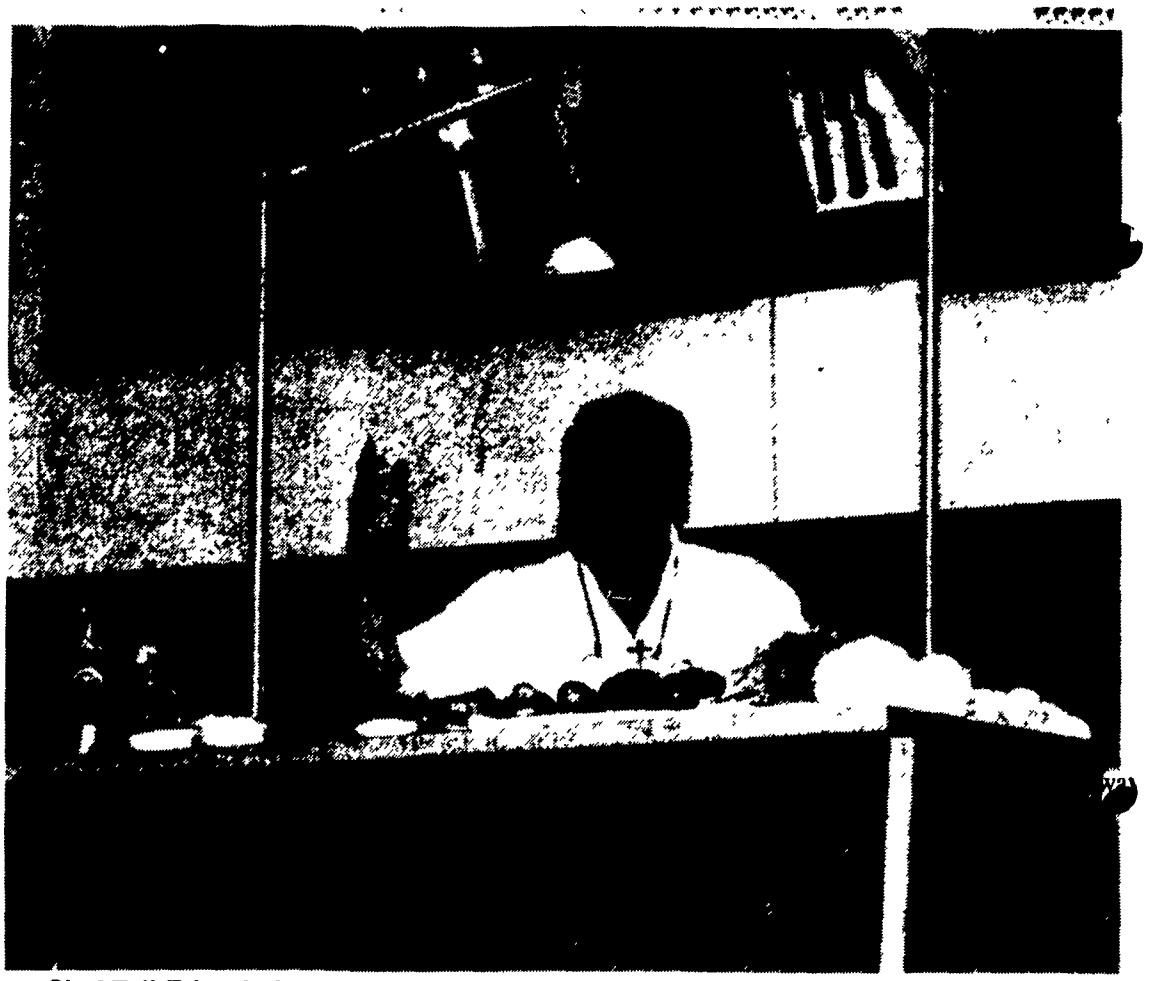
Some of the symtoms of depression include sleep disturbances, especially awaking early in the morning, inability to experience pleasure, and weight loss.

Manic depression refers to extreme ups and downs in feelings.

Rotenberg talked about the new medicines that have revolutionized the care of the depressed by helping them to obtain a normal life without hospitalization.

Generally those suffering depression are not hospitalized unless it is severe and they sense abandoment or isolation. If a patient is hospitalized, the average stay is only eight days. Studies have shown that a large proportion of people suffer from depression following a heart attack. The first contact should be the family doctor.

Many lives have been transformed by therapy. While doctors are learning more about depression and its causes, the brain is still considered complex and a lot of questions remain unanswered.



Chef Tell Erhardt, internationally known chef, restaurateur and cookbook author, fascinates the audience with his fun-filled cooking demonstrations.

Gardening For Small Places

Gardening brightens peoples' outlooks. Pat Magala, Penn State Berks County master gardener, demonstrated potting plants in containers.

"Look at the advantages. Containers are portable—you can arrange and rearrange them as often as you like outside and bring them indoors during winter months. They add color, interest, and variety to the architecture of gardens large and small, whether your garden is a balcony, patio, or an estate," Magala said.

Using a strawberry pot and an open container lined with sheet moss, Magala showed the steps necessary for planting with different soil mixtures and with a variety of plants.

If you are interested in container gardening, check with your county Penn State Extension for written materials to help with planting and making your own potting mix.

Massage Therapy

Amanda Millar, nationally certified massage therapist, explained the therapeutic massage.

She said, "In times past, massage was recongnized as an integral part of our health care of the healing process. With today's more holistic approach, recognition is being restored and massage is once again becoming an essential part of caring for one's health and wellness."

Millar demonstrated how massage is done to enhance better

Fay Strickler Marks 25 Years With Extension

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Fay Strickler spent May 1 the same as she did 25 years ago. She attended the Spring Awareness Day sponsored by the Berks County Extension Homemakers. Only this year, the group celebrated Strickler's 25 years as extension home economist with a decorated cake.

"My first day on the job 25 years ago began when Mae Beiler Hostettler introduced me at the homemakers' day," Strickler said.

But the annual day-long seminar is only one of the many things that have remained consistent, and even that underwent a name change. Formerly called Homemakers' Day, the name had to be changed to become more inclusive of all genders so it became Spring Awareness Day. Despite the name change, the audience of about 600 persons is predominately female.

Strickler's title also changed. Formerly called extension home economist, her official title is now extension educator of family and consumer sciences.

The title is quite a mouthful, and most Berks countians still call her "our home economist."

"But young people who are not familiar with extension services aren't familiar with the term home economics because few colleges offer it. I need to explain that it is informal education for individuals and families to help improve the quality of life," Strickler said.

When Strickler first began in 1972, clothing construction was a large part of her duties. Now the extension no longer emphasizes sewing.

To Strickler's chagin, she sees many young people growing up without "life skills" such as the ability to sew on buttons or mend a seam. These skills can save big dollars for many families.

She also had 14 people working under her in the Expanded Food Nutrition and Education Program (EFNEP). Through restructuring of extension services, this responsibility has been designated to someone else.

State and national priorities for the extension is to improve the quality and life for families. This includes instruction on diet changes, food and safety issues, and training for child development and child-care providers.

While Strickler's primary work is within Berks County, it has not been limited to it. In fact, Strickler just completed a three-year term as vice president for professional development with the National Extension Association of Family and Consumer Sciences (NEAFCS).

NEAFCS meets annually in different states. This year about 1,200 attended the national conference held in Providence, Rhode Island.

NEAFCS is a professional organization for family living educators and provides opportunity to hear nationally-known speakers, reveiw network with other extension agents, share programming ideas, work with nationally-known companies, and work with other states.

Strickler's responsibilities with the national organization required her to negotiate with nationally known speakers, serve as a reporter for the national newsletter Comminique, plan meetings, attend board meetings, and develop four task forces responsible for programing, registration, arrangements, and exhibits.

Previous to her three-year term as vice-president, Strickler was active in many different aspects of NEAFCS. "It's a great opportunity to use leadership skills," Strickler said.

"It's a shot in the arm to come back with ideas and good information in which the Berks County people can benefit," she said.

Credits for certification are offered through NEAFCS. Extension agents are required to earn 75 credits every three years.

(Turn to Page B7)

For 25 years, Fay Strickler has been esteemed by Berks Countians as "our home economist." But many are unaware that Strickler also works on the national and international levels promoting extension programing for individuals, families, and communities.

Homestead Notes

Amanda Millar, nationally certified massage therapist, demonstrates therapeutic massage on her husband.

functioning of the muscular, skeletal, circulatory, nervous, respiratory, digestive, and urinary systems.

She demonstrated some simple techniques for self massage of the craniosacral system and breathing exercises to encourage relaxation when under stress.

Scholarship

In other business, the homemaker's committee of the Berks County Extension presented a $500 scholarship to Michelle Fournier, who is attending Albright College and plans a career in pediatric oncology.

Also recognized for the work they completed while serving on the Family Living advisory committee, which plans the Spring Awareness Day and other special events, were Mary Binkley, Stella Richards, Sylvia Updegrove, and Holly Stutzman.

In addition to Penn State Extension, the day-long seminar was partially funded by UGI Utilities, Inc., and by CoreStates Bank.

A Tribute To Mothers

Mamma's Cooking

Throughout the centuries, people have expressed their love for mothers in varied ways. Perhaps the most vivid recollections are those associated with food. Today's recipes reflect the culinary influence mothers, grandmothers, and mother-in-laws have for many generations.

Thanks to our readers for sharing these treasured recipes and for including little tidbits of information about your heritage. Pictures, too, pay special tribute to your mothers, grandmothers, and mother-in-laws.

Martha Bowser is Granny to granddaughter Marlene Freehling.

POTATO BUNS

1 cup warm mashed potatoes
1 cup warm potato water
3 eggs
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup wheat germ
1 cup sugar
½ cup shortening
1 package yeast
4-6 cups flour

Dissolve yeast in warm potato water. Mix all and let stand overnight. Roll out 1-inch thick and cut with round cookie cutter. Put on cookie sheet and let rise. Bake at 400 degrees.

I appreciate my mother, Betty Kreider Funk, more and more the older I become. In spite of her dislocated hip, she has raised five wonderful children, worked by dad's side on the farm, loves the outdoors, reads, sews, and reupholsters furniture. She truly is a Proverbs 31 woman, "Her children arise and call her blessed."

SCALLOPED POTATOES

½ cup Miracle Whip salad dressing
½ cup milk
1 can cream of mushroom soup
½ stick butter, melted
1½ cups shredded cheddar cheese
½ cup onion, chopped
3 pounds small potatoes, boiled, skinned, cubed
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ cup bread crumbs

Mix salad dressing, milk, soup, butter, onion, salt and pepper with 1 cup cheese. Pour mixture over potatoes and mix gently. Pour into lightly buttered casserole dish. Top with remaining cheese and add bread crumbs.

Bake at 350 degrees in preheated oven for 30-45 minutes or until well heated.

My granny, Martha Bowser, loves to make scalloped potatoes. She started to make these 11 years ago. She helped to make enough for 525 people when her granddaughter married.

Granny just celebrated her 89th birthday. Granny goes with a walker, but still likes to help get meals ready. She also loves to sew and watch Wheel of Fortune.

She lives on the family farm with her husband Roy E. Bowser. She has been at the farm for 66 years and has always helped with the chores. Granny liked feeding the calves and pigs. Her family milks 100 cows today.

To all, Martha Bowser is Granny.

"M" is for the million things she gave me,
"O" means only that she's growing old,
"T" is for the tears were shed to save me,
"H" is for her heart of purest gold;
"E" is for her eyes, with love-light shining
"R" means right, and right she'll always be,
Put them all together, they spell "Mother",
A word that means the world to me.

"M" is for the mercy she possesses,
"O" means that I owe her all I own,
"T" is for her tender sweet caresses,
"H" is for her hands that made a home;
"E" means everything she's done to help me,
"R" means real and regular, you see,
Put them all together, they spell "Mother,"

PUMPKIN CAKE

1 yellow cake mix, reserve 1 cup
1 egg
½ cup brown sugar
4 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup sugar
½ cup chopped nuts
½ cup butter, melted
1 large can pumpkin
1 teaspoon pumpkin spice
⅔ cup milk
¼ cup butter
Whipped topping, if desired

Mix together cake mix, ½ cup melted butter, and 1 egg. Press into 9x13x2-inch pan. Mix together pumpkin, brown sugar, milk, 4 beaten eggs, cinnamon, and pumpkin spice. Pour over batter in pan. Mix reserved cake mix, ¼ cup butter, and chopped nuts. Sprinkle over pumpkin in pan. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour. Serve with whipped topping if desired.

My mohter, Janet Freehling, loves to make pumpkin. It's very delicious. Janet is the wife of Lester Freehling. She has four children and two grandsons. She lives on the family's 100 cow dairy farm. She milked cows for 40 years until she had to have a knee replacement due to arthritis. She still helps with the young cattle and feeding the chickens. Also loves to pick up the grandsons from the school bus every afternoon. She cooks for nine people every night at suppertime..

She's a great mother who always will go out of her way for others.

MOLASSES CANDY

2 cups sugar
1 cup water
2 tablespoons vinegar

Boil sugar, water, and vinegar for 5 minutes, add:

1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon vanilla
2 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons Karo molasses

Cook mixture to hard ball stage for about 25 minutes. Pour into round 9-inch greased pan. When hard, break into mouth-sized pieces.

Mom, thank you for everything you have done for me. Happy Mother's Day!

Enter Cow Mania Drawing

June Dairy Month is almost here. It is time to enter Lancaster Farming's annual Cow Mania Drawing.

Select your favorite recipe, which must include a substantial amount of at least one dairy product. Dairy ingredients include milk, cream, sour cream, whipped cream, butter, yogurt, buttermilk, dry milk, ice cream, and any hard and soft cheeses. Please check your recipe carefully. Margarine and on-dairy substitutes such as whipped topping do not qualify as dairy products.

The recipe may be for an appetizer, dip, soup, bread, main dish, vegetable, dessert, beverage, snack or salad.

Clearly print or type your recipe. Be sure to give accurate measurements, temperatures, times, and sizes of baking dishes to use. We reserve the right to disqualify entries if these guidelines are not followed.

The differenece between this contest and the weekly recipes is that we ask you to include a few paragraphs about yourself and your family. Although it is not required, please include a photography of you with your family, which we will publish with your recipe. Photos will be returned if you write your name and address on the back of the photo.

Look for a picture of the prizes in upcoming issues of this paper. Winners will be selected by a drawing. Although not every person can win a prize, readers enjoy the recipes and reading tidbits of information about the contributor.

Only one entry per family allowed. Be sure to include your name, full address, and phone number on the recipe. If you win and your full address is not included with the recipe, we cannot mail you the prize.

Send your recipe, photo, and accompanying information to Lou Ann Good, Lancaster Farming Cow Mania Drawing, P.O. Box 609, 1 E. Main St., Ephrata, PA 17522.

Send entries immediately. Deadline for the receipt of entries is June 2.

Strickler will be working on the international level, beginning this month. From May 15 to June 6, she will go to Poland with a team of other home economists. She will help develop professional growth in extension programing for individuals, families, communitities and to expand cultural awareness.

Extension has always been a viable influence in Strickler's life. She grew up in Denver, Lancaster County. Her mother, Florence Binkley, was a 4-H leader. Strickler participated in foods, clothing, and community 4-H clubs and qualified for state competition.

"My mother was an outstanding cook. Because she was a school teacher I learned to make my own lunch and help with cooking.

Through that exposure, Strickler said, "I always knew I wanted to do something in home economics.

When she went to college, she was appalled to see how little some of her classmates knew about cooking.

"I saw such crazy things such as them adding water to bacon grease," Strickler said.

While studying for a bachelor of science degree in home economics from Albright College, Strickler was uncertain in which field she wanted to concentrate. While in school, she dabbled in part-time jobs in ceramics, restaurant cooking, hospital dietitics, merchandizing in Philadelphia, and even a fashion study tour in Europe.

But after graduation, she found her niche in demonstrating gas appliances for UGI. After 10 years with UGI, Strickler applied for the Berks County Extention home economist position.

"The most enjoyable aspect of my job is providing good, educational information and working with people. I have the unique opportunity to see people grow, to see 4-H children become leaders, to see adults grow in self confidence and skills," Strickler said.

During her 25 years, Strickler has weathered reductions in staffing and increased demands.

"The opportunity to work in business and education gave me a combination of skills that helped in my national NEAFCS assignments," Strickler said.

On May 1, Fay Strickler celebrates 25 years as Berks County extension home economist. With her is Mae Beiler Hostettler who formerly worked with extension in Berks County and is now in Armstrong County.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address.

QUESTION — Donald Love, Somerset, would like recipes for making corned beef, watergate salad, tomato butter, cornbread that uses creamed corn, which makes it stay moist like cake not dry and crumbly. He'd also like recipes for fried rice with eggs, mincemeat, and lime pickles made with garden lime not citrus fruit.

QUESTION — Violet Cassner, Newburg, lost a recipe for ham baked in Coco Cola. She recalls that the ham was soaked in Coco Cola overnight in the refrigerator, and then baked with a caramel glaze.

QUESTION — A reader is looking ro a recipe for making dandelion wine.

QUESTION — Evelyn Shafer, Perkiomenville, wants to know if squash and zucchini can be canned. She would like a pickled and other recipes for using squash and zucchini.

QUESTION — Mary Hartman, Narvon, wanted a recipe for gluten-free bread, rolls or any baked items using rice, tapioca or potato flour.

QUESTION — Sarah Clark of Everett is looking for a recipe for a Preserved Cake; Mocha Fudge Brownies using mocha flavoring; Cheesecake Fudge, and Texas Hurricane Cake.

QUESTION — Joanne Lomas, Morgantown, writes that when she was a little girl growing up in Philadelphia, her parents used to get a wonderful bread from a Lithuanian Bakery (she thinks). The bread crust was very dark and shiny and the inside was moist, sour, and gray in color. It was delicious. Does anyone have a recipe for such a loaf?

QUESTION — The Greene Co. New York Dairy Princess wants recipes for fudge in the following flavors: coffee, cranberry, and raspberry. She purchased these flavors at the Pa. Farm Show.

QUESTION — Helen Feeg, Robesonia, would like a recipe to make a fruit only fruit spread sweetened only with pure fruit juice and citrus pectin. Her husband is a diabetic and he likes these jams better than those sweetened with artificial sweetner.

QUESTION — Stephanie Huger, Meyerstown, is looking for a recipe for pumpkin strudel with poppy seeds and sour cream or cream cheese. Her grandmother from Hungary made it, but Stephanie lost the recipe.

QUESTION — Christine Mansberger, Shippensburg, would like the recipe for a cookie called Five O'Clock Teas, which were made at the Valley Pride Bakery in Shippensburg until they went out of business.

QUESTION — Cel Brown of West Chester wants the recipe for a bread mix like the ones in the store called Daily Bread Company's. These mixes can be made ahead of time.

ANSWER — Louise Graybeal, Renick, W.V., wanted a recipe for flaky pop tarts. Thanks to a reader from Hagerstown, Md., for sending a recipe.

Pop Tarts

1 cup margarine
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon baking soda
3½ cups all-purpose flour
2 cups brown sugar
½ cup water
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon cinnamon

Mix shortening, sugar, and eggs. Stir in water and vanilla. Stir in flour, soda, salt, and cinnamon. Make a thin patty the size of a slice of bread. Place ½ teaspoon of favorite filling in center. Cover with an equal sized patty. Slightly crimp edge. Bake at 375 degrees for 10-12 minutes. Cool and store. When ready for toasting, place gently into toaster. Toast just until warm.

ANSWER — Mrs. D. Fisher, Lewistown, wanted a recipe for breakfast pop tarts. Thanks to Margaret Strause, Leespont, for sending a recipe.

Homemade Toaster Tarts

¾ cup shortening
1¼ cups sugar
2 eggs
1 tablespoon milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder

Mix together all the ingredients. Roll dough and cut into squares. Place 1 tablespoon strawberry jam on each square and cover with another square. Use a fork to press edges together. Bake in 375-degree oven until lightly browned. Any type filling and any shape may be used.

ANSWER — Donna Diehl, Mt. Airy, Md., wanted a recipe for Amish Macaroni Salad. Thanks to Pat Birley, New Park, and others for sending recipes.

Amish Macaroni Salad

½ pound macaroni, cooked and drained
3 hard-boiled eggs, diced
½ bunch celery, diced
1 carrot, diced
1 cup chopped sweet pickles and juice
1 small onion, diced

Mix together all these ingredients in a large bowl. Combine the following ingredients and whisk until smooth and pour over the macaroni mixture.

½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup salad dressing
1 cup milk or cream

Thoroughly mix dressing into macaroni mixture and cover and refrigerate at least six hours.

ANSWER — Donna Diehl, Mt. Airy, Md., wanted a recipe for coconut cream pie. Thanks to Fran Pierman, Stockton, N.J., for sending a recipe for a pie that neither weeps nor does the crust become soggy.

Coconut Cream Pie

¾ cups sugar
¼ cup cornstarch
½ teaspoon salt
1 envelope unflavored gelatine
3 cups milk
4 egg yolks
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon vanilla
1 cup heavy cream
1 cup coconut

In a saucepan, combine sugar, cornstarch, salt, and gelatine. Mix well then beat in milk and egg yolks.

Cook mixture over low heat stirring constantly until thickened about 15 minutes.

Stir in butter, vanilla, and coconut. Cover surface of custard with plastic wrap and chill.

Whip cream and fold into custard. Spoon custard into baked and cooled pie crust.

Make meringue out of the egg whites and spread over custard carefully, sealing meringue to edge of pie crust to prevent shrinking and weeping.

Bake until delicate brown, 8 to 12 minutes. Cool at room temperature.

ANSWER — George Hile, Millmont, wanted a recipe for beef jerky. Thanks to Margaret Strause, Leesport, for sending a recipe that has been passed down through four generations of her husband's family.

Beef Jerky

10 pounds lean beef, cut into ½ -inch strips
4 tablespoons salt
4 tablespoons sugar
3 teaspoons pepper
1 teaspoon garlic powder
1½ teaspoon Liquid Smoke
6 teaspoons monosodium glutamate (Accent)

Mix thoroughly. Put into crock and let stand for 48 hours. Stir well. Let stand for 24 hours.

Spread in single layer on cookie sheets and dry in 125-degree oven for 14 to 17 hours or until dry and dark brown.

ANSWER — Patsy Wildeson, Chambersburg, wanted a recipe to make rock candy. Thanks to a reader from Hagerstown, Md., for sending this recipe.

Suckers or Rock Candy

1 cup sugar
¾ cup corn syrup
¼ teaspoon peppermint extract
¼ cup butter
¼ teaspoon food coloring

In a heavy pan bring sugar, syrup, butter to boil, stirring. Add coloring, stir to blend. Continue cooking to 265 degrees, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat; stir in flavoring. Place sticks on cookie sheet. Drop by tablespoons on stick. Let harden.

You may use any flavoring desired. These can be decorated by using a mixture of egg whites and confectioners' sugar.

RED VELVET CAKE

½ cup shortening
1½ cups sugar
2 eggs
2 tablespoons cocoa
2 ounces red food coloring
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup buttermilk
2½ cups cake flour
1 teaspoon vinegar
1½ teaspoons baking soda

Cream shortening, sugar, and eggs. Add cocoa, food coloring, salt, vanilla, buttermilk, and cake flour. Mix and fold in vinegar and baking soda last. Bake at 350 degrees for 25-30 minutes.

Icing:

1 cup milk
5 tablespoons flour
1 cup butter
1 cup confectioners' sugar

Combine ingredients in saucepan and cook until smooth.

My mom is very special to me. Whenever I need her, she is always there for me. Thanks, Mom! Happy Mother's Day. I love you!

MOTHER'S GINGERBREAD

½ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
1 egg, beaten
2½ cups flour, sifted
1½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
1 cup molasses (sorghum)
1 cup hot water

Cream shortening and sugar. Add beaten egg. Measure and sift dry ingredients. Combine molasses and hot water. Add dry ingredients alternately with liquid, small amount at a time, and beat after each addition until smooth. Bake in greased and floured 9x9x2-inch pan in 350 degree oven for 45 minutes. Yields: 16 portions.

Mother topped her gingerbread with powdered sugar, if in a hurry or with powdered sugar and coconut browned in the oven, Daddy's favorite, or with whipped cream, our favorite. Mother whipped this cream from the very top of Buttercup's milk, our last family milch cow. There was no need to stabilize Buttercup's cream. If you weren't careful, you would have butter!

WITH LOVE, ON MOTHER'S DAY

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

Most every morning my husband brings me asparagus to freeze. We have shared some with our children who visited us recently.

Cindy came from Texas and stayed here with her family for four days. Their two-year-old son is very inquisitive and all of my little decorations in the living room had to be moved to higher ground. The dried flower arrangements do not like to be upset. The small antique music box and the paperweights were moved too.

One day our daughter and her son from New Jersey came to play with the cousins. They not only run around outside but also in the basement. The youngest girl simply loves the brightly colored plastic sliding board. They can get very noisy as they chase each other and even the big rugs get moved.

The other Sunday we hunted a kite flying demonstration near Reading. We never did find it even though we spent an hour trying to find it. I've often wished that I had a kite as we never had any at my home when I was growing up.

So, we went to a relative's 81st birthday party. His daughter and son-in-law from Germany were staying with him for a few weeks. I had taken along with me an 1812 book written in old German script as I had hoped they could read it for me. We think it is a record book from the Oregon Mill.

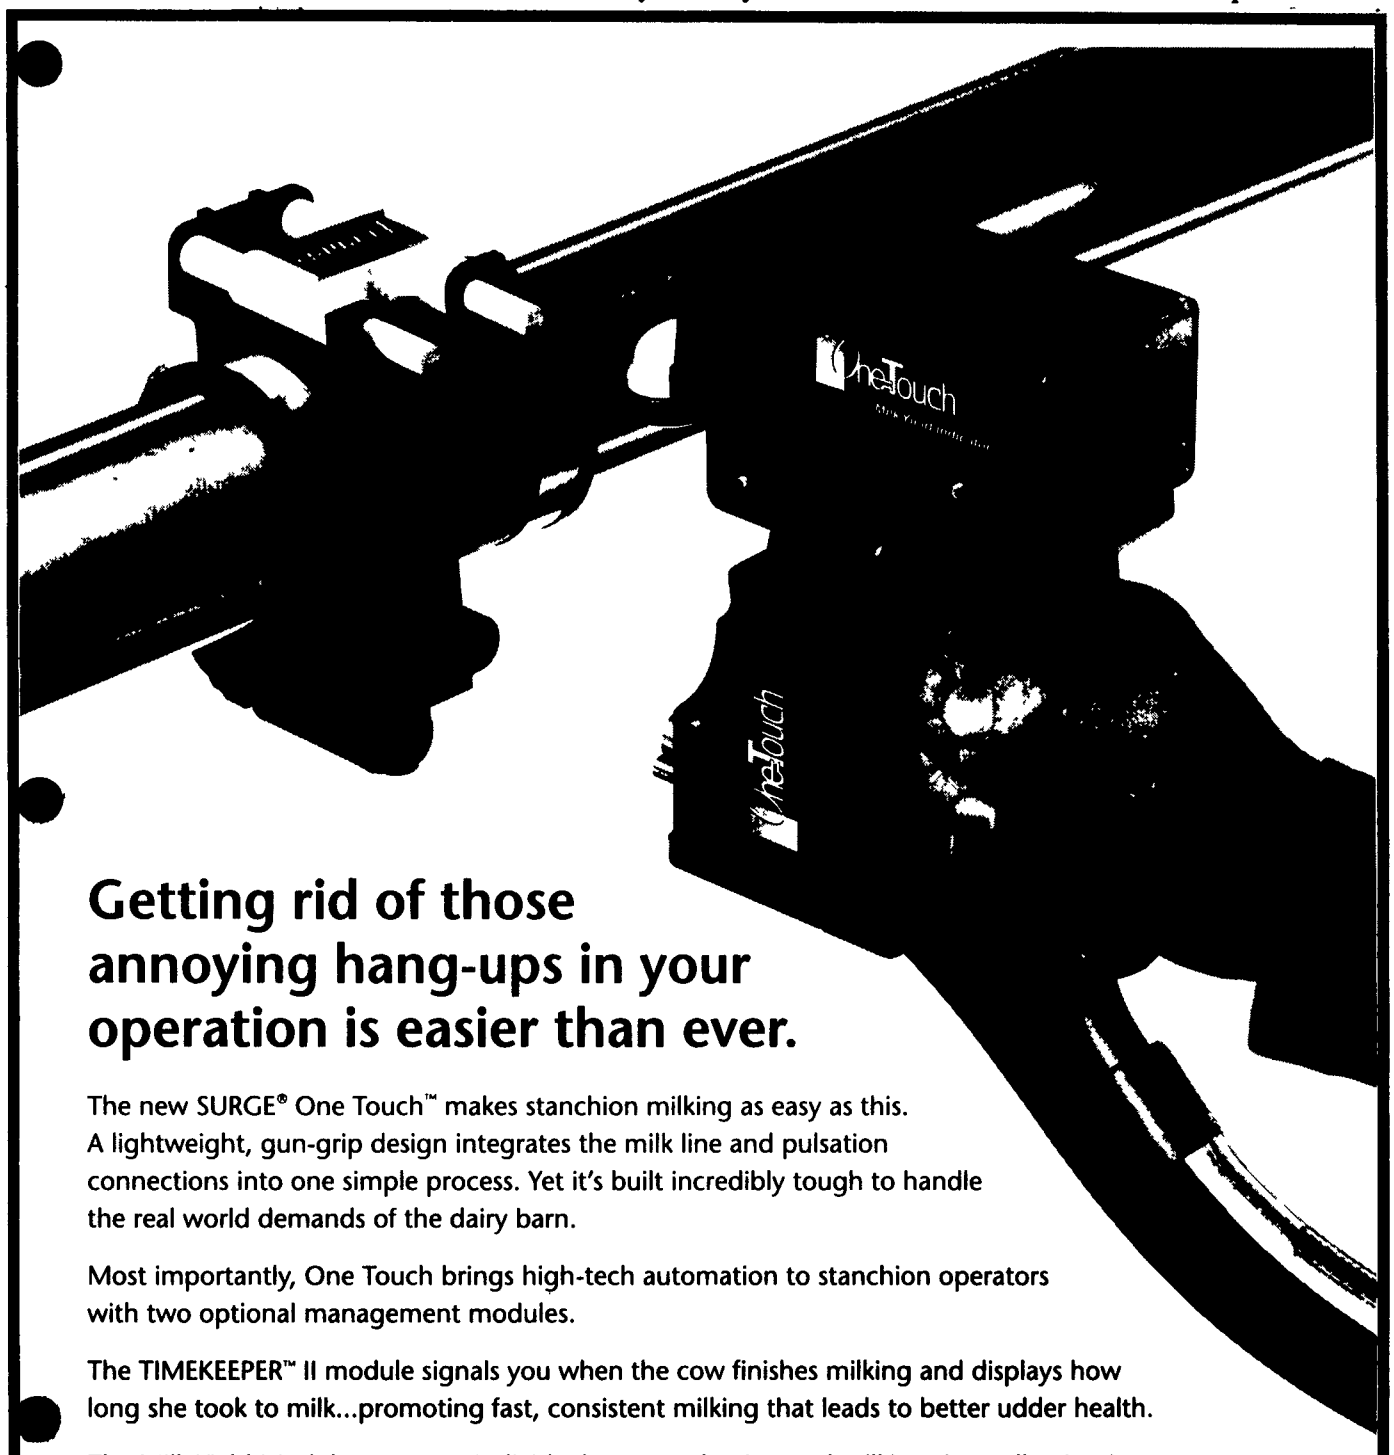
It is so colorful outside just now as I saw a red cardinal sitting on a white dogwood tree and a blue bird sitting on the pink dogwood. The Judas tree has burst into lavendar blossoms also. The pink weeping cherry tree is now dropping its blossoms and soon my white and pink tulips will drop their petals too.

got milk?™

PITTSBURGH (Allegheny Co.) — A new and exciting tool is now available to help dairy farmers promote the dairy industry in their community. The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program is offering a dairy promotion kit, complete with everything needed for an effective display, to dairy farmers.

Based on the national "got milk?" advertising campaign, each kit provides a "how-to" guide. The guide includes a display design, creative ways to use materials, dairy trivia, state dairy statistics, and additional promotion ideas. Each kit features magnets, bumper stickers, pencils and unique posters, all sporting the "got milk?" logo. In addition, a table covering, a banner, recipe leaflets and door prizes are included in the kit.

To order a "got milk?" promotion kit or other promotional items, call toll-free 1-800-292-MILK.



Getting rid of those annoying hang-ups in your operation is easier than ever.

The new SURGE® One Touch™ makes stanchion milking as easy as this. A lightweight, gun-grip design integrates the milk line and pulsation connections into one simple process. Yet it's built incredibly tough to handle the real world demands of the dairy barn.

Most importantly, One Touch brings high-tech automation to stanchion operators with two optional management modules.

The TIMEKEEPER™ II module signals you when the cow finishes milking and displays how long she took to milk...promoting fast, consistent milking that leads to better udder health.

The Milk Yield Module measures individual cow production and milking time, allowing instant analysis of each cow's performance.

By putting today's production information at your fingertips, the SURGE One Touch lets you capture your cow's performance in the palm of your hand.

Meet Homer And Albert — The 3,000-Pound Pets

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

FREDERICK, Md. — "What are they?" is the question people ask Ernie Jackson most frequently when they see Homer and Albert.

"I've had people ask me if they were yaks," said the Frederick ox teamster, "they just can't figure out what they are, and I like to let them guess."

What they are, in fact, are a pair of mammoth-sized Brown Swiss steers that were kept around the farm. Now 12 years old, the pair, called oxen because they have been started under yoke, have a combined weight of more than 6,000 pounds, and stand almost six feet at the withers. Yet because they have been pets all their lives, Homer and Albert are as tame and gentle as a pair of kittens.

Ernie acquired the steers when his niece, Daphne Sigler, asked him if he was interested in a few bull calves. Daphne and her husband Robert milk a herd of registered Brown Swiss cows. Ernie took three calves with the idea he would feed and slaughter them. But this pair were always together, and, according to Ernie, "I just fell in love with them. And so I kept them." That was the start of a 12 year friendship between Ernie and his team.

When they were five years old, Homer and Albert made their debut at the Great Frederick Fair. They were housed in box stalls in the beef building, where people could get a good look at them. They didn't cause much of a sensation at first, Ernie said, because people didn't know they were there. Then a local newspaper did a small feature on the team. "The next day, people were asking for them, they wanted to know where they were," said Ernie. That was the start of an illustrious career for the oxen.

Word spread quickly about Homer and Albert, the gentle team. Now not only are they booked well in advance for the Frederick Fair, Montgomery Agricultural Fair, and the Maryland State Fair, they have also been invited to the state fairs in Richmond, Virginia and in Delaware. They attend many community shows around Maryland, and lead the parade at the Brown Swiss Futurity show each August. They have even been on TV, on the local news and in 1995, on the Willard Scott show nationally.

Each day the oxen eat four bales of grass hay between the two of them, and about half of a five-gallong bucket of grain. They are housed on an 11-acre pasture with a shed so they can get in out of the weather. Ernie removes their halters when he turns them out, for fear they would get caught on something. Although they are surrounded with board fence, "You could keep them in with baling rope, almost," says Ernie of the docile Brown Swiss.

They do have rings in their noses; Ernie put them in when they were young, to control them if the vet needed to treat them. They have brass horn knobs. Those are primariliy to protect them from each other when they are penned together at shows.

Although their huge horns look intimidating, the animals don't use them in an aggressive manner at all. The only times you really have to watch them, according to Ernie, are when they throw their heads around because of flies, and when he is grooming them. Once when Ernie was brushing out Albert's coat, Homer started to rub up against him. He wanted some attention, too. Within a minute, Ernie felt himself lifted up into the air. He tried to reach the ground with his feet, but couldn't. He was suspended in the air by his belt, which was hooked firmly on Homer's horn. Ernie had to swing himself to the side of the pen, where he could step up onto a rail, and finally unhook himself.

"When I brush them now, I tie them up separately when we're at the fairs, 'cause, well, that's quite a problem to get off the horn when your feed are off the ground," said Ernie.

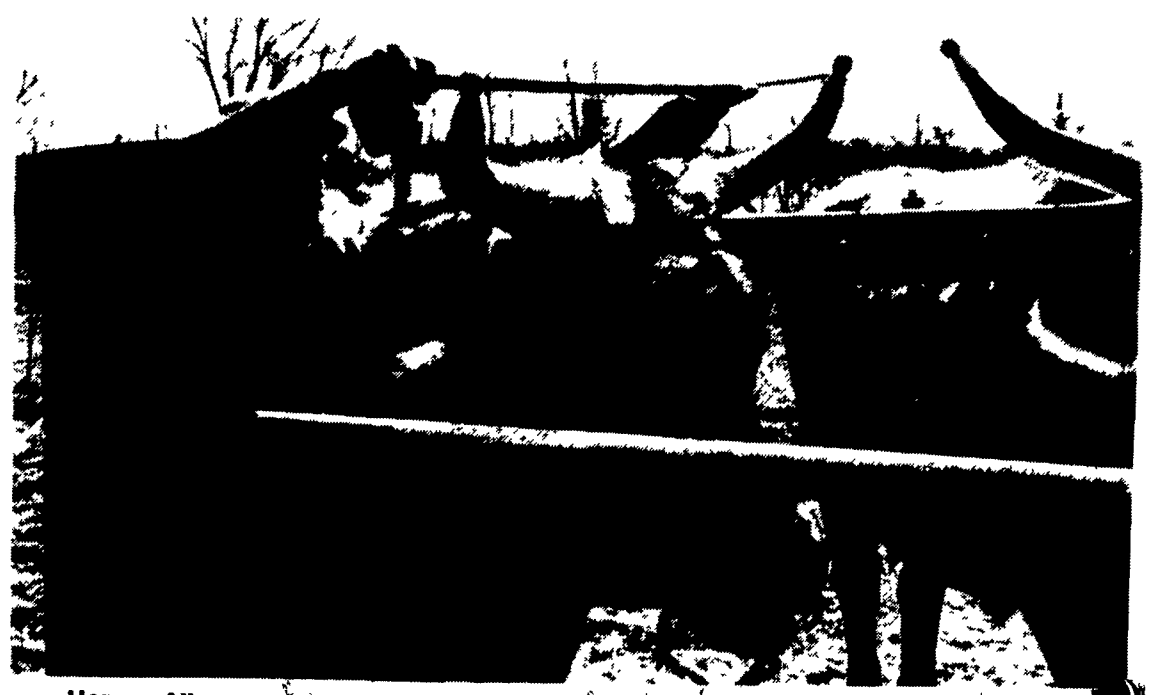
Ernie started the team under a yoke last year for the first time. "Everyone would ask me, 'Do you work them?,' and I got tired of saying, no we don't. So I thought I might as well hook them up. I told my wife, 'Well, I'm going over to put a yoke on them.' Homer just stood there, he thought he was in a headgate," relates Ernie, "And I finally got them to move." Ernie made the 60-pound yoke himself. He had an ox cart custom made by a man in Leola, and hopes to teach them to pull it this summer.

Although they look very similiar, Ernie has no trouble telling the two big Brown Swiss apart. Homer is lighter in color, and bigger in girth. His horns, at 32 inches, are a full 10 inches shorter than Albert's. He is also the tamer and quieter of the two. "And he'll drink his water," explains Ernie, "I don't know why, but Albert, every time you bring him a bucket of water, he'll knock it over. Just likes to see you carry water, I guess."

But Albert only upsets the first bucket of water you bring him. After that, he settles down for a long drink just like his partner Homer.

Only Albert knows why he upsets his water bucket. But, after all, if that's his 3000-pound Goliath's idea of fun, who's going to stop him?

Albert, in the background, and Homer, in front, enjoy the pasture after being unhitched.



Homer, Albert, and Ernie Jackson. The Brown Swiss charmed Ernie as calves, and escaped their fate as slaughter animals.

Ernie removes the yoke from Albert. Made of four pieces of wood glued and bolted together, it weighs approximately 60 pounds. Ernie created the yoke himself. The bent pieces of wood were custom made by a man in Leola.

Where does the water go when it's low tide?
It's being pulled up towards the moon!
Water along the shorelines of oceans and other large bodies of water slowly rises to a high point, called high tide and shrinks back to a low tide twice a day. High tides come in pairs — if there's a high tide on your shore you can bet there's another a tide somewhere. But these tides are caused by two different forces.
The first high tide rides on the Earth's surface directly between the center of the Earth and the moon. The moon's gravity tugs at the Earth and makes the ocean surface bulge out. The bulge rides the moon as it circles the world so you see high tides when the moon is over land. That means there are high tides in the middle of the ocean — they're just harder to see!
The second high tide is on the other side of the world opposite the first one. This tide forms as the Earth twirls around an imaginary pole that sits between the Earth and the moon. The water gets pushed out into a high tide — just like you get pushed against the car door when someone drives around a curve real fast.
To mimic the force of the moon, lay a napkin in an empty pan. Pick it up at the center. You are pulling on the napkin, just like the moon pulls at the seas, and the napkin moves away from the pan's edges. Just like the ocean does during low tide showing off land's pretty beaches!
Scientifically yours,
Twig

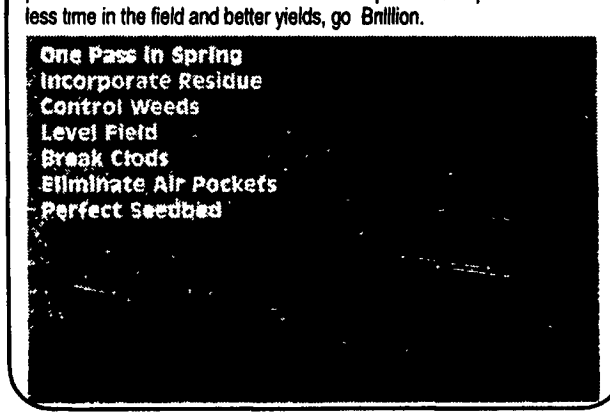
The "Quality Crafted" Line Better Seedbeds... Better Stands!

SOIL BUILDERS
5-7-9-11-13 Shanks

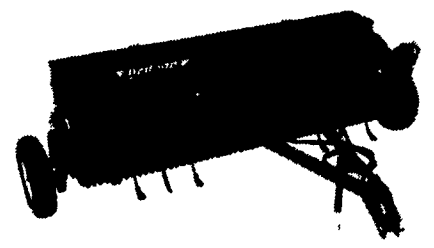
SOIL BUILDERS. Optional - Coulter gang can be hydraulically controlled to save maintenance dollars. Available in 2 & 3 bar.

BRILLION COMMANDER SYSTEM

Versatile tillage tools such as Billion's Soil Commander allows the use of Chisel Shanks or Deep-ripper Shanks to break up soil compaction. Front disk gangs and optional rear leveling disks cut residue, breaks clods, level the field and prepare the field to absorb moisture from melting snow and to reduce soil erosion. Brillion's Field Commander combined with a Brillion Pulverizer excels at creating the perfect seedbed for spring planting. C-Shanks or S-Tine Shanks leave a uniform mixture of soil and surface residue for the most effecient chemical incorporation. The X-Fold Pulverizer (shown below) breaks up clods, firms the soil without compacting, eliminates air pockets in the soil and levels the soil for optimal seed placement. For less time in the field and better yields, go Brillion.

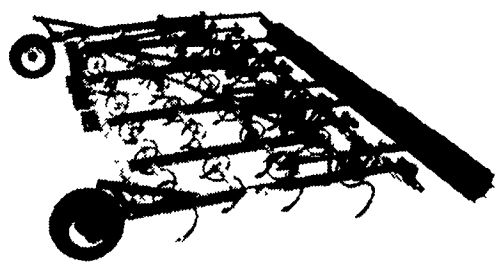


AG SURE STAND SEEDERS
5 Ft.-8 Ft.-10 Ft.-12 Ft.



For years Brillion Grass Seeders have proven to be the best machine for plantinggrasses and legumes... and now they're even better! Larger, heavier boxes, high seeding rates, nylon lined seed meter, heavier frame, new drive system and more. Available In 3-point or pull type. SSPT604, SS8, SS10, SS12

3 PT. BASKET HARROWS
12 Ft., 15 Ft., 18 Ft.

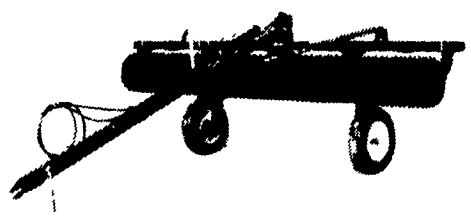


Brillion has designed a 3 pt. S-Tine field cultivator with a larger, aggressively angled 12" diameter rolling basket, a 4-bar frame that allows for either 4" or 6" tooth spacing and an adjustable coil tine leveler bar. Gauge wheels are optional.

LANDCOMMANDERS
3-5-7-9-11-13 Shanks

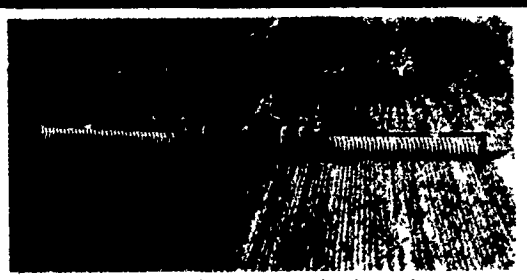
The front disc gang has 22" x 1/4" disc blades on 15" spacings. They are designed to cut residue and work the ground to a depth of 6". The Landcommander has the ability to till from 8" to 20" deep. The rear disc gang has 20" x 7 ga. disc blades on 7.5 spacing. The 6"x4" mainframe is designed to handle the stress from the deep till shanks and disc gangs.

P-SERIES TRANSPORT PULVERIZERS
10 Ft. to 20 Ft.



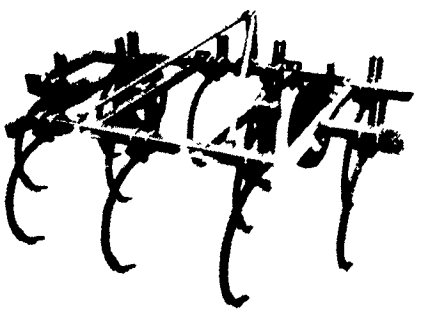
Rotary Frame Pulverizers; PT10 Series Transport Concept. Machine weight is hydraulically rotated over the wheels for transport. This reduces draw bar hitch weight considerably and provides ample clearance for transport. Also Available As Pull Type.

X-FOLD PULVERIZERS
19 Ft. to 46 Ft.



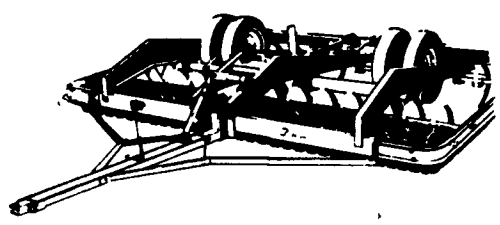
The X-Fold pulverizers are designed to meet the needs of today's larger acreage farmers...and Brillion offers them in two models and 11 sizes from 19' through 46'. Available with 20" Ductile Rollers.

2 or 3 BAR CHISEL PLOWS
5-7-9-11 or 10-12-14-16 Shanks



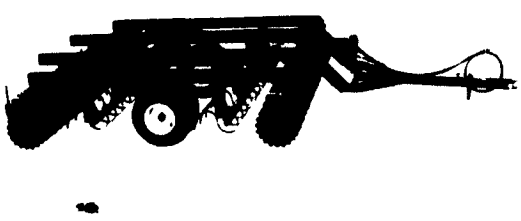
The CPP series of mounted models enables you to turn short and fast... to transport easily, utilizing your tractor's hydraulic system.

M-MD PULVI-MULCHERS
7'4", 10'4", 12'4", 13'8", 15'



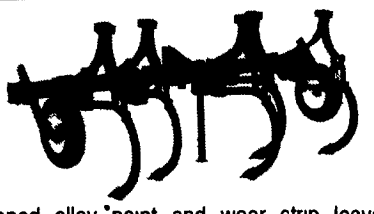
The Brillion Pulvi-Mulcher converts fall or spring plowing into clod-free, high yield seedbeds. Just flick the tractor hydraulic control; pulvi-mulcher lifts to transport wheels.

ML SERIES PULVI-MULCHERS
12'6", 13'10", 15'2", 18'9"



- Easy rolling 20" ductile iron notched or crowfoot roller wheels with 5 year limited warranty.
- Longer life external mounted bearings.
- Longer, heavier drawbar for shorter turns.

COMPACTION COMMANDERS
NO-TILL RIPPER/DEEP RIPPER - 3-5-7 Shanks



Brillion introduces their new Compaction Commander... designed to break up hard-pan and compaction as deep as 20". The standard V-shaped alloy point and wear strip leaves residue on the surface with minimal soil disturbance. Auto-rest shanks with 20" of trip height allows for non-stop tillage. Parabolic shanks lift and fracture the soil 39" of underframe clearance assures trouble free operation even in heavy residue.

Teachers Taught To Unscramble Egg Misconceptions

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

STRASBURG (Lancaster Co.) — The egg industry values home economics teachers. They know these teachers are the link that can make a difference with consumers' perception of eggs.

For this reason, the Lancaster County Poultry Association holds an annual dinner for home economics teachers in Lancaster and Lebanon counties.

Misconceptions abound about eggs, especially in regards to cholesterol and foodborne illnesses. Teachers attending the dinner at Historic Strasburg Inn on April 30, were encouraged to continue to teach proper cooking and handling methods. In addition, they were informed about recent research that shows that dietary cholesterol has little impact on serum cholesterol for most people. The research is to be published in June.

"We have good news," said Christine Bushway of the Northeast Egg Coalition. "Eating an egg a day is O.K. according to the American Heart Association."

Previous studies had translated the message that eating an egg a day would cause heart attacks.

This new study confirms what the poultry industry believed all along—that the nutritional benefits of eggs are offset by the amount of cholesterol eggs contain.

"The culprit is saturated fat," Bushway said of the cholesterol that causes heart problems.

Recent research also shows changing dietary habits. Kids like eggs better than adults.

"Kids have no breakfast bias for eggs — they like eggs for lunch, dinner, and snacks in addition to breakfast, and believe eggs are more nutritious than cereal," Bushway said.

The egg industry is targeting kids with its advertising. The industry is promoting the convenience of eggs and ideas for "desperation dinner," to eat when time and ingredients are at a minimum.

While egg consumption is increasing, the egg industry still has crisis to deal with from time to time. This erupts from foodborne illnesses. Eggs are considered potentially hazardous because they are perishable and require refrigeration, sanitary handling, and adequate cooking.

Cases of foodborne illnesses involving eggs can almost always be traced to improper handling, refrigeration, or inadequate cooking of eggs, Bushway said.

Many consumers seem to be unaware of common-sense food safety handling. Recently the Pillsbury Company received a letter of complaint from a customer who wrote that the instructions printed on cake mixes is misleading. The instructions ask for the addition of one whole egg, The letter writer complained that the instructions should state "without the shell."

"This is the kind of consumer who we are dealing with today," said Paul Sauder, president of Sauder's Quality Eggs.

The Lancaster County Poultry Association pushed for the establishment of the Pennsylvania Egg Quality Assurance Program (PEQAP). It took seven years of planning to establish the program. Eggs produced and marketed under the PEQAP label assures the consumer that strict standards of testing, environment, and care have been adhered to.

Regulation starts with baby chicks. If flocks are found to contain salmonella, eggs must go for pasteurization. All containers must be coded for flock of origin, processor identification, and expiration date. All participants must maintain an acceptable biosecurity program to secure facilities from outside contamination risks. Egg must be kept refrigerated throughout the chain of distribution. If a supermarket does not refrigerate eggs at 35 degrees, the supermarket is not allowed to sell eggs under the PEQAP label.

"It's the only program like it in the country, but other states are looking at it and saying, 'We need to do the same thing,'" Bushway said. "The egg industry is ahead of other commodities in food safety — they had to be. They hold high standards for food safety."

"While PEQAP does not guarantee shell eggs to be free of SE contamination, the program does assure commitment of the producer to implementation of management and monitoring practices most likely to prevent SE contamination.

With the cooperation of government, industry, and the consumer, risk of foodborne illnesses is significantly lowered.

Teachers were given packets containing egg recipes and information. The association also offers a $100 savings bond to a promising student from each of the schools represented at the meeting.

Don Brubaker, president of the Lancaster County Poultry Association, said that his favorite way to eat eggs is to scramble an omelet and place two spoonfuls of pie filling in the middle and roll up.

Here are some more recipes from the Northeast Egg Promotion Coalition.

BAKED FRENCH TOAST WITH PINEAPPLE CHEESE TOPPING

8-ounce can sliced pineapple
8-ounce package light cream cheese
¼ cup confectioners' sugar
1½ teaspoons vanilla

FRENCH TOAST

3 eggs
4 egg whites
½ cup skim milk
⅓ cup orange juice
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
1 pound loaf Texas Toast

Place pineapple cheese topping ingredients in blender or food processor. Cover and process briefly so some chunks of pineapple remain. Cover and refrigerate until needed.

In medium bowl, whisk together eggs, egg whites, milk, orange juice, and cinnamon until well blended. If baking French toast immediately, preheat oven to 425 degrees and lightly grease a large cookie sheet. Dip bread slices into egg mixture, coating well on both sides. Arrange bread slices in single layer on cookie sheet. (If preparing ahead, cover pans and refrigerate up to 12 hours before baking.

Bake 15 to 20 minutes, turning bread slices over halfway through the baking time. Serve hot, topped with Pineapple-Cheese Topping.

Farmhouse Part Of 'Home Is Where The Heart Is'

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EAST EARL (Lancaster Co.) — People told Willard and Libby Brundege they were crazy when they wanted to purchase an old farmhouse to fix up.

The dilapidated place had no indoor plumbing and had fallen into great disrepair inside and out.

But Libby saw past the peeling paint, nicks and dents in the woodwork, and the splintering unfinished floorboards. Beneath the chipping stucco exterior, Libby envision beautifully restored sandstone.

That was last year. This year the restoration is complete.

"It turned out even more beautiful than I envisioned," Libby said.

Friends and family members also stand in awe of the transformation. Even strangers drop by to comment on the revived beauty of the stately two-story sandstone farmhouse. One of these strangers asked the Brundeges to participate in a fundraiser by opening their home for tour.

The fundraiser is for the Hinkletown Mennonite School. Although the Brundeges three children are grown and have never attended the Hinkletown school, Libby said, "We are Christians and known the importance of Christian education, so we were eager to help."

The annual "Home Is Where The Heart Is Tour of Homes" will be held on Sunday, May 18, from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

The Brundege farmhouse was built in 1920 from materials from the original 1745 homestead.

The Brundeges' removed the original wainscoating that had four different colored layers of paint and had the wood dunked in stripping solution at a refinishing shop. The solution stripped the paint from the grooves and all that needed to be done to the wainscoating was to cover it was a clear protective coating and tack it up in the dining area.

Because Libby works at Conestoga Woods, she designed a kitchen and had the company make a kitchen from Lenga wood imported from Chili. Lenga wood is similar to cherry wood and the beauty of the wood grain is visible beneath the white ivory stain.

A new portion was added to the house to allow space for a downstairs bathroom, a roomy laundry room, and back entranceway. All new walls were put in throughout the house.

The builders said that the floorboards were disgusting and not worth keeping, but Libby insisted. Two downstairs rooms now have mellowed wooden floors covered with area Oriental rugs. Libby also insisted on refinishing the original wooden inside doors. Others said the doors were too deeply marred to redo, but the heavy wooden doors now show only enough dents to add character to their beauty.

Originally the upstairs had four bedrooms, but one was converted into a large walk-through closet leading to the master bathroom. The master bedroom features a pencil-post canopy bed. A guest room and their college-age daughter's bedroom are also upstairs.

Outside, the sandstone has been restored and shutters added. The sandstone had been gathered from the fields and brought to the house plot by using a stone pulley.

Some of the exterior buildings have been removed and the other buildings revived. The land is farmed by a neighboring farmer. An old cemetary on the farm specifies in the deed that it must be maintained by those who live on the premises. The enclosed cemetary, surrounded by open fields and a few older trees, has tombstones dating from 1788-1930. Libby is intriqued by the Messner's Graveyard because the tombstones have various spellings of the name Messner.

"I have always loved old things," Libby said of her vision to redo a house that others did not consider worth saving.

The home is furnished in a combination of antiques and collectibles. The dining room chairs are from Libby's great grandfather. But most of the furnishings are bargains that Libby garnered from haunting garage sales and auctions.

On the day of the tour, the Brundege home will be decorated by Petal Perfect, New Holland, and by Hometown Collectibles of Bowmansville.

Other homes on tour include the following:

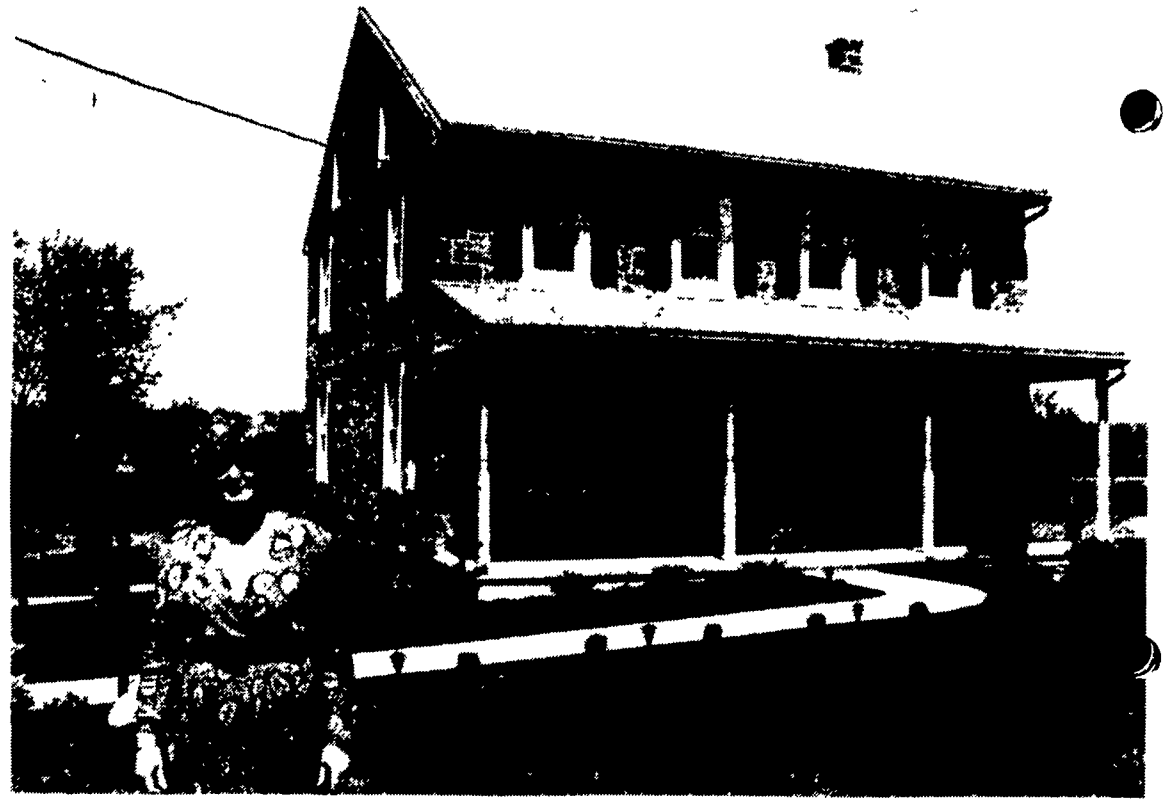
•Carl and Wilma Weaver, 1699 Division Hwy., New Holland. From the windowsills to the large stone fireplace in the newly remodeled Williamsburg blue kitchen and the small fireplace in the master bedroom, this 1787 stone farmhouse has plenty of warmth and charm. The history from this home is recorded on the deeds that the owner has kept for display, stating that 322 had once been a toll road. The original millwork throughout the home has been maintained over the years.

• Earl and Marilyn Weaver, 224 White Oak Rd., New Holland. This two-story traditional home decorated with a Victorian flair was designed by the Weavers. Angique family heirlooms furnish the parlor and the light airy family room features a cozy nook for relaxing. Marilyn and her family created the artwork on display throughout the home. The deck is made from recycled plastic milk jugs. The Heritage cream kitchen, fireplaces througout, and an outstanding view of famland makes this home an enjoyable place for family and friends to gather.

• Martindale Schoolhouse, 594 Martindale Rd., Ephrata. This century-old two-story school was built in 1888. The first floor is still used as a parochial school. Commemorative plates and a Martindale history book are available for purchasing.

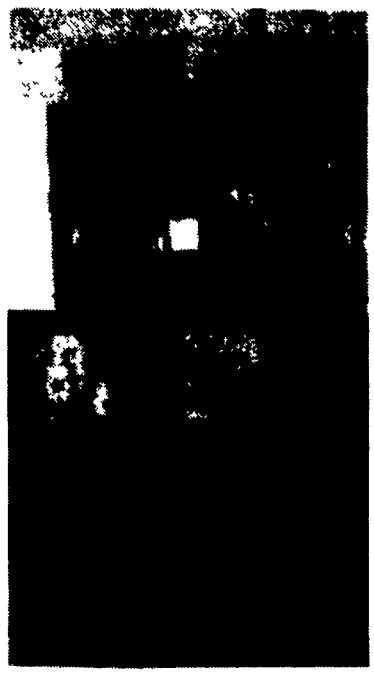
• Larry and Laverne Eby, 1480

(Turn to Page B15)



About one year ago, this was a dilapidated farmhouse with crumbling stucco exterior and no indoor plumbing. Libby Brundege and her husband Willard oversaw restoring the house. It is one of the homes included in the "Home Is Where The Heart Is Tour of Homes," which will be held on Sunday, May 18, from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. The annual tour is a fundraiser for Hinkletown Mennonite School.

Against professional advice, Libby insisted the original floor boards be sanded and refinished. To everyone's surprise, the mellowed wooden floors bear no trace of its former deterioration.



The home is furnished with many bargains that Libby garnered from haunting garage sales and auctions.

The kitchen is made from Lenga wood imported from Chili. Lenga wood is similar to cherry wood and the beauty of the wood grain is visible beneath the white ivory stain.

Rhododendron Companions For The Garden

Companion planting — growing plants with similar needs in the same general area — is an effective way to unify your landscape design.

Rhododendrons, azaleas, Japanese pieris, drooping leucothoe, and Japanese holly are handsome plants that have similar soil, moisture and light requirements. If you garden is suited to rhododendrons, then these will do well also.

There is no magic formula to find companions for rhododendrons. The ratio can range from 60 percent rhododendrom to 40 percent companions (or visa-versa) to an extreme of 90:10 for either group. Whatever ratio suits your garden best, the smaller proportion of plants should have distinctive qualities that allow them to stand out as specimen or as focal point.

Azaleas and rhododendrons have similiar flower qualities which make them ideal companions. Rhododendron obtusum cultivars are low-growing spreading semi-evergreen azaleas that grow well together. All reach a height of about four feet with a spread of three to four feet. They tolerate light shade needed by other companion broadleaf evergreens. Examples include the early-blooming 'Hershey Red' that's hardy to -10% and the crimson colored 'Hino-crimson' hybrid that has small, glossy green leaves.

Exbury and Knap Hill hybrid deciduous azaleas are also good selections where you want slightly taller varieties. Most grow four to six feet tall, tolerate light shade, and have an upright growth. Foliage, which is medium green in the summer, changes to light tones of red-orange in the fall.

Depending upon the cultivar Exbury and Knap Hill hybrids have pink, cream, yellow, and near white flower colors. Others have brilliant orange, rose and red flowers. Flower clusters often contain as many as 25 individual blossoms and can be up to three inches across. Flowers open in mid to late May. If they grow too tall, light pruning can help keep them to a reasonable size.

Deciduous azaleas with soft textured foliage and soft colored flowers add seasonal interest to a rhododendron background — too many evergreens in a landscape create a monotonous picture. Even if your evergreens have a showy spring display, flowers last such a short time that most of the year your design has little variety. By introducing deciduous azaleas you will have seasonal foliage contrast in the spring, summer, and fall and textural contrast in the winter.

Japanese pieris or andromeda is a tall, broadleaved evergreen that grows to 10 feet with an eight-foot spread but can be kept lower with periodic pruning.

Pieris flowers in late March to early April from buds set the season before. The white, flightly fragrant, urn-shaped flowers form in drooping clusters, three to six inches long at the tips of the branches and last about two to three weeks. Pieris add additional seasonal color to a planting area with new bronze-purple foliage in the spring. As leaves mature, they change to a deep green but have no significant color change in the fall.

Drooping leucothoe or fetter bush is a good low foreground plant for pieris and tall rhododendrons. This broadleaf evergreen generally gets three to four feet high and spreads as wide. Its gentle arching branches contrast well with the more upright plants in the background.

White pitcher-shaped clusters of flowers two to three inches long form at the base of leaves and at the ends of the base of leaves and at the ends of the stem. The flowers open in May and have a slight fragrance. Like Pieris, leucothoe have bronzy new foliage in spring that changes to deep green at maturity.

Japanese holly cultivars work well as very low foreground plants. Most are slow to mature and remain less than three feet high even after many years. Some Ilex crenata cultivars to consider are 'Helleri,' 'Kingsville Green Cushion,' 'Repandens,' 'Stokes,' or 'Tiny Tim.'

Japanese holly cultivars have small broadleaf evergreen leaves less than one-half inch long that add to the plant's dense appearance. These are deep glossy green in summer and change little in winter. Flowers and black fruit are inconspicuous and of no landscape value. Unless planted close together, Japanese hollies tend to retain their individual shape and identify within your garden design. Selections from this group work well as low border plants or as individual accents.

Are Mammograms Necessary?

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Should a woman between the age of 40 and 49 get an annual mammogram?

A nationwide debate over the importance of mammograms for women ages 40 to 49 has Ephrata's chief radiologist concerned that women won't see the real benefits of getting an annual mammogram.

According to Samuel D'Amato, M.D., a physician and radiologist with Ephrata Community Hospital (ECH), a mammogram is nothing less than a life saver.

Dr. D'Amato, 59, reads more than 5,000 mammograms every year. A mammogram is an X-ray which explores the tissue of the breast so a radiologist can search for cancerous tumors.

According to the American Cancer Society, this year in the United States, there will be approximately 182,000 new cases of breast cancer in women. Of that number an estimated 46,000 could die.

The bottom line, says Dr. D'Amato, early prevention through annual mammograms saves lives.

In recent months, studies released by the National Cancer Institute have suggested that mammograms for women in their 40s may not be necessary. For Dr. D'Amato, that study, which he explained was based on inexact data and perhaps political motives, misleads the public and could potentially cost lives.

Breast cancer is one of the leading killers of women ages 40 to 60, second only to lung cancer. Of the 6,000 mammograms performed at ECH annually, one in ten, or 600 show some sign of breast cancer.

That is where early detection comes in. Dr. D'Amato maintains that it is just as necessary for women ages 40 to 49 to get annual mammograms as it is for women ages 50 to 70.

According to Dr. D'Amato, "When women ages 40 to 49 get breast cancer, it is usually a more aggressive, faster growing breast cancer. Therefore, it's more important to pick it up as fast as you can." Dr. D'Amato suggests women start getting annual mammograms at age 40 and continue to be checked every year for the rest of their life.

"I think what's happening is that women get confused by these controversies," he said, referring to the NCI study. Survival rates of women who identify breast cancer early through a mammorgram are as good as survival rates for cancers found in women ages 50 to 60, cancers which are typically less aggressive, said Dr. D'Amato.

The American Cancer Society, the American College of Radiology and a host of other medical societies agree that annual mammograms beginning at 40 help prevent the risk of breast cancer in women.

Identifying potentially threatening lesions in the breast as early as possible plays an important role in preventing breast cancer. With recent technological advancements, doctors are able to identify lesions in the breast as small as one millimeter in length. The sooner a lesion is diagnosed and the smaller it is, the sooner it can be effectively treated, explained Dr. D'Amato.

Unfortunately, he added, many women still prefer self-examination over mammography. Athough frequent self-examination is paramount to breast cancer awareness it should be viewed only as a supplement to an annual mammogram. It's unfortunate, said Dr. D'Amato, that some women do rely solely on self-examination because, "when the woman is able to feel the tumor through self-examination, her survival rate goes down by 50 percent. For us, when we see something that is one centimeter or less, that lesion is curable."

Other hindrances women feel about getting a mammogram, said Dr. D'Amato, is the possible discomfort and the fear of radiation from the X-ray.

A mammogram uses plastic trays to gently spread the breast. Unlike to discomfort often asso-

Consuming Thoughts

by

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.

When it comes to selecting cooking ingredients, health enthusiasts and gourmet cooks rarely agree on what good is. But the choice of using a vegetable oil rather than animal fat in cooking is one sure area of agreement.

Fresh good quality vegetable oils assist the body in absorbing vitamins and are rich in polyunsaturated, which experts believe aids the prevention of serum cholesterol, a contributor of heart disease.

Olive oil is one of the most popular vegetable oils, but consumers are often confused about olive oil. The International Olive Oil Council helped answer the following frequently asked questions.

Q. I see so many types and brands of olive oil in the supermarket and wonder what is the best olive oil to buy?

A. 98% of the world's olive oil comes from the Mediterranean region, which has a history of olive tree cultivation that stretches back more than 6,000 years.

Most of the world's finest olive oils come from this area. To say which particular oil is best is often a matter of taste, since, like fine wines, the flavors, colors and aromas of olive oils vary according to type of olive grown, as well as climate and soil conditions, and so forth.

A case could be made for considering Extra Virgin olive oil as "best," but only in the sense that it has the widest choice of flavors and aromas, with a perfect "fruity" flavor — obtained exclusively by the pressing and centrifugation of crushed olives; it is less widely available and generally more expensive.

Q. Can you tell by its color what the taste of an olive oil will be?

A. While it would be nice to be able to generalize that "the darker, more intense the color olive oil, the stronger, more fruity the flavor," such is not a totally reliable rule of thumb. Again, like fine wines, certain olive oils are blends of various varieties. Moreover, natural changes in growing conditions from year to year can affect the color and flavor to varying degrees.

Connoisseurs generally categorize olive oil flavors as mild (delicate, light or "buttery"); semi-fruity (stronger, with more taste of the olive); and fruity (oil with a full-blown olive flavor). The most general rule of thumb to follow is that when you want to taste the full, delicate flavor of any olive oil it's best added to cooked dishes in the final stages. Let your own taste preferences be your guide — tempered by what is desired as an end result.

Q. What is the best way to store olive oil? How long will it keep?

A. Stored properly, olive oil keeps longer than all other edible oils. Store it in an airtight container, away from light in a cool cupboard, you can expect to keep olive oil fresh and safe this way for at least a year.

Q. Does olive oil contain cholesterol?

A. No, since olive oil comes from a plant source it contains absolutely no cholesterol. Olive oil is a monounsaturated fat which has beneficial effects on several risk factors associated with coronary heart disease. Olive oil has cooking or salad oil.

Q. What do "first pressing" and 115 kilocalories per tablespoon (9 kilocalories per gram of oil) — no more than any other common "cold pressing" mean?

A. The majority of olive oil is produced with only one pressing. These two terms are basically interchangeable and not included in the official definition of olive oil grades. The terms were used in the past when less powerful presses made it necessary to have more than one pressing.

Q. What is Pure olive oil?

A. Pure olive oil was the designation given to what is now called "Olive Oil" which is defined as the blend of refined olive oil with virgin olive oil.

Mammograms

ciated with older mammogram machines, the new technology should be painless, said the doctor.

The radiation needed for the mammogram depends on the density of the breast. In most cases, the mammogram exposes the patient to only one-fifth the radiation of a normal chest X-ray. "Because we're not going through that much tissue, the amount of radiation is less." Interestingly, Dr. D'Amato explained that one could get more radiation standing in the sunlight for 15 minutes than from a mammogram.

During examination of the finished X-ray, Dr. D'Amato explained, he searches the tissue for microcalsifications, or very small abnormalities in the fiber of the breast.

Having a previous mammorgram X-rays provides a useful guide, he said. "Year to year, you can pick up subtle changes that may be tumors. You can diagnose a tumor very early with those subtle changes. That's also an important part of having annual mammograms," remarked Dr. D'Amato.

SHRIMP DIP

8-ounces cream cheese, softened
¼ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1½ tablespoons catsup
4½ -ounce can shrimp, drained, thawed and grind in food processor

Beat cream cheese, mayonnaise, onion, and catsup on medium speed until fluffy.

Add shrimp on low speed. Refrigerate. Remove 15 minutes before serving with your favorite crackers.

I am sending my mommy's Shrimp Dip recipe. She makes this for our family gatherings and everyone really loves it.

RECIPE FOR HOPE

Flowers (freshly picked)
Greens (freshly cut)
Water (to fill container)
Vase, glass or jar (any size)

Arrange to be bright and cheery. Place where the sunlight comes through the window.

My mother-in-law, Josie Zolenas, is a wonderful cook. The recipe I treasure the most is the one for HOPE.

When I was newly married, she gave me a small white ceramic vase. It is the head of a lady with a place for flowers in her hat. I still keep it on my kitchen counter. It's the perfect size for one rose, a few violets, buttercups or even dandelions.

Whenever Mommy Z is around, flowers abound. She says, "They give us atmosphere and brighten things up."

Her artistic ability to arrange flowers is amazing. Whether it's a campsite, coffee table or kitchen sink, I can count on her to make things look hopeful with a bouquet.

When her first grandchild, Jennifer was born, Mommy Z brought a tiny ceramic bootie trimmed with pink ribbon and filled with flowers picked from her yard. The card read, "Thanks for the girl."

"Happy Mother's Day, Mommy Z. Thanks for sharing your love, talents, recipes, and flowers."

6 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
½ cup grated carrots
⅓ cup chopped onions
⅓ cup chopped celery

Dressing:
1⅓ cups sugar
¼ cup flour
½ cup vinegar
¼ cup mustard
1¼ cups water
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook dressing ingredients about 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Cool. When cool, add 1½ cups mayonnaise. Add a little celery seed if desired. Pour dressing over macaroni, eggs, carrots, celery, and onion. Mix well.

This is a recipe my mother Ruth Rutt makes a lot. Mom does so many things for me and my family. She always has a listening ear. Her five grandsons always love to be with grandma. Thanks for everything you have done for us. Happy Mother's Day.

OATMEAL COOKIES

2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
1½ teaspoon cinnamon
2 unbeaten eggs
1½ teaspoon vanilla
2 cups quick oats
1 cup shortening
½ cup granulated sugar
¾ cup brown sugar
¼ cup buttermilk or whole milk
1 cup raisins

Sometimes I add chocolate chips and chopped nuts instead of raisins. I also add about 1 tablespoons vinegar and 1 tablespoon Karo to the milk to keep cookies soft.

My mother-in-law Anna gave this recipe to me. She told me it was her mother Lydia's favorite cookie recipe. Grandmother Lydia will be 100 years old on Nov. 17.

CRUMB CAKE

Crumbs:
½ cup butter
2 cups dark brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups flour

Mix and set aside ¾ cup crumbs for topping. Add to the remaining mixture:
1 egg
1 cup sour milk
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon vanilla

Pour into 13x9-inch cake pan. Sprinkle ¾ cup crumbs on top. Bake at 350 degrees for 30-35 minutes.

When I was still in school, my mother (Audrey Bivens) always had Thursday off work. So I knew when I got off the school bus there would be a crumb cake cooling on the counter when I walked into the house. It was my favorite cake then and still is today.

FRUIT AND CREAM TART

Pastry for two 9-inch crust pies. Bake on pizza pan, prick and bake. Cool completely.

3-ounces cream cheese
¾ cup sugar
1 tablespoon milk
1 tablespoon orange rind
⅔ cup heavy cream
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ cup orange juice
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ cup water
1 pint strawberries
2 bananas
11-ounce can mandarin oranges, drained

Combine cream cheese, ¼ cup sugar, milk, and orange rind. Beat until smooth. Add cream slowly. Beat until thick. Spread over crust and chill. Hull berries and reserve 3 large unhulled berries. Cut berries in half. Arrange around outer edge of crust. Point of berry to outside and cut side up. Next, a ring of cut bananas overlapping each slice. Next a ring of mandarin oranges. Put the three unhulled berries in the middle for decoration. Mix ½ cup sugar, cornstarch, water, orange juice, lemon juice, and cook until boiling. Stir all the time. Cook one minute. Glaze fruit tart with this glaze while hot, covering entire tart. Cool tart in refrigerator. When serving, cut like a pie.

My mother, Beulah Long, has won cooking contests with this entry. Our mother raised nine children so she did lots of cooking. It seemed she made delicious meals out of little. She loves to try new recipes and then when we have family gatherings, she brings the results of these experiments for us to taste. Most are wonderful!

PEANUT BUTTER AND JELLY PIE

1½ cups chocolate wafer crumbs
¼ cups butter, melted
7-ounce jar marshmallow creme
¼ cup milk
¼ cup chunk-style peanut butter
8-ounce container whipped cream
½ cup grape jelly
1 tablespoon chopped peanuts

Combine crumbs and butter; press onto bottom and sides of 9-inch pan. Chill.

Combine marshmallow creme and milk; mixing with electric mixer or wire whisk until well blended. Add peanut butter; mix well. Fold in whipped topping. Spread jelly on bottom of crust. Pour marshmallow creme mixture over jelly, sprinkle with peanuts. Freeze until firm.

CHOCOLATE CREAM-FILLED CUPCAKES

2½ cups flour
2 cups sugar
⅓ cup cocoa
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 eggs
¾ cup vegetable oil
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup buttermilk
2 teaspoons baking soda dissolved in 1 cup hot water

Sift together first five ingredients. Add next four ingredients, and mix well. Dissolve baking soda in hot water, add and mix well. Fill cupcake tins half full. Makes 36. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Cool completely, then fill with cream filling.

Cream Filling:
½ cup sugar
⅓ cups Crisco
⅓ cup milk
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon water
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine in small bowl and mix slowly at first, then at high speed until smooth and creamy (5-7 minutes).

Fill cupcakes with a supershooter, cake decorator, or use an empty mustard container. Enjoy!

SANDWICH SPREAD PICKLES

6 cups grated pickles
1 cup onions, chopped

Let set one hour, then drain. Add:

¾ cup vinegar
¾ cup water
2 tablespoons salt
3 cups sugar
2 teaspoons celery salt
1 teaspoon celery seed
1 teaspoon powdered turmeric

Boil 20 minutes then pack into jars.

This is my mother's favorite pickle recipe. She serves something pickled at every meal.

MACARONI CROQUETTES

½ cup butter
¾ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper, optional
2 cups milk
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ cup American cheese, grated
¾ cup Velvetta cheese
1 pound macaroni, cooked
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup dried bread crumbs

Melt butter in a heavy saucepan or in top of double boiler.

Add flour, salt, and pepper and stir until well blended.

In separate pan, melt cheese and butter in milk, bring almost to a boil.

Slowly add cheese and milk to butter and flour mixture. Cook, stirring constantly until a smooth paste is formed.

Add to macaroni so that macaroni is well covered with sauce. Chill. Dip out with greased ice cream dipper.

Drop in dish of bread crumbs. Roll in bread crumbs and press firmly into balls.

Submerge balls in a bowl of beaten eggs. Roll balls again in bread crumbs and press firmly. Deep fat fry until golden brown. Can be frozen and used later.

My mother, Ellen Ranck, makes this recipe every Christmas since I can remember. My mother excels in the kitchen, and it is a delight to eat at her table.

PEANUT BUTTER COOKIE POPS

½ cup sugar
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup soft butter
½ cup peanut butter
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
10 wooden sticks
10 Milky Way fun size bars

Cream sugars, butter, peanut butter, egg, and vanilla. Add dry ingredients and mix well. Insert wooden stick into candy bar. Shape one-third cookie dough around candy bar. Place 4-inches apart on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake at 375 degrees for 13-16 minutes. Cool 10 minutes on cookie sheet before removing.

My mother was the best teacher in the kitchen, because she left her four daughters make mistakes and try again. I remember all the strawberry shortcakes that flopped in the summertime, but Mom never criticized. This recipe is special because she often makes these cookie pops for her grandchildren and the children in her Sunday School class. Thank you, Mother, for teaching me to cook.

HAWAIIAN WEDDING CAKE

1 package yellow cake mix
8-ounces cream cheese
1 large box vanilla instant pudding mix
1 cup milk
16-ounces whipped topping
1 can crushed pineapple
Coconut
Maraschino cherries

Prepare cake mix as directed. Pour into 13x9-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees until done. Cool. Combine pudding and mix as directed. Add softened cream cheese, whipped topping, and pineapple. Blend together. Frost top of cake with mixture. Sprinkle with coconut. Top with maraschino cherries.

Edna Mays, my 80-year-old mom, is still spry and is an excellent cook and baker.

She enjoys numerous things such as tending to her flower garden and her miniature donkey.

She likes to travel, attend auctions, horse pulls, and plowing contests — anything that is horse related. I love her very much.

WHITE FRUIT CAKE

1½ cups margarine
3 cups sugar
1½ cups milk
5¼ cups flour
8 egg whites
2½ teaspoon baking powder
1 pound blonde raisins
3 cups nuts, chopped
3 cups coconut
2 pounds mixed cut-up fruit or ½ pound citron, 8 slices pineapple, 1½ cups cherries, diced

Cream together margarine and sugar until fluffy. Combine fruits and nuts with sifted dry ingredients. Stir into margarine and sugar mixture, alternately with milk. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Spoon batter into six (7-inch) loaf pans. Bake two hours in 275 degree oven.

While in high school, I really enjoyed helping my mother make these fruit cakes. Besides her love for cooking, she gains much satisfaction in singing with the church choir. Mother's favorite pasttime is participating in the senior citizen programs. She is a very caring person and has many friends.

MARBLE CHIFFON CAKE

Chocolate part:

¼ cup cocoa
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup scant boiling water

Combine ingredients. Stir until smooth, cool.

2 cups flour
½ cup salad oil
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
7 egg yolks
¾ cup water

Mix all together then beat 7 egg whites until stiff. Add:

½ teaspoon cream of tartar
½ cup sugar

Fold egg white mixture into main mixture. Remove ½ cup batter and add red food coloring. Use one-third of remaining batter and mix cocoa mixture into it. First, pour yellow cake batter into tube pan, then the chocolate and red batters. Take a knife and cut through to marbelize.

Bake at 325 degrees for 55 minutes then at 350 degrees for 10 minutes.

This is a recipe that my mother got from my Grandma Sensenig. Now my mother has baked them for all her eight daughters' weddings. Just a few weeks ago was the last wedding and she baked 10 of these cakes.

I also have six brothers, three are married, with three at home yet. So my mother has done heaps of baking for all her 14 children already and has always been a wonderful mother to all of us.

My parents' names are Ivan and Hettie Sensenig. I am their third daughter, married to Ivan Stauffer. We have four boys and one girl. Names are Earl, 10; Jay Paul, 7; Ivan Ray, 5; Karen, 2; and Lavern, 1.

BEST EVER MEATLOAF

2 pounds ground beef
2 eggs, beaten
¾ cup oatmeal
½ cup milk
¼ teaspoon pepper
1½ teaspoon salt
Minced onion (optional)

Mix ingredients together thoroughly. Shape into loaf and bake at 350 degrees for one hour.

Our mom, Mrs. Elmer Burkholder, clipped this recipe out of a magzaine as a young bride. She has used it a lot in the years since. She always told us girls "the secret to making good meatloaf is to mix it very thoroughly." She has eight children (5 girls and 3 boys).

Happy Mother's Day, Mom.

From all of us

COCONUT CUSTARD PIE

3 cups whole milk
3 eggs, beaten
1 cup granulated sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter
2 rounded tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup coconut
9-inch pie crust

Spread coconut on bottom of pie crust. Beat eggs, add sugar, salt, and flour. Heat milk; add butter and vanilla. Combine mixture and put into 9-inch shell. Bake at 350 degrees until pie tests done when knife is inserted in center and comes out clean.

There is always something you can count on when going to Mom's house — and that's dessert! She also enjoys decorating cakes and with nine children and 21 grandchildren, she has plenty of opportunity to show off her talent.

Happy Mother's Day, Mom!

According to Jane Lewis, her mom Betty Weida makes the best stuffed peppers in the world.

STUFFED PEPPERS

1 pound ground beef
1 egg
4 slices bread, cut in small pieces
1 medium onion, diced
1½ teaspoons salt
Dash pepper
1 can tomato soup
4 large green peppers, cleaned, and tops cup off

Boil green peppers in a large pot of water until tender. Drain.

Mix ground beef, onion, salt, pepper, bread, and ⅔ can tomato soup in large mixing bowl.

Fill peppers with meat mixture. Set in a baking pan, then pour water in pan until it is ¼ -inch deep. This prevents peppers from burning on the bottom.

Bake in 375 degree oven for 40 minutes. Remove from oven and top the peppers with remaining tomato soup. Return to oven and bake for 15 minutes more.

This recipe is from my mom Betty Weida of Deptford, N.J. I think they are the best stuffed peppers in the world.

My mom always cooks my favorite meal on my birthday and I often choose stuffed peppers and corn on the cob. It's a perfect summertime meal.

Crabapple Trees In Bloom

WOOSTER, Ohio — Are you ready for prairie fires, molten lava, and snow drifts? Do you know Ralph Shay, Mary Potter, Bob White, or Donald Wyman? How does a candied apple or strawberry parfait sound? Do you appreciate all red jewels or do you prefer the ruby's luster?

These are all names of popular varieties of crabapple trees, and they'll soon be making a blooming appearance, according to Ohio State University's Ken Cochran, curator of the Secrest Arboretum at Ohio State University's Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center (OARDC) in Wooster.

"This spring has been normal in that we haven't gone from winter to summer and skipped over spring," Cochran said. "We've had a more gradual warming trend and even the freezing temperatures have been normal, though there has been some damage."

Cochran expects crabapple trees to begin blooming soon. "They will generally bloom for a week, barring heavy wind and rain, and if temperatures stay withing a 70-degree range."

Ohio State's Erik Draper, Jim Chatfield and Cochran tested 46 ornamental crabapple selections in 1995 for emergence, longevity and aesthetic qualities of the blooms. Strawberry Parfait, Molten Lava, Sentinel, White Cascade, Bob White, Mary Potter and Sugar Tyme were among the top 12.

Floral display is important when choosing an addition to landscapes. Cochran favors Prairifire for its pink blooms and purple-red fruits and coral-red flowers. Both Bob White and Donald Wyman are white bloomers, with Bob White producing yellow fruit and Donald Wyman red fruit.

Candymint and Sargent are excellent dwarf varieties, Cochran said. Candymint has pink blooms and Sargent produces white blooms. Molten Lava and Louisa are weeper trees that performed well in the OARDC tests. Molten Lava has red-orange fruits with white flowers that spread in a weeping pattern. It also winters well because of its layered, horizontal branching. Louisa produces pink blossoms and has more of an umbrella-shaped weeping pattern.

When choosing a crabapple tree, Cochran suggests buyers consider not only bloom, but also fruit, foliage, and disease and pest problems. Cochran recommends choosing disease resistant varieties. While diseases can still affect resistant cultivars, a rigorous spray control program can stop problems that may arise.

Apple scab, for example, affects many species of crabapples. Symptoms include gray, brown or black spots on leaves, yellowing and discoloration, and scabby lesions on fruits. The disease doesn't harm the tree, but does affect the beauty of leaves and fruits. Fungicides will combat the disease. Prairifire, Bob White and Strawberry Parfait were among the 45 selections tested in 1995 which exhibited no signs of apple scab.

Choosing crabapple trees with both good looks and disease resistance will yield the best result for landscapes, Cochran said. Combining varieties that bloom at different times will create a flowering effect that may last from two to three weeks.

Secrest Arboretum at OARDC's Wooster campus has more than 170 varieties of flowering crabapple trees. Visitors may drive through the arboretum to enjoy the crabapple blooms over the next couple of weeks.

For informaiton on blooming in the arboretum or other information concerning crabapple trees or ornamental plants, contact Ken Cochran, curator, Secrest Arobretum, OARDC, 1680 Madison Ave., Wooster, Ohio 44691, or call (330) 263-3761.

Farm Safety Camp Set

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Each year in Lancaster County, dozens of children are injured in farm accidents which require emergency room visits and hospitalizations. At least two children die. Most injuries appear to occur from falls, both through hay holes and from machinery and by other machinery related causes.

A farm should be a place where families can live and work without the suffering which occurs when children (and adults) are injured or killed. The Lancaster County Safe Kids Coalition, sponsored in part by St. Joseph Hospital, tries to support farming families by providing information and educational programs.

Saturday, June 14, will bring the third annual Lancaster Safe Kids Coalition Farm Safety Day Camp. The event will be held at the Solanco Fairgrounds from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. for children ages 8-13. Parents are welcome.

Any child from Lancaster County in this age group who lives, works, or plays on a farm is welcome to attend. As in the previous years, both English and Amish children are expected to attend.

The event is free to participants, and interested families need to call (717) 656-2791 for registration. There is a limit of participants. There will be free breakfast, lunch, snacks, door prizes, educational materials to take home, and T-shirts.

This year, the State Department of Agriculture has awarded the Lancaster Safe Kids Coalition with a $2,500 grant for the Farm Safety Day Camp through their Farm Safety and Occupational Health Grant. Additional support is provided by Cargill Grain, Marietta, and the Central Pa. Chapter of the American Society of Safety Engineers (ASSE).

Although many volunteers will assist with the Day Camp, the chief organizers are Dr. Albert Price, Roseville Pediatrics; Robert Anderson, Penn State Extension; Don and Carol Trimble; Donsell Farm; Joe Iacona, LGH; Nathan Rettig, Cargill Grain; Leann Drumm, LGH; Dorothy Swope; Kay Moyer, State Health Dept.; Eileen Kitch; Naomi Johnson; Richard Murphy; Beverly Price; Donna Robinson and Debbie LeBerger, The Clinic for Special Children; and Shari Keyser-Groff, coordinator of the Lancaster County Safe Kids Coalition.

The hands-on and educational stations this year will include tractor safety, chemical safety, safety with animals, electrical safety, water safety, fire safety, and 911.

HAPPENINGS

Adams County 4-H Presentation Night

Adams County 4-H Presentation Night was held at Biglerville High School on Thursday, April 24.

Eighteen junior and seven senior 4-H illustrated presentations were given. One junior and four senior prepared speeches were presented. One junior and seven senior 4-H members presented impromptu speeches.

The objective of 4-H Presentation Night is to provide an opportunity for 4-H members to practice organizing and presenting an idea in front of a group. They are able to demonstrate their communication skills in a competitive format and receive constructive comments from judges. 4-H leaders and parents served as judges for the evening.

Junior 4-H members receiving a blue ribbon award for their presentations were April Smelser, Arendtsville; Joel Gilbert, York Springs; Erin Geske-Davis, Gettysburg; Sara Ann Oyler, Biglerville; Taylor Diaz, Gettysburg; Elizabeth Brown, Littlestown; Laura Bishop, Biglerville; Savannah Ruth, New Oxford; Albert Day, Littlestown; Jennifer Rhoades, Littlestown; Katy Baldwin, Biglerville; Clayton Wood, Littlestown; Kevin Kessler, Gettysburg; Melissa Jeffcoat, Littlestown; and Charles Brown, Littlestown. Red ribbon presenters were Brad Campbell, Abbottstown and Brian Baldwin, Biglerville.

Senior 4-H members receiving a blue ribbon award for their presentations were Kristi Cunningham, Biglerville; Laura Burdette, Biglerville; Chris Jeffcoat, Littlestown; Sarah Smith, New Oxford; Meghan Bishop, Biglerville; and Jonathan Murren, New Oxford. Chrissy Dibert, Gettysburg, received a red ribbon for her senior presentation.

Vincent Gilbert received a blue ribbon award for his junior division prepared speech.

The following 4-H members presented senior division prepared speeches and received a blue ribbon award: Zeb Eckert, New Oxford; and Amber Day, Littlestown. Adam Jones, New Oxford, received a white ribbon for his prepared speech.

Zachary Eckert, Gettysburg, received a blue ribbon award for his junior impromptu speech.

Senior impromptu 4-H speakers who received a blue ribbon award were Wayne Flickinger, Biglerville, and Chris Gembe, York Springs. Following are senior impromptu speakers who received a red ribbon award: Jessi Leister, Gettysburg; Andrew Reinecker, York Springs; Jesse Murren, New Oxford; and Jonathan Reinecker, York Springs.

Wayne Flickinger served as master of ceremonies for the evening awards program. Kristi Cunningham assisted with game and song-leading and Joyce Funt, senate adviser, presented awards to all participants. Adams County 4-H Senate presented each registered presenter or speaker with a 4-H T-shirt. Registration was organized by the Bonneauville 4-H Club and the evening concluded with refreshments served by the 4-H Beef Club.

Susquehanna County 4-H

The annual dairy judging contest at Delaware Valley College was held April 19. The junior team placed first in the contest.

The junior team had to evaluate six classes of animals and give oral reasons on one class. The team consisted of Matthew and Heather Pease of Susquehanna, Andy Onyon of New Milford, and Justin Garner of Montrose.

Matthew Pease placed 1st in reasons and 4th in placings. Heather Pease placed 3rd in reasons and 16th in placings. Andy Onyon placed 5th in reasons and 10th in placings. Justin Garner placed 3rd in placings and 20th in reasons. Team members received trophies and ribbons for their accomplishments.

Kathryn and Abigail Onyon also competed in the contest as individuals. Katie placed 17th in placings and Abby placed 18th in placings. Andrea Garner also competed in the contest as a senior individual. The seniors were asked to evaluate six classes of animals and give oral reasons on two classes. Andrea faired well, finishing fifth in the overall contest.

Golden Fleece Sheep Club

The Golden Fleece Sheep Club met April 13 at Leader Barbara Cottrell's home at 7:30 p.m.

Vice President Robin Ahearn called the meeting to order and Amanda Gaffey led the Pledge of Allegiance and Jason Corey led the 4-H Pledge.

The secretary's report was read by Amanda, then Sarah gave the treasurer's report. Discussion was held on fund raisers and about getting jackets for new members. They also talked about doing community service.

Locust Hill Community Club

The April meeting of the Locust Hill 4-H Club was called to order at 7:15 p.m. on April 14 by President Greg Colwell.

The Pledge of Allegiance and 4-H pledges were led by Game Leader Tom Fisher.

Seven people became new members: Tiffany Tompkins, Stephanie Tompkins, Autumn Tompkins, Monica Rivenburg, Natasha Beach, Alan Russell and Amanda Russell.

Under "old business," the club discussed community service and favored a cleanup day to be held at Newman's Cemetery. A fundraising bake sake is set for May 10.

The members would like to attend a baseball game again this summer. They also discussed a cleanup day for the Great Bend Park.

There are five members interested in attending Camp Brule this year. Under "new business" it was announced that an Officer's Training would be held on April 17. Officers were encouraged to attend.

Bits & Bosals Horse & Pony Club

The Bits & Bosals 4-H Club meeting was held on April 16 at 7 p.m. at the Glezen's home.

Sixteen members were present. They discussed all the shows for the coming year.

May 10-11 is a 4-H clinic at the Harford Fairgrounds. The 10th is for Western riders and the 11th is for English riders.

The scholarship show is May 24. April 27 is the first speed show at Harford. Horse and Pony Camp is June 20-22. County 4-H Horse & Pony Roundup is July 26 and the 4-H District show is September.

Once again, everyone did a demonstration. Each person had to list one safety tip and something that he/she learned while in 4-H. Club High Point trophy awards for 1996 were distributed as follows: Shannon Skiba, senior western champion; Kelly Armstrong, senior western reserve champion and senior Gmykhana champion; Justin Taylor, junior western champion; Lindsey Glezen, junior western reserve and junior Gymkhana champion; Justina Swavola, senior english champion; Devin Glezen, junior english champion; and Robert Lagermasini, walk-trot champion. The next meeting is May 21 at 7 p.m. at the Smith's barn.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — Louise Graybeal, Renick, W.V., wanted a recipe for Italian stewed tomatoes for canning. Thanks to a reader for sending the following recipe.

Italian Tomatoes

1 quart green tomatoes
2 peppers, hot or sweet
3 tablespoons salt
1 quart vinegar
2 teaspoons tumeric
5 onions
1 quart cabbage
2 cups brown sugar
1 tablespoon mustard seed

Chop vegetables fine and mix together. Add sugar, spices, salt, and vinegar. Cook slowly 30 minutes. Pack into hot jars and seal.

ANSWER — Thanks to Krista Schaibler, Riegelsville, for answering Ann Harner's request for English muffins made in a bread machine.

English Muffin Bread

¼ cup warm water
1 cup warm milk
1 teaspoon salt
3 cups all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons sugar
⅛ teaspoon baking soda
2¼ teaspoon yeast

Whole Wheat English Muffin Bread: Replace 1 cup all-purpose flour with 1 cup whole wheat flour

Cinnamon-Date English Muffin Bread: Add 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon, ½ cup chopped dates (at fruit and nut beep on the bread machine)

Orange-Nut English Muffin Bread: Add 1 teaspoon grated orange peel, ½ cup chopped toasted blanched almonds (at fruit and nut beep).

Follow directions for adding ingredients and setting controls on your machine.

ANSWER — Rhonda McDonald, 767 Ridge Ave., Canonsburg, had a chicken that kept getting in the nest and breaking eggs. Rhonda wanted to know what to do to stop the hen's destructiveness. Thanks to Moses Renno, Mifflintown, who wrote that it is important to feed plenty of calcium, oyster shells, and grit, plus add calcium to the feed. If you have a confirmed egg eater, the best, and perhaps the only cure, is to trim off the beak way back behind the ears. It's best to have hot water handy, and perhaps invite a few guests for Sunday supper.

With a Match for over 1400 Tractor Models, BUSH HOG HAS A LOADER FOR YOU

Bush Hog's QT Series Front End Loaders now match over 1400 different tractor models. From the smaller 1845 model for 12-25 HP tractors, to the big 4845 model for 90-150 HP tractors, there's a model just right for your tractor and job application. And there are plenty of attachments - material buckets, fork lifts, bale spears and more. Take a good look at any of the eight Bush Hog models. All feature quick connect and disconnect, ease of operation and adjusting.

BUSH HOG

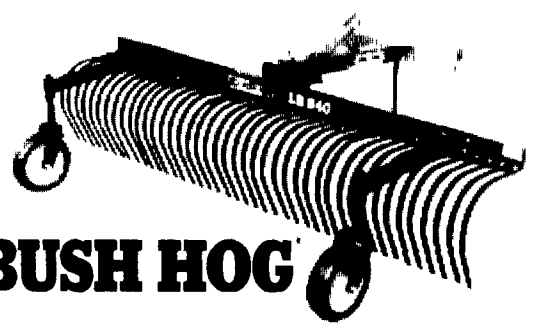
Three Backhoe Models To Match Your Tractor and Digging Requirements

BUSH HOG®
DIVISION OF ALLIED PRODUCTS CORPORATION

The Bush Hog line of rugged backhoes gives you a digging depth from 8 to 10-1/2 feet. This quality backhoe features ease of operation, with all working functions controlled by two handy levers within easy reach of the adjustable, cushioned operator's seat. And you can select from a wide range of bucket sizes to match your job needs. Models are available for 20 to 100 HP tractors.

BUSH HOG

The Right Tool for Dozens of Material Handling Applications.



BUSH HOG

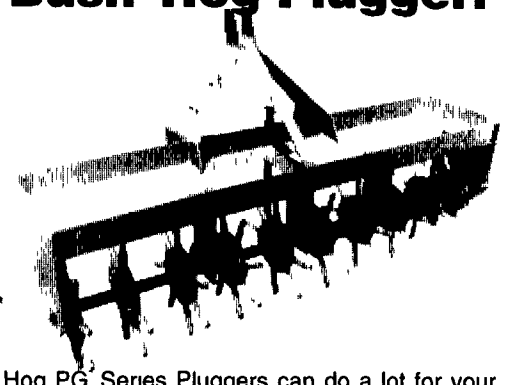
Whether your job is preparing soil, spreading topsoil, removing rocks and debris from fields or leveling driveways, a Bush Hog Landscape Rake can do it all. And these material handling implements are available in a choice of 60, 72 or 84-inch widths. Recommended maximum tractor horsepower is 35.

Four Tools In One.

BUSH HOG

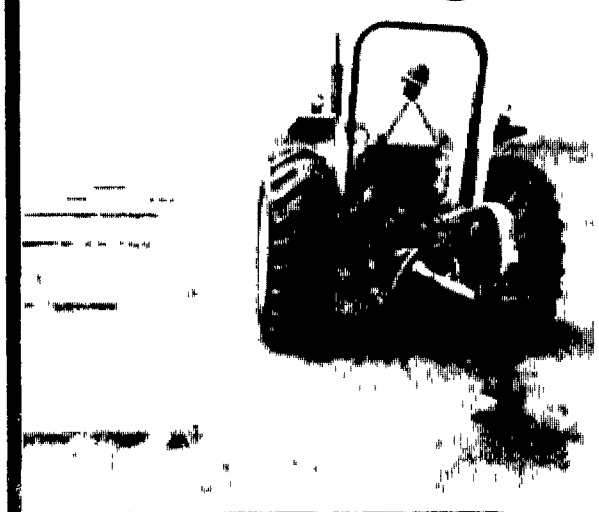
Bush Hog BX Series Box Blades scrape, back fill, back blade and scarify. These lift type implements are available in 48, 60, 65, 72 and 84-inch working widths. They feature a heavy duty A-frame, heavy duty double strap hitch, heavy 3/8-inch side plates, two high carbon heat-treated cutting edges that are reversible and replaceable and replaceable points and shanks. Shanks are easily adjustable from 0 to 3 inches. Ideal for maintaining driveways, feedlots and dozens of other uses.

Improve Your Lawn or Field With A Genuine Bush Hog Plugger.



Bush Hog PG Series Pluggers can do a lot for your lawn or field... removes core from turf, allows lawn to breathe, holds moisture, assists air and fertilizer in reaching plant roots and relieves compacted soil and moisture.
These tools are available in working widths of 30, 48, 60 or 72-inches. The 30-inch model can be towed by a riding lawn mower or ATV, making it ideal for improving wild game food plots. Larger models feature a Category I, 3-point hitch, and all models include deep weight racks.
The PG Series Pluggers from Bush Hog also feature heavy duty construction throughout.

Three Ways To Dig a Hole.



The utility model 2101 post hole digger from Bush Hog is rated for tractors under 40 HP and has a 6 or 9-inch auger. The 2102 agricultural model has augers from 6 to 24-inches in diameter, and the tough industrial model 2103 is slip clutch protected and has augers from 6 to 24-inches. In addition, with the 2103 an optional downforce cylinder delivers over 500 lbs of extra digging muscle
So whether you have big construction jobs or simple post holes to dig, there's a Bush Hog Post Hole Digger just right for your application

BUSH HOG

Chew up 5" diameter limbs, shred leaves and Brush into Mulch

Bush Hog Chipper/Shredders are the landscaper's choice, they produce valuable mulch and fine wood chips. This rugged line of chippers/shredders is available in three models with 13 or 18 horsepower self-powered units, or a 3 point tractor mount model that easily attaches to tractors with a minimum of 18 hp. Options include blower attachments that direct material flow, vacuum clean-up attachments and a choice of four grate sizes to vary the size of material discharge.

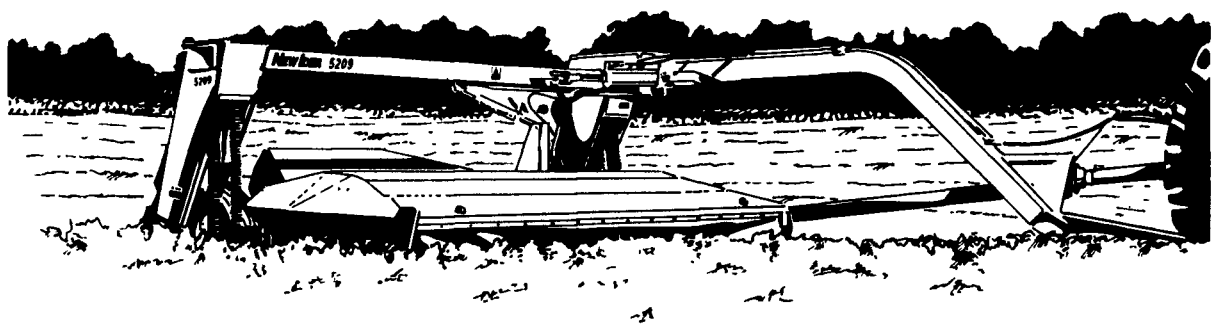
Cuts More Than Hay Cuts Time



New Idea 5209 modular disc mower conditioner designed to cut hay fast.

- Simply designed for reliability, New Idea disc mowing system gets you out of the field fast. Glides through heavy, tough conditions.
- Conditioning rolls gently crimp hay to speed drying. Yet, treat nutrient-rich leaves gently.
- Designed and made in America for North America's farmers and ranchers.
- Encased disc gearbox design eliminates the need for daily fluid checks and assures consistent lubrication even when cutting at extreme angles.
- Power out plug removal system allows you to remove plugs without leaving your tractor seat.
- Three-point flotation moves disc cutterbar in all directions to follow ground contour.
- Ask about competitive financing plans through Agricredit Acceptance Company.

USDA Seeks Farmers For Washington, D.C. Market

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A unique opportunity for Pennsylvania farmers to market produce has been announced by Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius.

The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) has invited farmers in nearby states to participate in its Washington, D.C. Farmers' Market.

This year's market will be held on Fridays and begin in late June or early July and continue into the fall.

"Participation in the Washington market is a positive experience for our farmers," Brosius said. "They can provide high quality, nutritious produce to consumers who may not otherwise have access to a farm market. Farmers' markets also provide farm families with another source of income."

The market is held in the parking lot at USDA headquarters, 12th Street and Independence Avenue, Washington, D.C. There is a limited amount of space, so criteria — such as quality of product, commitment to take part regularly, product mix — will be used in determining who is eligible to receive a space.

There are approximately 150 farmers' markets in Pennsylvania that provide fresh, nutritious fruits, vegetables and other farm products. The commonwealth's farmers benefit from an estimated $100 million in direct to consumer sales.

Farmers who are interested in applying for the Washington, D.C. market consideration should contact Lee Powell at (202) 720-8219.

PA POULTRY INDUSTRY AND DEREGULATION OF ELECTRIC GENERATION

Dennis E. Buffington,
Professor
Dept. of Agricultural and Biological Engineering

Deregulation of electric generation means that you will be able to select the company that generates the electricity that you use.

The state legislature passed the law to deregulate the generation of electricity in Pennsylvania late in 1996. Both the investor-owned utility companies and the rural electric co-ops are impacted by this legislation.

However, the transmission and distribution of electricity will remain regulated. Furthermore, your local utility company will continue to distribute electricity to you and provide customer esrvice to you.

Deregulation is not new; you probably remember previous deregulations involving trucking, airline travel, natural gas, and long-distance telephone service. Now it is the generation of electricity that is being deregulated.

When will deregulation take place? One-third of all customer classes (residential, commercial, and industiral) must have freedom of choice for selecting an electric generator by January 1, 1999. Two-thirds of all customer classes must have free choice by January 1, 2000 with all customers having freedom of choice by January 1, 2001. In the meantime, utility companies are establishing pilot programs that will begin later in 1997 so that the utility companies and those customers in the pilot programs gain experiences of operating in the deregulated environment.

The Pennsylvania poultry industry is a significant user of electricity. It is estimated that the industry uses at least $15 million worth of electricity per year with the following breakdown: broilers — $6 million; layers — $6 million; turkeys — $2 million; other — $1 million; for a total of $15 million per year.

These estimates were based on 1995 agricultural statistics and the average energy consumption for poultry in the mid-Atlantic states.

There will be additional customer choices in the future. Today you buy just your electricity from your designated utility company. In the near future, there will be many products and services that will be offered by utility companies in addition to electricity. These additional products and services may include propane, diesel fuel, energy services, financing, equipment, and maintenance of equipment.

Also in the future, there will be many people and organizations contacting you to secure your business. You probably will be getting a lot of pesky phone calls at 6:30 p.m. when you are sitting down to enjoy supper.

You do not need to take any actions today to respond to the deregulation that will be taking place. However, you should begin to become better informed of what options may be available to you in the deregulation environment. Several steps to complete before you need to make a decision include:

•Identify your big users of electricity.

•Determine how you can modify your load profile. The more attractive your load profile is to an electricity provider (that is, when electricity is used), the more effectively you can negotiate with the electricity provider to get a favorable rate.

I cannot possibly overemphasize the importance of calculating the cost of electricity per unit production for the various phases of your operation. Average consumption rates of electricity for broiler production and processing are estimated as:

•Hatching — 0.05 kWh/bird
•Feed milling — 0.08 kWh/bird
•Growout — 0.16 kWh/bird
•Processing plant — 0.33 kWh/bird
•Waste treatment — 0.07 kWh/bird
•Total — 0.7 kWh/bird
•Cost — 4.9 cents/bird (assuming 7 cents/kWh).

The cost of propane for broiler production and processing is estimated at about 4.5 cents per bird, so total expenses for electricity and propane are 9.5 cents per bird or approximately two cents per pound live weight, or three cents per pound dressed weight.

•Feed milling — 0.01 kWh/dozen
•Housing — .014 kWh/dozen
•On-farm processing — 0.02 kWh/dozen
•Total — 0.17 kWh/dozen

The surest way to reduce your expenses for electricity is to use less electricity. However, whenever energy conservation programs are being considered, evaluate all the implications of reducing electricity consumption.

For example, ventilation in confined animal structures can be reduced considerably with a corresponding reduction in the utility bill. However, the reduced ventilation may result in poor indoor air quality that will replace production levels of the birds. This would be an example of "penny wise and pound foolish."

There is much additional information that is needed before you can make a decision to select the most appropriate electricity provider. More information will be available from your utility company, cooperative extension, trade journals, popular press, and the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission. There will also be additional articles in Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission. There will also be additional articles in Lancaster Farming pointing out the opportunities for you to benefit from the deregulation of electric generation.

Dairy Sales Team Adds Two

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Pennfield Corporation has announced the addition of Oscar Sipler and Rick Ellerson to its dairy feed sales team as dairy feed consultants.

Sipler, a graduate of the University of Maryland with a bachelor's in animal science, worked as an intern for the University of Maryland on a rate of gain study in heifers. As a Pennfield dairy consultant, Sipler will be responsible for covering southern Lebanon and Dauphin counties.

Ellerson, a graduate of S.U.N.Y. at Cobleskill with a degree in animal science, will be a dairy consultant for Pennfield Feeds in New York, covering Cortland and Onondago counties, as well as parts of Chenango and Madison counties. Ellerson has had experience as an independent nutritionist for nine years. He has also been a herdsman and manager on dairy farms.

Farmers First Names V.P.

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — Farmers First Bank has recently named Andrew C. Terrell as vice president of agricultural lending.

Prior to working with Farmers First, Terrell was a vice president of corporate lending with Meridian Bank and CoreStates Bank. He has also held positions with the USDA Crop Reporting Service and the Lancaster Farm Credit Service.

Terrell was graduated from Penn State and earned his bachelor's degree in agricultural business management. He has also completed numerous courses through the American Banking Association and Robert Morris Association.

Outside of banking, he has been involved in the Lancaster Red Rose Sertoma, Lancaster and Lebanon chambers of commerce, and the Welsh Mountain Medical Center.

Chemgro Seeks To Market DuPont Product

DES MOINES, Iowa — DuPont Agricultural Products and Chemgro Seeds announced that Chemgro Seeds will be marketing seed capable of producing DuPont Optimum® High Oil Corn during 1998.

"DuPont is pleased to offer Optimum® High Oil Corn to customers of Chemgro Seeds. This partnership makes it possible for producers to harvest more value per acre, provide feed for livestock, or both. High oil corn also provides producers and grain handlers more control of their marketing options," said Soren Raveling, sales specialist, DuPont Quality Grains of Des Moines, Iowa. Quality Grains is a unit of DuPont Agricultural Products, Wilmington, Del.

"We are excited about our relationship with DuPont. Our field trail results with the Top Cross Grain Production System have demonstrated potential for our customers to harvest more end-use value per acre with Optimum High Oil Corn. It offers us the opportunity to provide our customers with a superior feed product that can help their botton line," said Chemgro's Jim Bowersox.

Optimum High Oil Corn, which has an oil content as high as 8.5 percent compared with four percent or less in typical dent corn varieties, was harvested from approximately 350,000 acres in 1996. Nearly 1 million acres are expected to be planted in 1997, Raveling said.

Celebration Of Music, Arts At Recreation Area

WYOMISSING (Berks Co.) — The Berks County Parks and Recreation Department will present the 16th Annual Celebration of Music and the Arts at Gring's Mill Recreation Area, Wyomissing, on Sunday, August 3, from noon-8 p.m.

The day will feature a variety of musical groups, craft demonstrations, jugglers, activities for children, and much more. There is no admission to this event.

Listen to the beautiful bells of Cast in Bronze, a portable carillon. Enjoy the delightful music of the historic Ringgold Band, which was established during the Civil War. The Reading Pops Orchestra will present the final concert, beginning at 6 p.m.

Talented artists will be demonstration and selling their crafts from noon-6 p.m. Children are invited to create their own art at craft funshops. Entries to the Senior Arts Contest will be on display. Residents of Berks County 55 years or over, are encouraged to enter. Call (610) 374-8839 to receive an entry form.

Food and refreshments will be available. A $2 parking donation will be collected. Visitors are encouraged to bring a chair or blanket.

Northeastern Farm Credit Introduces Manager

LEWISBURG (Union Co.) — Northeastern Farm Credit, ACA has introduced Kevin D. Rimmey as new area manager on its two northern divisions.

Rimmey, a 15-year veteran of the Farm Credit system, comes to northeastern Pennsylvania from Farm Credit Services of Mid-America in Washington Court House, Ohio where he was employed as SAM department manager.

Rimmey began his Farm Credit career in 1982 as a field representative/loan officer in the Upper Chesapeake Farm Credit, ACA in Bel Air, Md. He quickly moved up to senior loan officer in 1985 and the following year became vice president of credit/operations.

In 1986, he relocated to Pennsylvania and Penn West Farm Credit, ACA. Within four years he became branch manager and in 1994 became executive marketing officer. In 1995, Rimmey became part of Farm Credit Services of Mid-America in Ohio.

A graduate of Penn State, Rimmey has a bachelor's degree in agricultural mechanization. He has continued his education and training through more than 400 hours of professional improvement seminars in the areas of leadership, finance, marketing, and professional development.

Also, Brian J. Dygert returns to Northeastern Farm Credit, ACA's Towanda branch following a five-month absence.

Dygert, a New York native, had left Pennsylvania in November 1996 and was working for Farm Credit of Western New York in Hornell, N.Y. as a loan officer. Previously he had been working as a loan officer in the Towanda branch office of Northeastern Farm Credit since April 1993.

With his return, Dygert will be attending various new trainings that have been implemented since his departure. Dygert attended the State University of New York at Fredonia in Fredonia, N.Y., where he earned a bachelor's degree in business administration in May 1991.

New Loader Means More Uses For Tractors

RACINE, Wis. — With the introduction of the new Case IH 890 loader, farmers will get even more use from their 8900 Series Magnum™ tractors, according to Roger Lewno, Case Corporation marketing specialist, tractors.

"Fully utilizing a Magnum means using the tractor for more than pulling implements," he said. "There are a host of attachments to make the loader and tractor combo as versatile as possible, and new attachments are continually being introduced to meet farmers' needs."

The 890 loader is self-leveling and features a low-profile design that helps keep sight lines clear during operation for excellent visibility to the work area and increased safety. It has a lift capacity of 4,100 pounds (1,859 kg), a breakout force of 6,700 pounds (3,039 kg), and a lift height of 14.2 feet (4.32 m).

Available in a mid-mount style that features a quick attach/detach mechanism, the 890 hoses connect to the tractor remote hydraulics rear outlets and a quick-disconnect point of the loader mounting brackets. The mid-mount style has the option of a single-lever joystick with either two or three functions. Other features of the mid-mount style include an integral grille guard, built-in weight frame and a bucket-level indicator.

Equipped with the new Case IH 890 loader, an 8900 Series Magnum™ tractor can tackle dozens of applications, including handling bales, transporting pallets, moving snow and dirt, carrying manure, and stocking the feedlot and feed bunks.

The 890 is also available in a rear-mount style in which the hoses simply connect to the tractor remote hydraulics rear outlets.

"Case offers attachments to make the 890 loader and Magnum tractor combo an integral part of any farming operation," Lewno said. "Productivity and efficiency are enhanced, and, because the tractor is handling multiple tasks, the need for new equipment purchases is reduced."

Attachments currently available through Case IH dealerships include:

- Two heavy-duty buckets, available in 96- and 108-inch sizes, for light- and heavy-load duties, such as snow removal and carrying gravel or dirt.
- Bale spikes for the handling of round straw or hay bales.
- Pallet forks to transport pallets and crates of seed, fertilizer, etc.
- Manure tines that attach to the 96-inch bucket for feedlot chores.
- Bale grapples, available for both sizes of buckets, for moving bales of hay, straw or silage to the feedlot or feed bunks.

Insect Protection Technology

SHAWNEE MISSION, Kan. — A longtime leader in alfalfa research and development, Agripro Seeds, Inc. has introduced two new alfalfas for the 1997 growing season — one with revolutionary bred-in insect protection and the other with an outstanding package of disease resistance and continuous grazing tolerance.

New AgriPro Interceptor is a fall dormancy 3 alfalfa with bred-in AlfaGuard ℠ insect protection technology. Glandular hairs tipped with sticky resin protrude from stems of Interceptor plants to ward off the No. 1 insect pest in alfalfa — potato leafhopper.

"Our researchers have invested more than 10 years developing the AlfaGuard technology that produces glandular hair," said Dr. Mark Jacques, manager of product development at Agripro. "It is a significant, bred-in advantage that will help alfalfa growers maintain the quality and quantity of forage produced."

According to Dr. Jim Moutray, director of alfalfa research at Agripro, "Interceptor and future AgriPro alfalfas protected by AlfaGuard technology can reduce the need to apply foliar insecticides for control of potato leafhoppers while providing the high yields and quality of our conventional alfalfas.

"Interceptor has an upright growth habit with dark green foliage, good drought stress tolerance, winterhardiness and stand persistence," Moutray said. "The complete package of outstanding disease resistance, glandular hair insect protection and high yield potential should make it a consideration for growers in any area that has a potential for potato leafhopper infestation."

New Feast from Agripro is a top-of-the-line grazing alfalfa that was developed under actual grazing conditions to survive continuous livestock feeding and traffic.

"Feast has an outstanding package of disease resistance and grazing tolerance that will allow growers and livestock producers the flexibility and cost savings associated with a haying or grazing alfalfa — with the added benefit of excellent persistence under rotational grazing," Moutray said.

"It has aggressive upright growth and large crowns that help it recover quickly after cutting or grazing and it will withstand mismanagement better than standard haying varieties," he said.

FEED WITHDRAWAL BEFORE SLAUGHTER

Most producers allow hogs free access to the feeder until they are marketed.

More than half of these hogs (at least in the Northeast) are killed and processed on the same day they are marketed. This means a lot of feed in the digestive tract is undigested, leaving the gut heavy and distended.

This feed waste costs the producer money, and also creates a higher risk of gut puncture and bacterial contamination for the packer. Over the last three years, we've conducted six experiments to determine the impact of withholding feed before slaughter. Here is a brief summary of the results.

Early Studies

In each of first four experiments, 79-80 finishing hogs were used. Withdrawal time varied with the experiment, but ranged from 18 to 27 hours prior to slaughter. In experiments 1 and 2, all pigs in a pen were marketed as a group. In experiments 3 and 4, pigs in a pen were marketed in two groups, two days apart. In all experiments, feed intake in the last 24 hours before slaughter and gut weights were significantly less in the feed withdrawal groups. Carcass weight, carcass value, and all Fat-O-Meat'er measurements were similar.

Experiment 5 was conducted on a larger scale, using typical marketing techniques and a total of 24 pens and 528 hogs. Pigs were marketed from each pen at one-week intervals (week 1, 4 hogs; week 2, 8 hogs; week 3, 10 hogs).

Pigs in half the pens had free access to feed. Feed was withheld in the remaining pens 24 hr prior to slaughter. During the first week, carcass weights and values were similar for both groups. However, during the second and third weeks, both carcass value and weight were slightly lower for pigs whose feed had been withdrawn.

We're not sure why the results of Experiment 5 differed from those of the first four experiments. The first four studies included only about 80 pigs, which may not have been enough to see true differences associated with feed withdrawal. Furthermore, experiments 1-4 were conducted during winter or spring, whereas Experiment 5 was conducted during the summer. The high temperatures observed during the last experiment clearly decreased feed intake, which may have affected our results.

Recent Study

Our most recent experiment was completed in November 1996. The study was conducted in cooler weather and a 16-hour withdrawal time were added to help us determine whether 24 hours is too long, or if the negative effects observed in last summer's trial were weather-related.

The study was funded in part by the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council, Hatfield Quality Meats, and White Oak Mills. The experiment was conducted under commercial conditions at the LaMar Troup farm near Benfer, Pa.

The study was conducted with 36 pens of pigs (25 pigs per pen). Pigs were marketed from each pen on each of three successive weeks to simulate normal marketing practices. On the first date, three pigs were marketed; on the second date, six pigs were marketed; on the third date, all other pigs in the pen were marketed weighing at least 230 pounds after which the experiment was terminated. On each date, data were collected from three sample pigs.

Twelve of the pens had free access to feed while in the barn (CONTROL), 12 pens had feed withdrawn 16 hours before slaughter (16-HR), and 12 pens had feed withdrawn 24 hours (24-HR) before slaughter. Note that with this arrangement, pigs in the third marketing group would have had the feeders shut off three times before their respective market date.

All pigs were transported to Hatfield Quality Meats (151 miles; 3-hour transit time), departing at about 7:30 a.m. on each marketing date, and killed at noon. We recorded carcass weights and values, and gut weights. The following day a sample of muscle was taken from the right ham of each pig and evaluated for color, firmness, and marbling, and later subjected to tenderness measurements.

Throughout the trial feed intake was monitored for each pen.

Results

1. In all slaughter groups, pigs on the 16-HR treatment had slaughter weights similar or higher than those of the CONTROL. In the 24-HR treatment, carcass weights were statistically similar to those of the CONTROL, but in general, were about 2-3 pounds less than those of the other two groups. These results are in close agreement with the summer study from 1995.

2. Gut weights were significantly reduced in both the 16-HR and 24-HR groups, compared to that of the CONTROL, on all slaughter dates. We made the same observation with all previous studies.

3. As we observed in the 1995 study, pigs from the third slaughter date in the 24-HR group tended to be leaner and have a higher percentage of lean cuts.

This increased the carcass price and helped to make up for the slightly lower carcass weights.

4. There was no effect of feed withdrawal on color, firmness, marbling, or tenderness in fresh pork.

5. Pigs housed in the 16-HR and 24-HR groups consumed less feed over the course of the experiment than those in the CONTROL pens. Over the 14-day marketing period the total feed consumption per pen was 1,991 pounds for the CONTROL group, 1,920 pounds for 16-HR group, and 1,688 pounds for the 24-HR group. When considering actual feed costs and carcass values, the calculated net savings of withdrawing feed was $.62 and $.93 per pig, for the 16-HR and 24-HR groups, respectively.

Conclusions

Withdrawing feed from hogs prior to marketing appears to benefit both the producer and the packer. A 16-hr withdrawal prior to the anticipated slaughter time appears to have no impact on carcass weight or value, but can save money in feed costs.

The next step will be to develop a system that enables producers to shut the feed off at precisely the right time. At present, the only alternatives producers have is to turn the feeder adjustments down (as we did in this experiment) or shut off the feed flow into the drop tube above the feeder. Either practice is possible, but not especially practical in large operations. Some companies manufacture feeders that can be easily turned off; however, few producers have these feeders.

We're exploring ways of retrofitting existing feeders with a quick shutoff mechanism.

School of Veterinary Medicine
UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA

OVERVIEW: SPORTS MEDICINE AT NEW BOLTON CENTER'S GEORGE D. WIDENER HOSPITAL

Bone scans using nuclear scintigraphy, a high speed treadmill, laser surgery, diagnostic ultrasound, echocardiography, exercise electrocardiography, endoscopic examination of an exercising horse — who would have thought 30 years ago when New Bolton Center's hospital for large animals opened that these techniques would be available and would lead not only to better diagnostic and treatment methods, but also present new ways for researchers to understand complex problems affecting performance horses?

Continuing the strong tradition of the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine of advancing diagnostic and treatment methods, New Bolton Center's clicians are working in multispecialty groups, taking advantage of one of the largest clinical equine case loads at a veterinary teaching hospital.

The Sports Medicine and Imaging Section of the George D. Widener Hospital at New Bolton Center (NBC) is a multi-disciplinary group of veterinarians board certified in radiology, medicine and surgery and many specially trained technicians. The section includes the high speed Jeffords Treadmill Facility, exercise physiology, ultrasound/cardiology, radiology, scintigraphy (nuclear medicine), the Outpatient Clinic, and podology.

The following is an overview of some case examples from the Sports Medicine program at NBC, founded on the long history of innovative treatment of equine orthopedic, respiratory, cardiac, and foot problems.

After four years of operation, the Jeffords Treadmill Facility under the direction of Dr. Ben Martin, assistant professor of sports medicine, has been utilized for diagnostic evaluation of more than 600 equine athletes.

"We have found that a substantial number of horses experience dynamic changes in the upper airways that can significantly affect their performance when running at high speed," said Maritn. "These abnormalities include pharyngeal collapse, dorsal displacement of the soft palate, laryngeal hemiplegia (roaring), as well as other problems which are not apparent when the horse is evaluated standing. We hope to develop diagnostic techniques that veterinarians can use in the field to help detect such abnormalities in the standing horse."

Many of these performance-affecting abnormaliities can be treated by conventional surgical techniques or using a surgical laser.

Martin and his associate, Dr. Eric Parente, are pleased with the information provided by a high speed treadmill evaluation especially when it involves their Standardbred patients.

"The symmetric gait of the Standardbred makes them a great subject to evaluate high speed lameness on the treadmill," said Dr. Parente, assistant professor of sports medicine.

Clinicians are using some of the highest quality video equipment available in conjunction with standard diagnostic nerve blocking procedures and slow motion video playback to help to identify difficult to detect sources of lameness.

Clients are surprised to find that in many cases their horses' performance problem is due to undetectable lameness.

According to Dr. Ben Martin, "Fifteen percent of the cases presented for high speed treadmill exams are lame. It is apparent that lameness can be a significant cause of poor performance."

While gaits are videotaped on the treadmill and later analyzed, bones and soft tissue are also examined by radiology, ultrasonography and scintigraphy. Sophisticated scintigraphic techniques (bone scans) are a sensitive way of localizing abnormalities of the bone or soft tissue but are not specific for what's producing the abnormality.

"The use of Xeroradiography helps clinicians to more clearly define hairline or other indistinct fractures," said Dr. Charles Reid, professor of radiology.

In addition to bone and joint problems, soft tissue injury is also a concern. The use of diagnostic ultrasound helps clinicians to more clearly define soft tissue injuries such as injuries to the tendons, ligaments, tendon sheaths or muscles.

Dr. Virginia Reef, professor of medicine and chief of the Sports Medicine and Imaging Section at NBC, is working on a bowed tendon study evaluating the quality of healing of bowed tendons using a series of Beta-aminoproprionitrile (APN) (an investigational drug found in seeds of the wild sweet pea) injections directly into the injured tendon. Thus far, the results have been very encouraging. Reef is also the author of the first book on equine diagnostic ultrasound being published this year by W.B. Saunders in Philadelphia.

The normal treadmill workup which includes cardiac evaluation before and after exercise, radiotelemetry ECG monitoring during the exercise, and pre- and post-exercise echocardiography, has detected heart function abnormalities.

"A surprising number of horses exhibit arrhythmias during exercise," explained Dr. Abby Maxson, assistant professor of medicine. "These arrhythmias prevent the heart from pupmping blood efficiently. Some clearly affect performance."

The cardiologists are measuring horses' arterial oxygen, carbon dioxide, and electrolyte levels during and after exercise. Cardiologists are examining a possible link between upper airway problems, resultant lower arterial oxygen concentrations, and cardiac arrhythmia during exercise.

Immediate post-exercise echocardiography is valuable in the detection of myocardial dysfunction which may be associated with poor performance. A number of noninvasive techniques will be available once additional diagnostic equipment has been obtained.

"In the future, we hope to be able to use transesophageal echocardiography (a specially designed probe with a camera that drops down the esophagus and images the chest cavity) to dynamically examine the function of the horse's heart while exercising at higher speeds," said Reef.

The equine upper airway is a major interest of Dr. Parente's and one of his studies is evaluating the

Cleanliness Is Best Defense Against Dairy Calf Parasite

DES MOINES, Iowa — Although researchers are making progress in finding a treatment for a common parasite in young dairy calves, the best line of defense remains cleanliness and good management, according to a researcher with the USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

"The protozoan parasite Cryptosporidium parvum is now recognized as one of the leading causes of diarrhea in young calves," said Jim Harp, a microbiologist at the ARS's National Animal Disease Center in Ames, Iowa. "There's an increased awareness of the disease and people are finding it everywhere they look for it." Finding a control for the parasite is especially important because the disease affects humans, too.

At the disease center, Harp and his colleagues treated newborn calves with an oral vaccine that provided significant protection against the parasite. On-farm trials were less successful.

"In our experimental trials we were able to keep calves away from Cryptosporidium until they were a week old," Harp explained to researchers, students, and extension specialists gathered for the joint Midwest meeting of the American Society of Animal Science and the American Dairy Science Association. "On the farm, calves may be exposed to the disease as soon as they're born. There's not enough time for the vaccine to work."

He's now working on a vaccine that works faster and is investigating management techniques to help producers keep calves away from the disease for three or four days until vaccines have a chance to go to work.

Harp said some human drugs have shown promise in treating the disease, but they're expensive and not licensed for use in livestock. Researchers have also tried treating cows with vaccines so that calves are protected by immunity passed through their mother's milk. Unfortunately, that approach also shows little promise.

In the meantime, Harp recommends steps producers can take to limit calves' exposure to the parasite and minimize its impact.

•Isolate sick calves, placing them in a separate building if possible. Utensils, boots and coveralls used around sick calves shouldn't be used for healthy calves because they can carry Cryptosporidium.

•Care for healthy calves first so you don't carry the parasite to them from sick calves.

Harp noted that the parasite is very resistant to most disinfectants. Warm and dry conditions can kill it, but even a small amount of moisture in wood, bedding, and fecal material can sustain the pathogen. Barns with concrete and metal surfaces are less likely to harbor the parasite after they've been cleaned. Steam cleaners can generate enough heat to kill the Cryptosporidium, but hot tap water is seldom hot enough.

Likewise, cold conditions can kill it too. But Harp said the temperature must remain at 20 or 30 degrees below freezing for at least several weeks.

Although the parasite seldom kills healthy calves, it makes them susceptible to disease and other stress and can be deadly to calves with existing health problems.

The parasite's impact on humans is similar. It is seldom life-threatening for the healthy, but for those with weakened immune systems, it can be deadly.

That human impact poses a significant public image problem for livestock producers, Harp noted. One water-borne outbreak in 1993 affected 400,000 people in Milwaukee. Some specialists believe the outbreak could be linked to runoff from agricultural land where cattle were kept, Harp said. Other outbreaks also had possible links to cattle production.

"The evidence linking the disease in humans to livestock production isn't conclusive, but there is too much evidence to ignore," he said.

Poultry By-Product Gives Weanling Pigs Good, Economical Protein

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Pork producers can save $50 to $60 a ton in feed costs by feeding weanling pigs spray-dried poultry by-product meal instead of animal plasma as a protein source, according to University of Missouri-Columbia (MU) animal scientists.

The scientists weaned pigs at three weeks of age and fed diets containing animal protein sources for the next four weeks. Overall performance was the same whether the pigs were given the poultry by-product or the spray-dried animal plasma, the commonly used protein supplement in weanling pig diets.

"Those pigs fed the spray-dried poultry by-product always started out more slowly, but by the end of the four weeks, they had caught up to those getting the spray-dried animal plasma," said Trygve Veum, MU animal scientist.

Veum tried an enzyme supplement to help pigs fed the poultry by-product get off to a better start, but to no avail. "The weanling pigs don't consume the poultry by-product as well as plasma protein that first week," he said, "but after that they really wolf it down and grow just as well as those getting animal plasma."

Veum said weanling pigs need a high-quality animal protein to help them in the transition from the milk diet to a corn-soybean diet.

The MU research was reported recently at the Midwest section of the American Society of Animal Sciences meeting in Des Moines, Iowa.

influence of head positions on upper airway function. In another project, he and Dr. Jill Beech, professor of medicine, and Dr. Maxson have been studying upper respiratory tract and cardiac functions as well as blood gases and metabolites in quarterhorses with hyperkalemic periodic paralysis (HYPP) while they are exercising on the treadmill.

Dr. Lawrence Soma, the Marilyn Simpson Proffessor of Equine Medicine, is also doing research with the treadmill. Exercise-induced pulmonary hemorrhage (also known as EIPH or "bleeders") is a condition noted in many horses after intense exercise, especially those that race. In this condition, some horses actually bleed from their nose. However, with the modern introduction of flexible endoscopes, it has been shown that greater than 70 percent of horses have evidence inside the lungs of bleeding following galloping. Because horses which bleed heavily are believed to have reduced athletic performance, EIPH is one of the most serious veterinary problems facing the racing industry.

Also at New Bolton Center is the Equine Exercise Physiology Research Group. Their goal is to examine the changes of function of various organ systems (primarily lungs, heart, and muscle) associated with strenuous exercise. These doctors are attempting not only to describe the types of changes that occur during exercise, but also to find out what functional aspects may limit horses from performing at their best.

These studies require horses who are trained to run on a treadmill to run at speeds close to those encountered on the racetrack. While the horses run, the air that they breathe out, samples of blood, and occasionally small muscle samples are collected. Analysis of these samples allows for evaluation of the function of the heart, lungs, and muscles and provide a basis for predicting how efficient or fit a horse may be. By knowing how these systems function normally during exercise, veterinarians are in a better position to diagnose and treat problems (such as diseases) when they occur.

Another important side benefit of the treadmill studies is evaluating the effects of various drugs or therapies on athletic performance.

In the last nine years, standing laser surgery procedures have become commonplace for equine athletes at NBC. Naturally, standing surgery is preferable to conventional surgery because the patient is at less risk since general anesthesia is not required. Incisions made in the upper airway with the laser, for example, bleed less and cause less trauma.

Many problems can be treated with laser surgery on an outpatient basis. Dr. Eric Tulleners, chief of surgery and associate professor of surgery, routinely corrects problems such as epiglottic entrapment in standing equine patients on an outpatient basis.

Sports medicine not only encompasses the respiratory and cardiac systems, but also the digestive system of the equine athlete.

"We have been looking at the occurrence of gastric ulcers in competitive horses," said Dr. Orsini, associate professor of surgery, "and found that many of these athletes with poor performance, poor appetite, and loss of condition have gastric ulcers when examined gastroscopically. The frequency is as high as 80 percent of the individuals evaluated. The question remains: how do these ulcers affect performance and what can be done to prevent their occurrence?"

Orsini is looking at the many factors that interplay in the syndrome and developing recommendations to minimize the impact on the sporting athlete.

National Angus Conference On Changing Cattle Business Sept. 14-15

AMES, Iowa — A national Angus Conference, designed to help seed stock and commercial cattle producers adapt to the changing beef cattle industry, is here Sept. 15-16.

Planned in conjunction with Iowa State University, the program is open to the public and will be at the University Conference Center and other campus facilities.

The program will be presented in three parts: the challenge, the solutions, and the opportunities. Participants the first morning will outline the problems that "challenge" the industry today. The second portion will offer "solutions" to competing successfully in the years ahead. The event will conclude with the "opportunities" available to beef cattle breeders and producers just prior to and well after the turn of the century. The conference theme is "The Angus Plan For 2000 And Beyond," reports Richard L. Spader, executive vice president of the American Angus Association.

Dr. Gary Smith, professor and holder of the Monfort Chair in Meat Science at Colorado State University, will keynote the conference. He will outline "What Consumers Tell Us About the Beef We Produce." This will be followed by "Factors That Affect Carcass Value," by Dr. Gene Rouse, Iowa State University professor of animal science.

Solutions to the industry challenges of beef quality and consistency will be offered by a number of noted cattle breeders and experts in breeding and genetics. Richard McClung, managing partner of Wehrmann Angus, New Market, Va., will offer his insights on "Breeding Angus For 2000 and Beyond."

In addition, Dr. Doyle Wilson, professor of animal science at Iowa State, will explain the new Iowa State University/American Angus Association alliance. Later the first day, attendees will board buses for a tour of ISU animal science facilities and study visual displays of cattle designed to illustrate the importance of value based marketing.

Tuesday morning the conference will look into the opportunities open to beef cattle producers, including global marketing of high quality beef and the importance of quality and consistency from the beef purveyor's point of view.

The Certified Angus Beef Program and the quality edge in beef marketing will be explored by a blue ribbon panel consisting of Robert Norton, president and CEO of Beef American, Omaha, Neb.; Franklin Hall, president and owner of Lone Star Food Service, Austin, Texas; and Russ Wolfe, CEO of Topco Associates Inc., Skokie, Ill.

Preceding the conference on Saturday afternoon and Sunday, Sept. 13-14, the Iowa Angus Association will sponsor an Iowa Angus tour. It will visit a variety of Angus operations that are within easy driving distance of Ames, and an Iowa commercial feedlot.

Conference registration is $35 which covers the cost of meals. The two-day Iowa Angus tour, including bus transportation and four meals, is $40. For reservations and hotel information contact the American Angus Association, 3201 Frederick Blvd., St. Joseph, MO 64506, (816) 233-3101; fax (816) 233-9703, and e-mail angus@angus.org.

New Zealand Semen Available

SHAWANO, Wis. — 21st Century Genetics, Shawano, Wis., Noba, Tiffin, Ohio; and Genex Cooperative, Ithaca, N.Y. — the three artificial insemination (AI) subsidiaries of Cooperative Resources International (CRI) — have announced that semen is available on sires from the Livestock Improvement Cooperative (LIC) in New Zealand.

Initital semen availability includes five Holstein-Friesian sires, three Jerseys and one Ayrshire.

"We are making these genetics available to USA pasture-based dairy producers who are focusing on the pasture low input/high profit 'New Zealand' approach," said Keith Heikes, vice president, International Programming, CRI.

The genetics available from New Zealand result in cows that are bred for their production efficiency and competitiveness. They are also hardy and mobile.

Both American and New Zealand dairying systems are businesses which measure profit as the return from milk less the cost to produce it. The New Zealand system based on pasture and grazing is becoming increasingly viable as an alternative to the high input cost system traditionally used now in the U.S., allowing profitable farming in the face of increasing costs, reduced support, and low payouts.

For more information on obtaining semen on the New Zealand sires, contact your local 21st Century Genetics, Noba, or Genex representatives or call Heikes at (715) 526-2141.

Inland Waterways Help Farmers Convert Grain To Greenbacks

WASHINGTON, D.C. — American agriculture is a major stakeholder in the 25,000-mile inland waterway system.

Grain, soybeans, food products, fiber, and fertilizer account for about 40 percent of all U.S. waterborne freight shipments, and about 60 percent of all grain exports move to deep-draft seaports by river barges. Yet waterway leaders say many lawmakers and administration officials are unaware of the importance of barge transportation in enhancing the agricultural economy.

As a consequence, the National Waterways Conference has launched a nationwide campaign to increase public awareness of the significance of water resources programs — including properly maintained navigable rivers — to American economic well-being. The education-and-information campaign seeks to remind waterways users and beneficiaries of the wide-ranging public value of waterway programs, including flood protection, water supply, bank stabilization, hydropower, and water recreation as well as inland navigation.

Included in the campaign's outreach is the nation's agricultural community. A vast transportation system comprised of inland and intracoastal waterways as well as shallow- and deep-draft ports provides U.S. farmers with a low-cost method of moving their products to markets both in this country and around the world. Without a well maintained and adequately funded waterways infrastructure, the agricultural sector would face higher transportation costs and its ability to compete globally would suffer.

"Without a modern and efficient transportation network, including waterways, U.S. farmers would not be able to compete effectively in world markets," said Robert W. Portiss, port director of the Tulsa Port of Catoosa, who is chairman of the National Waterways Conference, Inc.

"Farmers in other countries often are able to grow soybeans and grain at lower cost than we can," Portiss said. "But it is our first-class port and waterways system which gives American farmers a distinct advantage — the waterways advantage."

Ann M. McCulloch, the conference's public affairs manager, has prepared fact sheets detailing the value of waterway transportation to 24 inland and coastal states, various ports and regions, and several industries, including American agriculture.

Another objective of the public-awareness campaign is to stress the importance of adequate funding for the Army Corps of Engineers' civil works programs. The President's FY 1998 budget request includes budgetary techniques that would cut civil works funding radically, from a high of about $4 billion in FY 1994 to $3 billion in FY 1999 and beyond.

"Such dramatic reductions would decimate the civil works program," McCulloch warned members of the agricultural community and other users of the nation's waterways. "To sustain the waterways infrastructure and overcome the effects of inflation, a funding level of at least $4 billion is required — without any increases in waterway user taxes or cost-sharing."

If American farmers need any incentive to put down their plows long enough to plead agriculture's case with their representatives and senators, Ms. McCulloch said, they should keep in mind these two facts highlighted recently by the Minnesota Agricultural Economist, a newsletter published by the Minnesota Extension Service:

• Eighty-two percent of the nation's corn, 77 percent of its soybeans, and 32 percent of its wheat are produced in 10 Upper Midwest states that rely on barge transportation along the Mississippi, Illinois, Ohio, and Missouri rivers. Those rivers form the major transportation route from the Midwest's grain production area to deep-draft ports along the Gulf of Mexico.

• The reason that waterway shipping costs are low is that barges carry large amounts of cargo. A typical nine-foot-draft barge holds from 1,400 to 1,600 tons, more than 50,000 bushels of grain. At St. Louis, below the last locks on the Upper Mississippi River, barges are typically placed into tows of 30 or more for the rest of a trip that begins in Minnesota and ends at Gulf Coast ports.

McCulloch also makes the point that of all the commodities shipped on America's inland waterways, grains, soybeans, food, fiber and fertilizer account for 40 percent of all ton-miles. And more than half of all U.S. export grain reaches deep-water ports by barge, and it is worth $25 billion in export earnings.

The Army Corps of Engineers predicts that U.S. corn exports via inland waterways will reach 72 million tons by 2000, up from an estimated 57 million tons in 1996. Wheat exports via barge are also expected to climb, up from 35 million tons last year to 44 million tons by 2000.

As noted by the Minnesota Agricultural Economist, the U.S. Highway system is a viable transportation method for moving farm products. But the vast distances between the U.S. heartland and ocean ports "would post a major transportation disadvantage for American agriculture if not for the low-cost and efficiency of our shallow-draft barge system," the newsletter noted.

Since the selling price of corn, wheat, soybeans, and other farm crops is set on global markets, U.S. farmers receive the seaport price — minus freight and handling costs. So the less transportation to seaports costs, the more money farmers receive for their crops.

American farmers should realize that the benefits of low-cost waterway transportation will erode rapidly if Washington's "budgeteers" are allowed to cut and trim indiscriminately without regard to the enormous public value of the waterway system, McCulloch said. "And without a modern waterway system, U.S. farmers' international advantage would vanish."

The benefits of the world's greatest navigable river system don't end at the farm. More than 100 public ports along the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific coasts and Great Lakes handled in excess of 1 billion tons of cargo in 1995, generating 1.6 million jobs, $21 billion in tax revenues and $16.3 billion in Customs collections.

The campaign will alert farmers and other waterway users that trouble could begin with a major policy change that the Clinton Administration proposed in its $3.7 billion budget for the FY 1998 civil works program. The change involves up-front "full funding" for 12 new starts and "advanced appropriations" totaling $575.7 million for 65 on-going construction projects, including four inland navigation projects, that can be completed within the next five years.

But don't let all those big dollar signs cloud your vision, McCulloch warned. While the civil works budget calls for about $200 million more than Congress appropriated for the current fiscal year, at least $300 million is earmarked for spending in future years. As a result, waterways funding is "down, not up," she said.

Worse yet, for FY 1999 and beyond, the Office of Management and Budget said it would limit all new starts — for inland waterways, ports, flood control, environmental restoration, etc. — to $200 million a year. Several pending inland lock-and-dam replacements each cost more than that amount, putting the inland navigation modernization program in jeopardy.

Waterway proponents have been contacting lawmakers and urging adequate funding for the civil works program. The first battle for increased funding for the civil works program, McCulloch said, will occur with the allocations process in which so-called discretionary spending targets given to the House Appropriations Committee are divided among the 13 appropriations subcommittees.

It is important, she noted, that allocations to the House and Senatge appropriations subcommittees on energy and Water Development Subcommittee are high enough to fund the Corps' civil works program. As a show of support for waterways programs, 37 House Members recently signed a letter urging Rep. John R. Kasich (R-Ohio), Chairman of the House Budget Committee, to provide adequate funding for the civil works program.

"Lawmakers need to understand that the value of waterways programs is not industry specific," McCulloch said. "Without well maintained, sufficiently funded water resources programs, individual farmers would have a more difficult time moving their goods to market. Those who store and ship farm products would be affected. The ripple effect of poorly funded waterways programs would harm not only global competitiveness, but local economies and quality of life as well."

The National Waterways Conference was organized in 1960 to encourage a better understanding of the public value of the American waterways system and to document the importance of farsighted navigation and water resources policies to a sound economy, industrial and agricultural productivity, regional development, environmental quality, energy conservation, international trade, defense preparedness and the overall national interest.

FFA Leaders with a Vision™

Maryland State FFA Convention

The 69th Annual Maryland State FFA Convention was held April 25-26 at the Hilton Inn in Gaithersburg, Md.

More than 400 FFA members and guests participated in convention activities including delegate sessions, committee meetings, leadership contests, and chapter competitions.

The convention activities were directed by the 1996-1997 State FFA Officer Team.

Special activities of the convention include presentations by the National FFA Secretary Holly Bently and the retiring addresses of the state officers. Other activities included the Record Book Awards Program sponsored by Maryland Farm Bureau and the American Royal Ambassador Scholarship Program sponsored by the Farm Credit Banks.

Recognition of individual FFA members included the state agriculture degree. State Proficiency Award Winners were Sandy newbold, Diana Ogg, Amanda Imhoff, Missy Willard, Mark Schnebly, Eric Martin, Chad Buchen, and Denny Ogg. State Star Production Farmer Award went to Kim Spielman. Star Agricubusiness person is Diana Ogg. American FFA Degree Candidate is Missy Willard of Catoctin High.

Three special VIP awards were presented to recognize outstanding contributions to the Maryland FFA Association. The Blue and Gold Award was given during the banquet session to John Thompson for his services to Maryland Agriculture for the past 30 years. The Distinguished Service Award was also presented during the banquet sessions on Colonal Farm Credit Association, Inc. The Award was accepted by James Bevans.

Dr. Cecil Massie received the Maryland FFA's M.V.P. Award. Massie, a past Blue and Gold Award Winner and honorary state and American FFA degree recipient, continues to provide distinguished leadership to and support of countless FFA activities.

The Maryland FFA Foundation, Inc. gave special recognition to the sponsors of FFA Activities during the second convention session. The Maryland Farm Bureau was selected to receive the Outstanding Sponsor Award.

During the session, 28 contest sponsors and 17 convention sponsors were recognized.

The American Royal Ambassadors Contest has been one of the highlights of the annual State FFA Convention in the past. This year that contest included both male and female contestants who were interviewed on Wednesday morning and winners were announced during the American Royal Ambassador Dance that evening. This year's American Royal Ambassador candidates who will represent Maryland at Kansas City in the American Royal Ambassador Contest are Amy Mathews of the Walkersville FFA Chapter and Chriss Burch of the Linganofe FFA Chapter.

As state winners they will each receive a $500 scholarship from the Farm Credit Bank.

Candidates for the 1997-1998 State FFA Officers were interviewd on Saturday, April 5, and installed during the awards banquet by the outgoing team.

Members of the 1997-1998 State FFA Officer Team are state president, Gary Basler; state secretary, Kara Kochis; vice president, Kim Spielman; state treasurer, Mark Valentine; state reporter, David Smith; and vice president, Kim Spielman.

The Oakland FFA had the first place team and the Linganore FFA second place in the parliamentary procedure contest, held April 23-26 during the 69th Annual Maryland State FFA Convention. The Maryland State Grange sponsored the contest.

Members of the Oakland 1st place team are Mr. Kisner, Jennifer Reckart, Susan Mayfield, Jennifer Barnard, Erica Stahl and Diana Mayfield.

Members of the Linganore 2nd place team are Andrea Hood, Jennifer O'Hara, Amy Harshman, Sindu Scheck, Paula Ramsburg, Vicki Burch and Ms. Beachy adviser.

Contest superintendent was Roy S. Walls, teacher educator for the Institute of Applied Agriculture at the University of Maryland, College Park.

Kristin Myers of the Francis Scott Key FFA was the first place winning individual and Kim Spielman of the Boonsboro FFA Chapter won second place in the senior extemporanous speaking contest. The Maryland Farm Bureau of Randallstown, Md., sponsored the contest.

According to the Contest Superintendent Lee Heavner, there were 14 FFA members in competition.

Lee Heavner of the Flinstone FFA Chapter was the teacher chairperson and supervised scoring.

Participants receiving gold medal awards were Kristin Myers, Kim Spielman and Jennifer Barnard.

Amanda Imhof of the Frederick FFA was the first place winner and Amanda Shahan of the North Harford FFA won second place in the senior prepared public speaking contest. The contest was sponsored by Maryland Soybean Board and Mid-Atlantic Soybean Association.

According to the contest chairman, there were 13 contestants.

Clear Spring FFA was the first place winning team in the agribusiness management contest which was held at the Hilton Inn on April 25. The contest was sponsored by the Colonial Farm Credit Bank.

The high scoring individual was Mark Schnebly of the Clear Spring FFA. The Oakland Chapter took second place.

Members of the Oakland 2nd place team are Mr. Kisner, adviser; Erica Sthal; Holly Wilson; Jenifer Barnard; and Dawn Lohr.

According to Contest Superintendent Boyd J. Michael III, there were five teams registered with 20 FFA members participating.

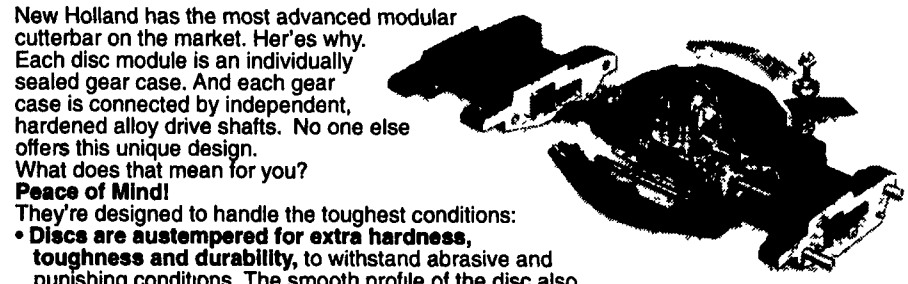
INDEPENDENT MODULAR CUTTERBAR

New Holland secret to smooth, hassle mowing



New Holland has the most advanced modular cutterbar on the market. Her'es why. Each disc module is an individually sealed gear case. And each gear case is connected by independent, hardened alloy drive shafts. No one else offers this unique design.
What does that mean for you?
Peace of Mind!
They're designed to handle the toughest conditions:
- Discs are austempered for extra hardness, toughness and durability, to withstand abrasive and punishing conditions. The smooth profile of the disc also prevents premature wear.
- Cutterbar module gears are precision-forged for added strength
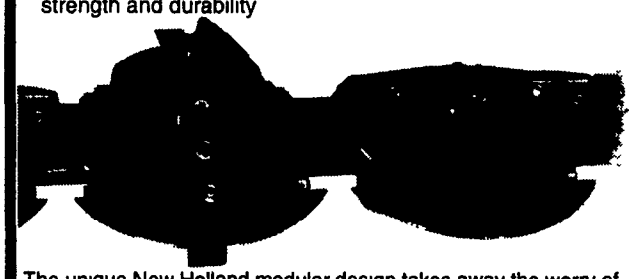
- Rock guards are made of heat treated ductile iron– not the typical stamped sheet metal – for maximum strength and durability
- Skid shoes are 1/4-inch thick, 8 inches wide and extend behind the module two inches for optimum flotation and protection in rocky conditions.



The unique New Holland modular design takes away the worry of major cutterbar damage.

Easy knife replacement
Knives have two cutting edges for twice the cutting life. You can flip or replace knives easily from the front of the cutterbar using only one bolt per knife. There's no need to raise the header or reach from the back of the cutterbar.

Reminder!!

Badger Forage Boxes... Built for the Long Haul!

Model BN1050

Model BN1055

Now Badger gives you more choice in forage boxes. Two models, in three sizes: 14', 16' or 18'. The new Model BN1055 offers variable speeds to match the forage density of your load. Look to Badger for the only forage boxes built to flex on all terrain.

- High-strength alloy steel undercarriage
- 23-1/2" wide high-speed cross conveyor
- Model BN1055 available with heavy-duty corrugated steel roof
- Lifetime warranty on sides and deck

SAFETY!

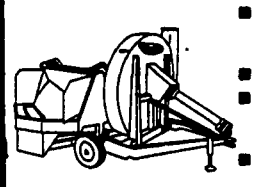
Badger Blowers Beat Bottlenecks

NEW



Model BN2060

- Designed for plug-proof operation
- Unload wagons faster, fill silos more efficiently
- Choose from Model BN2054 or New Model BN2060, for bigger silos
- Rugged, heavy-duty construction
- Adjustable shear bar prevents hair pinning, carry-over and power loss
- All material goes up the pipe in the air stream
- Flexible wind guards minimize spillage

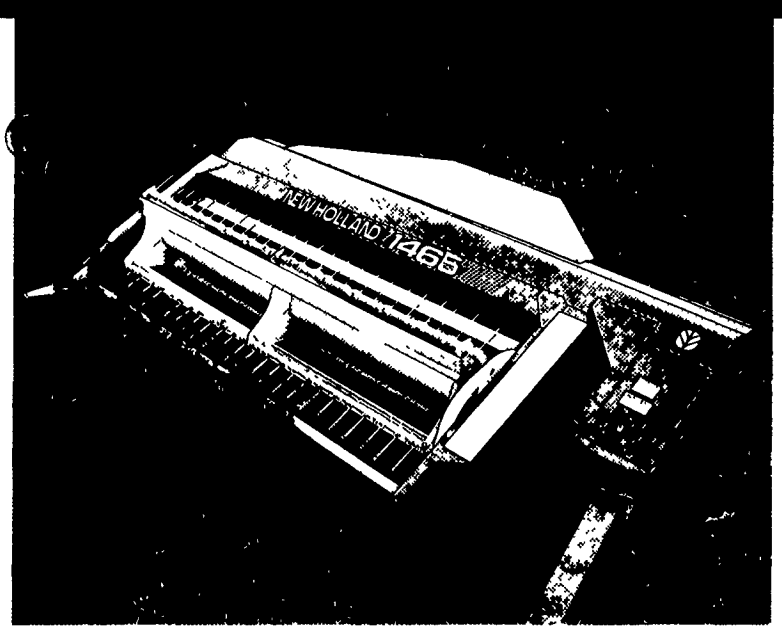
HAYBINE MOWER-CONDITIONERS



A BETTER WAY TO MOW

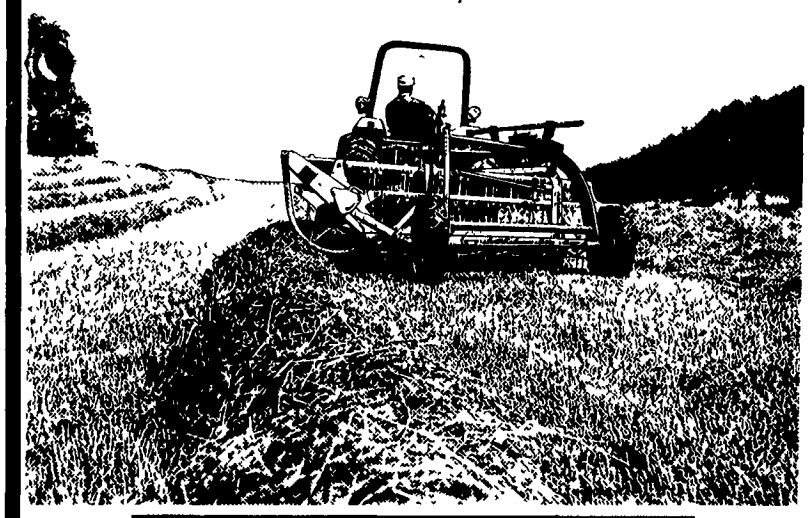
The New Holland Model 1465 Haybine® mower-conditioner features a new header with a five-bat reel for more uniform crop flow. You get a cleaner cut and less scalping in a proven design. And the "1465" can be ordered with a mechanical tongue shift or hydraulic tongue shift. Other great features include:

- A torsion-bar roll-pressure system
- Chevron-design rolls for thorough, gentle conditioning and fast drydown
- 100% bolted knife assemblies

When performance, reliability and durability count, you can count on the "1465".

NEW HOLLAND

THE ORIGINAL



ROLABAR® RAKES WITHSTAND THE TEST OF TIME

Don't settle for second best when it comes to rakes. Choose the original — a dependable New Holland Rolabar® rake. The rake more farmers buy over all other brands combined. Why? Because its rugged construction makes it one hard-working, hay-grabbing machine.

Stop in & See the Original Model 258 Rolabar® Rake with rubber teeth today

JOHN DEERE COMPACT TRACTORS

Easy To Get Attached To

Our 18.5 to 38.5-hp compact utility tractors let you hook up any of more than 2 dozen implements in about five minutes - without tools. And with dual PTO controls-they let you run implements separately or simultaneously. Or better still, run the loader, mower, or tiller without detaching either of the other two. Get attached to a John Deere soon.

Lely Shows the Way with Hay.

LELY

Haylage Hits Primetime.

Haylage brings feed value to the farm by preserving protein and improving the digestibility of hay. Lely has a complete line of hay making equipment.

- Reliable disc mowers with independently sealed drive units to handle your toughest hay conditions.
- Combination rake/tedders for spreading, tedding and windrowing.
- Mower conditioners for gentle and effective hay conditioning that reduces drying time.
- Heavy duty Welger Round Balers with MASTERCUT for slicing hay into dense well-shaped bales.
- McHale Round Bale Wrappers with automatic controls to make it easy to wrap and preserve your haylage.

THE PIONEER SPIRIT: TOUGH DEPENDABILITY AND EXPERIENCED KNOW-HOW

TYE 2000 NOTILL SYSTEM

Tye was first in NoTill Seeding and we're still way ahead of the competition.

Our 2000 NoTill System has improved over the years to become a state-of-the-art seeder. Today's Tye has all the right features to yield top quality performance.

Features like our internal flute seeders for gentle seed handling, swivel coulters to keep the drills tracking on hillsides, HD row units, depth control presswheels and a larger 2.8 bu/ft self-cleaning grain box. When you compare Tye with the competitors, you'll see why the "Pioneer of NoTill Seeding is still way ahead."

Finally, a practical way to apply organic mulch to row crops

Organic mulch is the natural way to suppress weeds, help retain soil moisture, and improve soil conditions. Trouble is, hand mulching takes too much time and effort. Now the Millcreek Row Mulcher makes it easy to mulch berries, grapes, fruit trees, and other row crops. One operator can mulch an acre in just a couple hours depending on conditions.

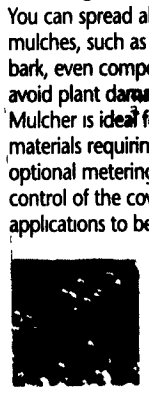
Spread A Variety of Materials, Including Lime

You can spread all types of stemless flowable mulches, such as wood chips, sawdust, chopped bark, even compost, with plenty of clearance to avoid plant damage. Plus, the Millcreek Row Mulcher is ideal for banding lime and other materials requiring lighter applications. The optional metering gate gives you complete control of the coverage so you can tailor applications to best suit your cultivation practices.



For Small Growers
This may be the affordable machine you've been looking for to mulch berries, grapes, and other row crops. Think of the labor you'll save.

For Commercial Growers
Choose from 3.1, 4.5, and 6.8 cubic yard capacities. Or call to discuss your special requirements.

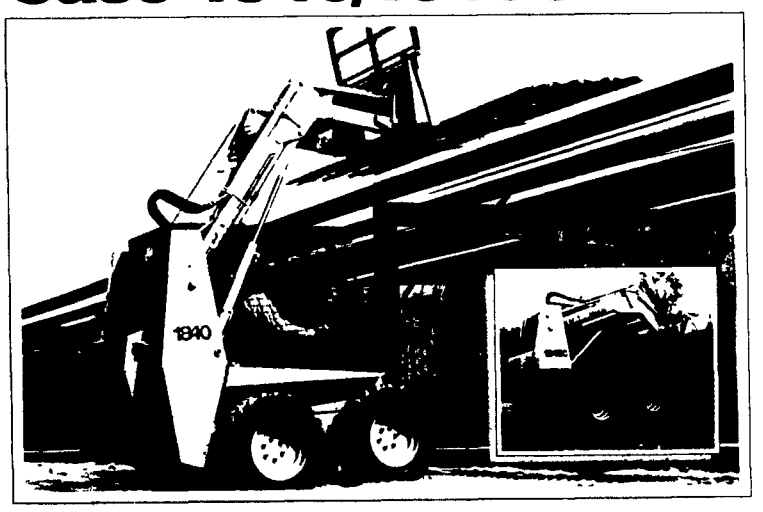
Case 1840/1845C Skid Steers



The dynamic duo

Check out the features

The Case 1840 and 1845C Uni-Loader® skid steers feature Case diesel engines, for reliable power in quick, responsive, versatile machines. Large-capacity hydraulics and heavy-duty frame and loader with quick-change coupler take on a variety of buckets and attachments to dig, trench, plow, sweep and more

Check out the performance

Maximum breakout force and highly responsive controls put timesaving power at your fingertips. With 1350-pound and 1700-pound operating loads, respectively, the 1840 and 1845C handle tough jobs in spaces unsuitable for larger equipment.

Check out the 1840 or 1845C

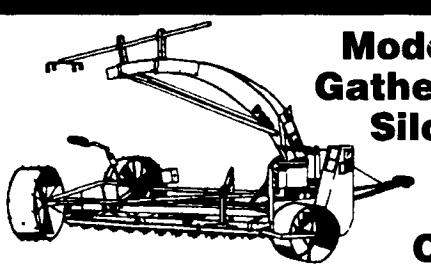
BEST UNLOADERS
ON THE MARKET FOR HAYLAGE!



Model 98C Gathering-chain Silo Unloader Increases Blowing Capacity

BIGGER BLOWER handles even more silage.

FOUR IMPELLER BLADES ADJUST for close tolerance and efficient blowing.

STAINLESS STEEL blower is available.

Proven cutter-and-claw gathering chain provides high volume delivery in frozen and hard packed silage.

FULLY AUTOMATED UNLOADING because the 98C is self propelled on the silage surface without cable support. No winch watching!

DEPTH-OF-CUT CONTROL ensures high-volume delivery.

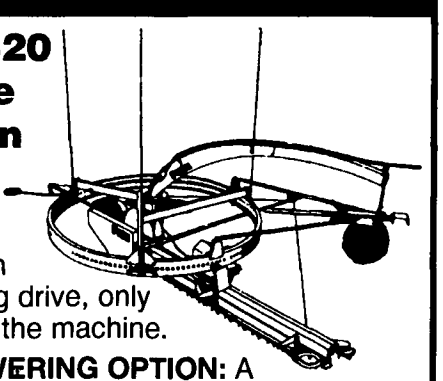
AUTOMATIC SELF-LEVELLING for uniform silage removal, saving trips up the silo.

ALL PARTS GO UP THE CHUTE to install easily anytime.

FOR 12 TO 30 FT. silos.

Owners of Patz 61, 66, 98, 98A and 98B unloaders: This bigger blower will fit your unloader.

Model RD-820 Ring Drive Without an Extra Motor



RING-DRIVE: With the roller-chain ring drive, only one motor powers the machine.

AUTOMATIC LOWERING OPTION: A winch lowers the RD-820 automatically after each complete revolution.

GATHERING CHAIN: The Patz cutters and claws cut loose frozen and hard-packed silage efficiently, and then move it to the blower faster.

POWER CUTTER: Spring tension keeps high-speed, self-sharpening blades tight to the silo wall to shave it clean.

TORQUE LIMITER: Ratchet-pin design protects the ring and drive system while working through tough conditions.

Ask about Patz dual-auger unloaders.

THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!

"HOW WILL YOU BE STORING YOUR VALUABLE FORAGES AND GRAINS IN THE 21st CENTURY?"

It's not too early to begin planning your storage and feeding systems for the year 2000 and beyond.

As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency; this can have as great an influence on PROFIT as milk price changes.

Protect your valuable feeds from the elements... increase the efficiency of your feeds, your animals, and your labor.

ADVANTAGE ... CONCRETE

"IF YOU NEED A SILO... YOU NEED TO CALL BOB FRANCIS...

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

MEMBER: International Silo Association/PA Forage and Grassland Council/AM Society of Agricultural Engineers/Crop Storage Institute.

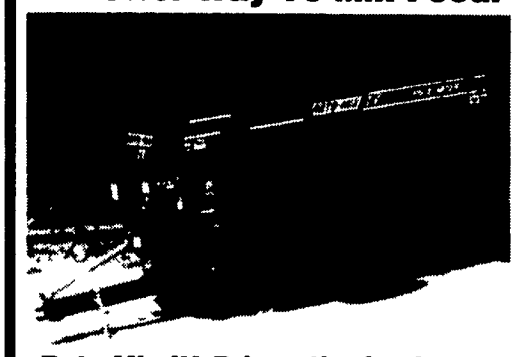
ROTO-MIX IV FEED MIXERS
A Better Way To Mix Feed!



Roto-Mix IV Brings the freshness of the field to your hay ration.

- Only 2 Augers with one-half to two-thirds less flighting
- Rotor is equipped with spring tension bars which relieve pressure and eliminate wedging.
- Extra heavy, small diameter wall auger tubes give maximum life with less maintenance.
- Patented tumble design allows easier pulling and mixer action.

Stop in & check the Roto-Mix advantages - the bottom line is what counts.

PARMAK
Model MAG. 12 U.O.
Low Impedance
12-V. Bat. Operated

The Magnum 12 features Parmak's exclusive built-in performance meter. Tells you the exact condition of your fence. Takes the guess work out of electric fencing. More power than you ever imagined possible from a battery fencer. The Magnum 12 features output equal to power line operated models. Shocks through wet weeds and brush. No moving parts means years of dependable, trouble free services.

The most economic 12-volt solid state fencer operation on the market. Magnum 12 provides up to three months of continuous operation between battery charges. Weatherproof, portable outdoor model for installation anywhere on your farm. Charges up to 30 miles of fence. Fully warranted. UL listed.

LLAMAS LLAMAS LLAMAS

If you've been considering starting in llamas, or having a llama for a pet, why not stop in to see our herd.

Our young males start at $500, our weanling females at $2,500, our pregnant females at $3,500. A deposit will hold any of our crias (baby llamas) for you.

We prefer seling off the farm, rather than subjecting our animals to the stress of auctions.

All of our llamas are registered with the International Llama Registry. Some of the finest wool and blood lines can be found in our herd, incuding Otter Creek Harold.

Cut stall clean-out time by 50% with a Millcreek Compact Spreader.

"The spreading efficiency sure outweighs the price. This is a wonderful machine. I couldn't be more pleased."
EARL SINKS - Brock, Texas

Say "Good-Bye" to back-breaking manure handling and cut stall clean-out time in half Hook an affordable Millcreek Compact Spreader to your 10 hp garden tractor, take it right to the stall for easy loading No more wheelbarrow.

Millcreek Spreaders last and last

Since spreaders are our specialty, we put more into each one For example our 20-year guaranteed floor will never rust or rot. Positive chain drive provides excellent spreading action. And tough steel construction holds up to rugged farm use. Seven sizes, for 1-horse barns to 50-horse stables. PTO and ground drive models available.

Beitzel Spraying is now distributing:
SAFECIDE® BRAND IC
For the control of darkling beetles, hide beetles and flies in poultry houses and for control of fire ants

Advantages:
- Efficacious–boron-based SafeCide® Brand IC kills larvae and adults. Breaks the beetle life cycle and reduces diseases carried by beetles
- Contains an extremely safe and effective pest control agent (99% orthoboric acid)– larvae and beetles die 3 to 5 days after contact and ingestion.
- Provides long-lasting residual results. Keeps on working up to 12 months – longer than most available products.
- Provides an effective barrier. Kills larvae and adults as they emerge.
- Cost effective – low cost based on per day of activity.
- Can be applied as a dust or spray. Flexible application options let SafeCide® Brand IC fit easily into your particular management program.
- EPA approved, ecologically friendly– non-carcinogenic, no toxic residues. Safe to be applied by humans.
- Is field proven. Field studies* show heavily infested farms treated with SafeCide® Brand IC have better feed conversion rates, increased weight gains, greater livability, and fewer condemnations than untreated farms.
- No insecticidal resistance reported.
- Retards the growth of Aspergillus in the litter.
- Approved for use in the control of fire ants and flies.
